Health Department Recommends Social Distancing To Prevent Coronavirus

By Stephanie Ler, RS, MPH, Richland County Health Department Public Information Officer

The Richland County Health Department is advancing efforts to prevent coronavirus in our community.

"Right now, we are a step ahead of coronavirus. We don't have cases here yet. We want to make it slow to get here, to protect our vulnerable populations, and allow us more time to have a coordinated response. We're not sick, and we're trying not to get sick," said Julie Brodhead, RN, communicable disease nurse at the Health Department.

On Thursday, March 12, Governor Steve Bullock declared a state of emergency in Montana. "The emergency order puts our state on the highest alert — recognizing, though, that now still is the time to continue to plan, not panic," Bullock said in a news conference. Bullock later issued a statement closing all Montana schools for two weeks in an effort to prevent the spread of the virus.

The Health Department is recommending that people begin practicing social distancing. Social distancing is a prevention effort where community members physically separate from each other to prevent or slow the spread of disease. It has been shown that social distancing in the early stages of an outbreak is effective in preventing or slowing the spread of communicable disease.

The Health Department is recommending that groups consider cancelling or postponing large group gatherings. Many organizations have already taken these precautions by cancelling scheduled events and meetings. If your group chooses to continue to meet during this time, group members should be considerate of protecting themselves and others. This means staying home when you are sick, avoiding handshakes and other close contact, and washing hands frequently.

Monitor yourself for symptoms of illness. If you develop a fever, cough, and/or shortness of breath, call your healthcare provider. If you do not have a provider, call the Sidney Health Center Walk-In Clinic at 406-488-3963.

If you have questions about the coronavirus, call the Richland County Health Department's Information Line at 406-433-6947. You may access important links on the Health Department's coronavirus webpage at www.richland.org/rchd. For the most updated information about COVID-19 in Montana, visit the Montana DPHHS webpage at <https://dphhs.mt.gov/publichealth/cdepi/diseases/coronavirusmt>.

Richland County Health Department Administrator Retires

On January 31, Judy LaPan ended a chapter of her career in public health, after 22 years of service as Administrator of the Richland County Health Department.

LaPan began at the Department in 1998, during a time where most rural health departments had few full-time staff, if any. Recognizing the need for and value of public health services, LaPan broadened the scope of the Health Department, moving from mainly individualized services to population-based programs, including disease surveillance, preparedness and prevention.

LaPan worked to establish the Richland County Health Department as both a leader in public health, and a leader in the community. Innovative and forward-thinking, LaPan spearheaded the Communities in Action process, which builds the capacity of our community through cross-sector collaboration, and secured hundreds of thousands of dollars in grant funds to bring programming, staff, and AmeriCorps members to address community needs.

Throughout her career, LaPan maintained a leadership position in local and state public health. LaPan served as chairperson of Montana Public Health System Improvement Task Force for seven years, where she led the development of the Montana Public Health Training Institute and updated public health statutes. LaPan was also a founding member of the Association of Montana Public Health Officials.

One of LaPan's most proud accomplishments was achieving the Department's Accreditation status through the Public Health Accreditation Board in 2018. Richland County was the smallest county in Montana, both population-wise and number of staff, to achieve the status.

Recognized for her extensive contribution to public health through collaboration, leadership, advocacy and policy work across the state of Montana, LaPan received numerous awards throughout her career. Recent awards include the 2018 JSEC Employer of Choice Award; Montana Public Health Association's highest award, the Distinguished Service Award in 2019; and the Partners in Progress Award from the Sidney Area Chamber of Commerce in 2019.

Perhaps LaPan's greatest contribution to public health was the countless number of staff, interns, students, AmeriCorps members and community partners that served under her leadership, and the countless community members who have benefited from the programs and services LaPan developed and secured to meet the needs in Richland County. In the 2018 JSEC Employer of Choice Award nomination, LaPan's staff wrote, "Our Department is like a second family to many of us—we work together, grow together, and move public health initiatives forward to ensure a community where the public can thrive. An organization is only as strong as its leadership, and we truly have a top-notch leader, who is innovative, supportive and nurturing. We are honored to serve under the leadership of Judy LaPan."

The second chapter of LaPan's career in public health includes serving as Vice Chair of the Montana Healthcare Foundation Board, where she continues to lead efforts to improve the health of Montanans and ensure the provision of essential public health services throughout Montana. She has served as a Trustee since 2013.

Aside from serving on the Healthcare Foundation Board, LaPan is enjoying travelling to visit her two boys, Matthew in Seattle, and Mark in New York, and her mother in Florida, and spending time with her husband, Michael.

COVID-19 Recommendations for Returning from US Travel

By Stephanie Ler, RS,
MPH, Richland County
Health Department Public
Information Officer

There is no recommendation at this time that those returning from domestic travel need to stay home upon return. Those who have travelled should monitor their health for the 14 days following their return. This means taking their temperature, and being alert for any other symptoms of COVID-19 including a cough or difficulty breathing. If the person develops symptoms during that time, they should contact the Health Department Information Line at 406-433-6947, and stay home until they receive additional instructions. If the person is sick enough to require medical care, they should call their healthcare provider. If the person does not have a healthcare provider, they may call the Sidney Health Center Walk-In Clinic at 406-488-3963.

At all times, all community members should be taking general precautions to protect themselves and others, especially our most vulnerable populations, which includes older adults and those with underlying medical conditions, such as cancer, diabetes, and heart and lung disease. This includes staying home when you are sick, washing hands frequently, cleaning and sanitizing surfaces, and avoiding social gatherings. The most updated information on COVID-19 in Montana is available at the MT DPHHS website at <https://dphhs.mt.gov/publichealth/cdepi/diseases/coronavirusmt>.

Governor Bullock Directs The Closure Of Public K-12 Schools For Two Weeks

Strongly Recommends Social Distancing Measures To Slow The Spread Of COVID-19, MT

Submitted by Delila Bruno

Montana-Governor Steve Bullock today announced a set of directives and guidance to slow the spread of COVID-19 and protect vulnerable Montanans, including closing of public K-12 schools, social distancing measures, and limiting visitation at nursing home facilities.

"As governor, it is my top priority to protect the health and safety of Montanans, particularly our most vulnerable, at a time when we face the potential for extraordinary health risks from coronavirus in our state," said Governor Bullock. "Social distancing is one of the most important primary protective measures to flatten the curve of this virus. I cannot underscore the seriousness of following these measures to help our neighbors, friends, and families."

Governor Bullock directed Montana's public K-12 schools to close starting March 16 until March 27. During this time, schools will engage in planning to provide arrangements to provide free meals to students who need them, pursuant to a waiver obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture, and to provide for all other matters and services that students need in the event of future or on-going closure. Schools will continue to receive all state funding during this two-week closure.

The state will work with schools during this period to evaluate and consider next steps as needed. The decision to close schools is to slow the spread and is not in response to an outbreak in schools.

"I recognize that our schools often serve as a lifeline for families and that this decision is going to have disruption on Montanans over the coming weeks. I'm committed to working with schools, communities and public health to minimize the impact. I encourage businesses to do everything they can to support families as well," said Governor Bullock.

To mitigate the impact of school closures on families, Governor Bullock encourages all employers to be generous with their employee sick and paid leave policies during this time.

Governor Bullock is strongly recommending that the public limit all gatherings, especially those more than 50 people, in every community across the state. Governor Bullock is also recommending that individuals over the age of 60 or who are immunocompromised or with chronic health conditions do not participate in gatherings of more than 20 people. He also recommends that parents should avoid, if possible, placing children for childcare with grandparents or individuals over the age of 60 or immunocompromised persons.

Visitation in Montana's nursing homes is suspended except for certain compassionate care situations. People who meet the exception for visitation will undergo a screening to determine whether they have traveled in the last two weeks, are residing where community spread is occurring, or if they have symptoms consistent with COVID-19.

In addition to taking part in regular briefing calls with the country's governors and the White House, Governor Bullock has consulted with doctors and other public health authorities and school leaders to develop efforts to prevent spread of COVID-19 in Montana.

Burgum Orders K-12 Schools To Close For One Week In Effort To Slow Spread Of COVID-19 in North Dakota

Bismarck, ND – By executive order, Gov. Doug Burgum today ordered the closure of North Dakota K-12 schools in an effort to slow the spread of COVID-19 based on guidance from public school superintendents, medical experts and the North Dakota Department of Health (NDDoH).

Out of an abundance of caution, public and private schools will be closed March 16-20. The decision was made in an effort to reduce the rate of infection and give the state an opportunity to gather more data, better assess testing and treatment capabilities and plan for education in the event of an extended COVID-19 pandemic. The situation will be reassessed at the end of the week.

"We remain in a state of calm and continue to base our decisions on fact, not fear," Burgum said. "We want to work through the situation, gain understanding and make sure we're driven by data and solid strategies."

Burgum and other state officials plan to meet with district superintendents and health care providers to gather information and answer questions. Teachers should follow their district's guidance on reporting to school.

"Students' health and safety is our number one priority," said State Superintendent Kirsten Baesler. "We're working with North Dakota district superintendents and community leaders to do the best that we can for our students."

"Closing K-12 education is a proactive and aggressive approach to minimize community spread," said State Health Officer Mylynn Tuft. "What we've learned this weekend from our medical advisors is that we need more time to 'flatten the curve' to slow the spread of COVID-19 so we don't overwhelm the health care system."

State officials have the following recommendations:

- Follow the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommendation that groups or individuals should cancel or postpone in-person events that consist of 50 people or more.
- Stay home when you're sick, cover your coughs and sneezes and wash your hands often.
- Get plenty of rest, drink fluids, eat healthy foods and manage your stress to help prevent getting COVID-19 and recover from it if you do.

The Department of Public Instruction is working with the Department of Human Services Division of Behavioral Health to launch resources to help explain COVID-19 to children.

The state lab has tested 112 individuals for COVID-19, with one positive case from an individual who had travel history. If individuals have questions, they can call the Health Department's hotline at 1-866-207-2880 from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday.

For the most updated and timely information and updates related to COVID-19, visit the ND-DoH website at www.health.nd.gov/coronavirus, follow them on Facebook, Twitter and Instagram and visit the CDC website at www.cdc.gov/coronavirus.

Consumer Alerts on Tax Scams

Note that the IRS will never:

- Call to demand immediate payment using a specific payment method such as a prepaid debit card, gift card or wire transfer. Generally, the IRS will first mail you a bill if you owe any taxes.
- Threaten to immediately bring in local police or other law-enforcement groups to have you arrested for not paying.
- Demand that you pay taxes without giving you the opportunity to question or appeal the amount they say you owe.
- Ask for credit or debit card numbers over the phone.

Sidney-Richland County Library Response To COVID-19

Submitted by Kelly Reisig

Sidney - The health and welfare of patrons and staff of the Sidney-Richland County Library is our top priority. In order to slow the transmission of the novel coronavirus known as COVID-19, the Sidney-Richland County Library is taking the following precautionary safety measures.

- Effective immediately all outreach services to senior centers and daycares are suspended.
- Effective immediately all public programs are suspended.
- All public service desks and self-checks will continue to be cleaned multiple times a day. The implementation of social distancing will continue in the computer commons, children's, teen, and sitting areas. Common use items such as LEGOs, blocks, train toys and sensory bin equipment have been removed from usage.
- Food or drink in the library common areas has been suspended.

In this time of uncertainty we all need to support each other. To this end, we are starting two new library programs.

- We will be delivering online content such as story time and trivia hour. Some of these programs will have prizes in the form of chamber bucks. Remember our local small businesses still need our patronage.
- We will be offering curbside pickup of library items.

We would be happy to help you select some items for those two weeks at home. Just call the library to arrange. You will need a library card in good standing. We will work with you to do the rest.

Don't forget that our library has a wealth of resources to help you during this difficult time. We have books about dealing with stress, or maybe you need some new recipe ideas...we have tons of cookbooks. Maybe you'll decide to take on a DIY project or a new hobby or craft. We can help you there too.

Please note that the Library is unable to comprehensively sanitize every single item in the collection, and, as such, patrons are advised to wash their hands after handling materials and avoid touching their faces.

We would like to remind visitors that libraries are shared public spaces. For the health and safety of others, please be thoughtful about coming to the library if you are exhibiting any COVID-19 symptoms. Please do your part to stop the spread of germs and disease.

It is the Sidney-Richland County Library's honor and privilege to serve our Richland County communities.

Leadership Summit Postponed Until July 16

Submitted by Kali Godfrey

Communities in Action have postponed the 2020 Leadership Summit until July 16. This decision has been made in response to COVID-19 concerns, as the highly regarded facilitator, Ben Winchester, is unable to attend due to a travel ban placed by his university system. Communities in Action find it extremely important to take precautions for the health and well-being of our own community during this time.

Communities in Action are choosing to see this as an opportunity to increase the impact of the event. Times like these are all the more proof that rural, small town communities MUST and WILL take care of each other. We're all in this together and it's very important that we do our part by staying informed. Refer to Richland County Health Department's Facebook page for more information about keeping yourself and your loved ones healthy: @RichlandCountyHealthDepartment or call Richland County Health Department's Information Line at 406-433-6947. Please continue to register at: <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/CIALeadershipSummit20> and we hope to see you in July!

Fairview Student Earns University of Mary 2019-2020 Student Nurse Of The Year Honors

Posted by University of Mary

Bismarck, ND—The University of Mary chapter of the Nursing Student Association (NSA) has recognized Fairview, MT, native Kelly Danielson as the Student Nurse of the Year (SNOY) for this school year. The SNOY award is to recognize an outstanding nursing student, to stimulate interest in the NSA, to promote communication between schools and students across North Dakota, and to stimulate public interest and awareness of nursing student activities.

"I am extremely humbled to be chosen to represent the University of Mary as student nurse of the year," said Danielson, the daughter of Duane and Janine Danielson of Fairview. "Every student and faculty member in the University of Mary nursing program deserves to be recognized for their dedication and commitment to the calling of nursing, and this honor will allow me to showcase their excellence."

Danielson is part of University of Mary's nursing program that is ranked No. 1 in America by Mountain Measurements. Mary's nursing graduates have passed their licensure exam on the first try — a 100% success rate.

Danielson was chosen through a three-part process. Other finalists included juniors, Johnathan Supan, St. Cloud, MN, and Katie Benz, Sioux Falls, SD. The junior nursing class voted for their top three candidates — who were then interviewed by a panel of judges.

Personal and professional criteria for receiving SNOY include ability in public speaking; potential to develop physical, mental, emotional and spiritual qualities necessary for success as an individual and a nurse; the ability to express views on current events and problems; the ability to meet physical, emotional, mental, spiritual and social needs of patients; belief in elevated standards of nursing care demonstrated by word and actions; leadership; understanding of the principles behind nursing care; and loyalty to the profession.

Kelly Danielson working with fellow University of Mary nursing classmates.

"My career plans include potentially working in the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit (NICU) and then eventually become a nurse practitioner and work with a pediatric surgeon," added Danielson, who, next year, will take advantage of the CHI Nursing Scholarship: students enrolled in Mary's traditional Nursing program on the main campus in Bismarck can receive the scholarship to cover tuition for their senior year — that's senior year tuition-free.

As Student Nurse of the Year for the local chapter, Danielson will serve as a chairperson for recruitment, conduct next year's SNOY contest, and also attend and actively participate in local chapter events.

Whether in nursing, bioethics, occupational therapy, physical therapy, pre-med, or any of the school's 30-plus academic programs in the health sciences, Mary lives up to its mission — to prepare health care professionals anchored in moral courage, who respect and defend the life and dignity of the human person. St. Gianna, an Italian physician, wife, and mother, is beloved by millions around the world for her example of sacrificial love in giving her life for her unborn child. With the gracious permission of her family, these programs are becoming the Saint Gianna School of Health Sciences. For the more than 1200 students and 63 professors in the health sciences alone, this reaffirms a stellar 60-year reputation for health care education that integrates genuine compassion with the utmost professional competence.

Letter To The Editor

Pro-life organizations around the state are aghast at Joel Krautter's assertions in your wonderful publication. As a decades-long resident of Montana, a Constitutional Republican, a Christian volunteer, and a pro-life activist, the record needs to be set straight.

As the Montana Family Foundation has made abundantly clear, the Medicaid expansion rule that Krautter voted for along with Montana House Democrats, did indeed provide for tax-payer funded abortions. Krautter claims he has an A-score with the Montana Family Foundation, but that score did not take into account the Medicaid vote when tabulating scores.

Additionally, Doctors for a Healthy Montana — comprised of physicians — have claimed just this morning via their Facebook page that "Joel Krautter voted for taxpayer funded abortions." There is no question that abortions are paid for in Montana by Medicaid.

Richland County voted overwhelmingly to oppose Medicaid expansion in 2018 as did the entire state. Why did he vote for this entitlement program even if abortions were not provided for (which they are)?

As a long-time pro-life advocate, we begged legislators not to vote for Medicaid expansion for the sake of the unborn and Krautter along with the Solutions Caucus crossed party lines to side with Democrats. No other legislators from nearby districts to HD35 voted for this bill (because they are Republicans).

There is nothing "fake" about the factual reporting on Krautter's pro-abortion vote. Politicians produce enough fake news for all of us.

ATTENTION: IMPORTANT CORONAVIRUS UPDATE

As a local grocer, we understand the critical nature of our business and the service we provide to the community. We have been monitoring, planning and working diligently to address the Coronavirus (Covid-19) situation and its effects on our community.

- Store hours may change – We will be evaluating this daily and will do our best to communicate. Changes may happen due to truck delivery changes, need for extensive store cleaning and staff shortages due to illness.
- Courtesy to the elderly – We are concerned for the well-being of our seniors and those who are vulnerable to the virus. From now through at least the end of March we would like our first hours of the day to be set aside for our most vulnerable shoppers to have a safe and stress-free shopping experience. We will not be policing this at the door, we are just asking for the community's help, to allow our elderly family members and neighbors a chance to shop in the morning in the cleanest and healthiest environment we can offer. If you can, please delay your shopping until after 9 am.
- No weekly ads for the next three weeks – We will not be running sale ads for the weeks of 3/18, 3/25, 4/1 and possibly beyond. This is not by design, but rather because of so many out-of-stock items it's impossible to guarantee availability. We will continue to pass savings along to our customers where we can.

Thank you for your understanding

Saying Yes When I Mean No

By Lois Stephens

Most of us were raised to be respectful, to offer help in times of need, to make ourselves useful, and to say yes when someone asked a favor. We were taught to do what we could to help and assist someone when asked or needed, and to try hard not to hurt anyone’s feelings.

I’ve decided I’ve mixed up a few of those directives along the path of life. I know that when people ask me to do something or they want a favor of one sort or another, I have mistakenly decided somewhere or other along the way that to say no would upset them, put them at a disadvantage, cause them problems, or leave them in a true bind.

This leaves me with the excruciating option of saying ‘yes’ when most of the time I really want to say ‘no’. I put myself out, and I cause problems in my own life because I say yes when I really need to say no. I find myself doing favors for someone, staying late at work or coming in early, giving up my own plans, and having to rearrange my own life schedule because I have this terrible inability to say NO.

This unfortunate state of affairs then spills over into other aspects of my life. I end up staying at a job, or performing some sort of volunteer work long after the thrill of the situation disappears and turns into drudgery or just another have-to-but really-don’t-want-to situation. However, I continue to sit on commitments because no one else steps forward. I stay at a job long after I need to leave because help is hard to find. I accept changed schedules, additional tasks, and no end of other inconveniences for myself just because I cannot say no with any authority. A sad look, a sigh of despair, a comment that someone really will be totally at a loss if I cannot help them out in a particular situation will generally bring out my feelings of guilt or sympathy. So, I grit my teeth, agree to one more day or one more week or one more whatever it is that someone else seems to need or want in order to better their own predicament.

As an example, an acquaintance asked me last month if I could help him out on a project for a few days a week during May and early June. I do not want to assist in this endeavor, as it truly does not interest me. Did I say that? Of course not, I waffled, even though I definitely know I do NOT want to do it. I prevaricated, told him that I wasn’t sure yet what I was doing this summer or what my schedule would be. We left it at that, but if he asks again, I already know I can use a conflicting schedule and other obligations as an excuse. But why do I feel the need to have an excuse? Why can’t I just say, “no thank you, that is not for me, but thanks for asking”?

I realize we are in good part a result of our upbringing, but temperament plays a role as well. It is very difficult for me to disappoint or upset anyone, and that leads to my downfall. It is not only the agreeing to do something, but the trying to gracefully extricate myself from a situation that started out well but has deteriorated over time due to multiple reasons. I find it especially difficult trying to tell a friend that I need to stop doing what I am doing when I know if I stop, it will inconvenience her in many ways.

In short, I put my own life and desires on hold in order to help someone else out, all because I have this difficulty with saying the word NO.

You would think a two-letter word would be simple to pronounce and use when needed, but apparently this is not true in my case.

This sad state of affairs caused me to miss out on summer last year. I have done a lot of thinking about this situation, and I have decided that this summer I will muster enough backbone to make some changes that will benefit me. I would really like to see the inside of my new greenhouse more than three times this summer. I want to have a garden. I’d love to put the new four-wheel drive self-propelled push lawnmower that we bought last fall to good use this season, as I do enjoy cutting grass. I want to help my husband cut, split, and stack wood for next winter. I plan to take my dog on long walks, sit and enjoy an adult beverage with the neighbors, and I expect to float the Madison this summer. I have a trip planned to visit my sister in the spring, I expect we will meet in the fall for our annual sister trip, and the list of adventures and goals for myself continues to grow. These desires and plans require that I change direction, spend less time working for others and more time working for me, and of course that entails that I for the most part say NO when people ask for long term help or for favors that require enormous amounts of time and energy. I cannot obligate myself by saying yes when I desperately want and need to say no.

I have worked all my life. I have held multiple part time jobs since I retired, and although most of those part time jobs are fun, in combination they do add up in hours each day. I expect to continue working some of these jobs as they stimulate my brain, keep me interested and give me a feeling of accomplishment. However, it is time to work less outside the home and work more at home for me, myself, and I. Sounds selfish in a way, but it truly is not. I have reached the point where I need to look after myself more than I need to look after others.

Coronavirus Update Reynolds Market Sidney

Submitted by Libby Berndt

As a local grocer, we understand the critical nature of our business and the service we provide to the local community. We have been monitoring, planning and working diligently to address the Coronavirus (Covid-19) situation and its effects on our community.

The safety and health of our shoppers, staff, and community are our primary concern. We are committed to taking action in order to prevent any unnecessary risk. As the situation rapidly changes, our team is adapting and implementing best practices throughout our store. We will communicate those changes when they happen. We have implemented a variety of precautionary measures and will continue to do so as the situation unfolds.

In the last week, we have seen a dramatic uptick in business. This has led to us having to limit quantities on many items. We are also experiencing a high volume of out of stock items. We anticipate this continuing for the foreseeable future. We appreciate the understanding, cooperation and support you have shown. We are all in this together!

Important Updates:

- Store hours may change – We will be evaluating this daily and will do our best to communicate this ahead of time. These changes may happen due to truck delivery changes, need for extensive store cleaning, and staff shortages due to illness.

- Courtesy to the elderly – This has been suggested by many of our concerned shoppers and we are also concerned for the well-being of our seniors and those who are vulnerable to the virus. From now through at least the end of March we would like our first hours of the day to be set-aside for our most vulnerable shoppers to have a safe and stress-free shopping experience. We will not be policing this at the door, as we know these uncertain times have caused changes for many of our community's citizens. If everyone helps, we can allow our elderly family members and neighbors a chance to shop in the morning in the cleanest and healthiest environment we can offer. This will take everyone working together. If you can, please delay your shopping until after 9 a.m.

- No weekly ads for the next three weeks – We will not be running sale ads for the weeks of 3/18, 3/25, and 4/1. This is not by design, but rather because of so many out-of-stock items it is impossible to guarantee any specific items will or will not be available. We will continue to pass savings along to our customers where we can. As soon as we are able, we will run our weekly ads again.

Thanks,
Your Reynolds Market Team

Letter To The Editor

I saw Rep. Joel Krautter's article in the Roundup, as did many conservatives around the state, and I want to respond to it. As the former executive director of the Montana Family Coalition, I need to respond to it for the sake of honesty. The first thing that you need to know is that Krautter, in calling pro-life voters "extremists," is actually mimicking word-for-word a fake news site set up by the leftist "Solutions Caucus" called the "Extremist Chronicles." Favored by the progressives with whom Krautter caucuses in Helena against Republicans, this site refers to all conservatives as "extremists," a term he uses multiple times in reference to conservatives in his Roundup letter. Ironically, Krautter borrows from this anonymous left-wing site while lecturing Richland County voters about using anonymous sources. Regarding Krautter's vote with Democrats on Medicaid Expansion, the fact is the Montana Family Foundation released a brief prepared by their attorney at Milanovich Law Firm explaining with utmost clarity that both abortion and gender realignment surgeries are paid for by Montana Medicaid. It is only with extreme dishonesty that Krautter then cites his voting record with Montana Family Foundation in defense of his vote for Medicaid Expansion. In fact, Montana Family Foundation explicitly warns voters that their scorecards do not reflect the vote on Medicaid Expansion and candidates should not flaunt their scorecard as a defense for that vote to expand abortion coverage. Furthermore, Krautter attempts to deceive Richland County by mentioning the provision requiring a work requirement for Medicaid added to the bill. What Krautter conveniently did not inform voters about is that this provision – Krautter's excuse for voting for the bill – was struck down by the federal courts and Medicaid Expansion will go on without that provision. Why did Krautter not include that detail? Among the many Democrats who donated to Krautter in 2019 is Blair

Fjeseth, who is the former communications director for Linda McCulloch, the former Democrat Secretary of State. She runs Powerhouse Montana, a women's organization that seeks to "connect Montana women to the mentors and resources they need to succeed" (according to their website). One of the resources and mentors Powerhouse Montana connects women to is Planned Parenthood of Montana officer, Christina Roberts. While Krautter may volunteer for the Sunrise Pregnancy Clinic and say he's pro-life, his voting record says differently.

Now more than ever we need true Conservatives representing our State. We have grown weary of smooth-talking politicians who say one thing and do another.

- Julie A. Millam, Helena, MT

Why is Breakfast Important?

By Carrie Krug, MSU/Richland County FCS Extension Agent

Your alarm goes off in the morning after hitting snooze a couple of times. Now you need to get moving, or you will be late! Whether you live by yourself or you have a family; in the midst of a busy morning, breakfast can be the last thing on our minds, or you find yourself falling into the same breakfast routine. However, even in the heat of a busy morning, eating breakfast is a great way to jumpstart your day and provides many benefits to your health. In the article "Break the Fast with Breakfast" (2020), written by Melissa Wdowik, assistant professor at Colorado State University, indicated five benefits of eating breakfast:

1. Improved blood sugar regulation-as found in several studies. When breakfast-eaters were compared to non-breakfast eaters, the breakfast-eaters had more stable blood sugar levels after other meals throughout the day. Insulin sensitivity seemed to improve (throughout the day) when individuals ate within two hours of waking up.

2. Protection against heart disease- research has shown that those who skip breakfast have a higher chance of gaining weight and have higher cholesterol/ blood pressure levels, possibly relating to overeating later in the day.

3. Less overeating-when someone eats breakfast, they have a higher likelihood of feeling satisfied and are less likely to over eat throughout the day.

4. Better nutrition-studies have shown that breakfast eaters eat more fruit, veggies, dairy, and whole grains not only at breakfast but throughout their day.

5. Enhanced brain power- eating breakfast can boost reasoning, learning, and verbal skills, in addition to enhancing attention, memory, and creativity.

If you have a busy schedule and breakfast is a challenge, try having some easy grab and go items on hand such as fruit, yogurt, or protein bars. If you find yourself having a couple of extra minutes in the morning, try oatmeal, scramble a few eggs, or have a yogurt parfait. If you plan, make some overnight oats the night before or meal prep on the weekend and try freezing breakfast burritos or sandwiches to have on hand. Your breakfast possibilities are endless!

What's important is finding what works for you and your schedule. The full article written by Melissa Wdowik can be found at <https://extension.colostate.edu/topic-areas/nutrition-food-safety-health/nutrition-news/nutrition-news-break-fast-breakfast/>.

Ler Family Continues More Than A Century Of Farming In Richland County

By Stephanie Ler
Even Ler homesteaded in what is now rural Savage in 1910 marking the beginning of more than a century of family farming, carried on now by grandsons, Matt and David Ler.

Born and raised in Norway, Even Ler chased adventure to America in 1907, and made his way toward Montana. Enticed by free land to be had under Homestead Act, Even was granted a certificate of register for the south half of Section 10, Township 20, north of Range 57, on June 22, 1910. The deed was later finalized in 1916.

Shortly after arriving in Montana, Even set up a homestead shack near Dunlap Creek, and sent for his wife, Ingeborg. According to a family history penned by Sandy (Twyla) Ler, "money was short and work was abundant. Breaking sod with team and plow was grueling work for man as well as beast," making reference to the Ler's first farming efforts. Unfortunately, by 1928, Even and Ingeborg determined that "they just weren't going to be able to hang on to the homestead. This arid prairie could never produce enough on a quarter section to make a go of it, no matter how good it was farmed nor how hard you worked," the family history reads. In April 1929, the Lers purchased a half section northeast of the original homestead for $30 an acre.

At the new place, the Lers farmed and raised turkeys, a common practice for this area in that time. The turkeys were packed in barrels and shipped by rail. The Lers made about 45¢ per pound, including the head, feet and innards, averaging about $9 a piece.

Some time in the 1920's, "grain prices were low, grasshoppers thrived and crops were poor so the Lers let the land go back to Phillips [from whom they had purchased it] and just rented it for a while." Many farmers made ends meet by working on the roads for the WPA.

In that time, harvest required "lots of hands," being done by threshing crews one farm at a time. "First, the crop was cut with a binder, then shocked... at threshing time bundle haulers took a team and a wagon, pitching bundles into the wagon where another arranged the bundles. Next they were hauled to the threshing machine." When headers finally came around, things became easier. "The header cut the grain and piled it up in a big stack...They'd line two stacks up...and pull the threshing machine between the stacks and two guys could feed the grain into the thresher. Lots of noise, chaff and work. The grain haulers had to haul the grain off and with scoop shovels, shovel it up and in to granaries." The story concludes, "No wonder they needed a lot of help, today's farmers feed many more people with much less work."

According to Matt and David Ler, two of Even's grandsons, that statement is true, though the farming lifestyle is never short on work. The brothers run Dunlap Creek Ranch, a commercial cow/calf operation and farm both dryland and irrigated cropland, raising winter wheat and spring wheat, alternating with safflower, peas and lentils.

Matt and David took over the farming operation in the 1980s, following their father Harold's retirement. Advances in equipment, technology, and chemicals allow them to successfully farm the same fields that their family once gave up. "You can cover ground much faster now, with bigger equipment," David said.

Advances even since the '80s have made farming more feasible, according to David. The Lers have expanded to pulse crops, like peas and lentils, following the burgeoning market. "Technology has changed a lot so it's easier to farm those crops," David said. Because of advances in chemical technologies, the Lers switched to continuous crop, and are less affected by moisture conditions. A drought in 1988 yielded little crop, but a similar drought in 2017 had much higher yields.

During their time, Matt and David have taken advantage of other farm technologies and advances to improve their operation. They've installed solar pumps on two of their stock wells, installed two pivots to help conserve water, and have planted cover crops to help take stress off of native pasture.

The Lers continue to farm and raise cattle around Dunlap Creek, on some of the same land claimed by their grandfather over 100 years ago. In 2017, Dunlap Creek Ranch was awarded the Richland County Conservation District's Co-operator of the year for their efforts to help preserve their farmland for future generations. Neither David nor Matt could imagine life outside of farming. "Thirty-five years went really fast," Matt said. "It's a good way of life," David echoed.

Get great-looking bales quickly and easily. It all starts with the Vermeer R2800 twin rake, which produces box-shaped windrows. Built to last, the R2800 allows you to adjust the width of the windrows to match your baler. Control the width, basket lift and folding/unfolding systems right from the cab of your tractor.

MSU, Partners To Launch Website To Share Resources & Solutions For Farmers & Ranchers Under Stress

By Anne Cantrell, MSU News Service

Bozeman, MT — A group of individuals and organizations from across Montana, led by Montana State University Extension, are collaborating to provide resources and solutions for farmers and ranchers under stress.

“We know from various research that there is a high level of stress in life, specifically among farmers and ranchers in rural areas like Montana,” said Michelle Grocke, MSU Extension Health & Wellness Specialist and MSU Department of Health and Human Development assistant professor. A range of issues can cause stress, she said, from commodity prices, weather and crop yield to debt load, passing a farm or ranch to the next generation, family issues, and injuries or illness. She added that it could lead to mental illness, increased risk of suicide and other health issues.

Now, a team of Montanans known as the Montana Farm/Ranch Stress Prevention Advisory Council is working to create a new website that will host resources to help farmers, ranchers and other community members better understand the causes of stress — as well as how to manage it. The website is expected to launch this summer.

“Ultimately, we hope these resources will lessen the risk of mental illness and suicide among Montana’s farming and ranching communities,” Grocke said.

The website is a direct response to a need MSU Extension staff continue to hear about from people across the state, said Suzanne Stluka, MSU Extension associate director.

“MSU Extension staff began to share tough stories of how chronic stress was impacting agriculture producers,” she said. “We knew we needed to do something.”

The team working on the website is composed of more than 20 members representing agricultural, health, tribal, veteran, local government and MSU communities. Project leaders are Grocke, Stluka and Alison Brennan, MSU Extension mental health specialist and Department of Health and Human Development assistant professor. In addition to the MSU Department of Health and Human Development and MSU Extension, partner organizations include Montana Farm Bureau, Custer County Commission, Garfield County Commission, Montana USDA Farm Service Agency, MSU Extension Local Government Center and the Montana Department of Public Health and Human Services.

Grocke noted that an important component of the project is its accessibility: Individuals can access the resources anywhere there is an internet connection, whether it’s the library or their own homes.

The project is funded by a $32,737 grant from the Montana Healthcare Foundation.

“We feel really grateful and excited that they felt this was of value for them to support,” Grocke said. “A lot of the projects this foundation supports are collaborative in nature, innovative and forward-looking. We were thrilled to have them think this is a project deserving of their funding.”

The advisory council hopes the resources and materials will spark discussions about the causes and effects of stress — and, in the process, remove stigma associated with the topic, according to Brennan. They also hope it will equip community members with evidence-based farm stress and mental wellness resources to assist them in managing their stress.

“There is, in fact, quite a lot of stigma still surrounding discussions about mental health, mental illness, mental disorders and suicide,” Brennan said. “My hope is that by providing a centralized location for relevant information running the gamut of topics, from plant diseases, weather and financial management, to stress management techniques, to suicide prevention best practices, we can start some crucial conversations about mental health in rural Montana, reduce stigma and save lives.”

Darla Tyler-McSherry, member Montana Farm/Ranch Stress Prevention Advisory Council and MSU-Billings student health director, said goals for the website include bringing attention to the issue of suicide in Montana’s farm and ranch communities and giving people practical, easy-to-incorporate strategies to improve their mental health.

“Additionally, I want to communicate the message that if you or a loved one is struggling with thoughts of suicide, you are not alone and effective help is available,” Tyler-McSherry said. “Lastly, I want this project to help confirm the notion that seeking help is not a sign of weakness, but rather, a sign of incredible strength.”

More information is available at montana.edu/wellness_extn/stress-management/mt_farm_stress_clearing_house/project_page.html. To learn more or to offer feedback on the website, contact Grocke at 406-994-4711 or michelle.grocke@montana.edu.
