Revin' Up the Richland Community Complex to be held June 13th

By Meagan Dotson

Revin' Up the Richland Community Complex (RCC) will be held Saturday June 13th at the Richland County Fairgrounds in Sidney, MT, bringing the community together and raising awareness about the RCC. With some of the events being previously established, it seemed like a great opportunity to bring the community together and support multiple organizations, which is what the RCC is all about.

"The goal with the Richland Community Complex is to enhance what our community already has for all ages," said Lisa Gorder, Project Coordinator of the RCC Board. "The Complex will enhance our quality of life here; it's something that will benefit everyone."

Tentative plans for the RCC include an auditorium/theater space for music, dance, and theatrical performances, library, daycare, theater, a fitness and wellness center with an aquatics center that includes a physical therapy pool, the space to accommodate sports such as softball, soccer, and basketball, as well as being an outlet for seniors to stay active and involved. There will be an arena which will be able to host large events, but can also be sectioned off into three separate gymnasiums, making sports practices easier. The hope is that it will be utilized by multiple organizations such as FFA and 4-H and will be readily available to local schools, making it possible to host large tournaments for instance. Gorder explains that the more people and organizations that share walls and therein share costs, the more cost effective the building will be. The RCC will need to be able to sustain itself through memberships and events; bringing in events would then increase local economic stability. Proceeds raised during Revin' Up the Richland Community Complex will be put towards a planning study set to begin on June 16th. The planning study will serve as a road map for how to proceed with the building project.

The event will be a fun-filled day with something for just about everyone beginning with a community breakfast hosted by the Cutting Edge Dance Studio from 6am until 11am. The Neal Hermanson Memorial Ranch Rodeo starts at 8am with the Ranch Horse Competition and the rodeo will follow at 2pm.

Registration for the Darren Linde Memorial Run will be at 10am at the National Guard Armory and the run will start at 11am. There is a $25 registration fee for individuals or $50 for family registration. Strollers and children five and under are free.

Food trucks will be on sight from 11am until midnight with a 'People's Choice' award for the best food contest.

From 11am until 4pm cars, trucks, and motorcycles will be drivin' in and revin' up for the Car Show. There is a $20 entry fee plus $10 for each additional entry; tickets are $5 and kids under five get in free. The Doug Filler Memorial stereo competition takes place from 4pm until 8pm, judged by the US Autosound Competition Team.

Be sure to get your tickets for the evening concert, held in the Richland County Event Center, as Emerson Drive helps 'drive forward' the Richland Community Complex. The Grammy nominated band will be joined by special guests Dan Hunthausen & the Trainwrecks. Tickets are $25 and include car show admission, but hurry because there are a limited number available; they can be purchased at Reynolds Market, Candlewood Suites, Meadowlark Brewing, Best Western Golden Prairie Inn & Suites, Richland Inn & Suites, and the Sidney Chamber of Commerce.

"We can work together to make our community great and give future generations more opportunities than what are here now," Gorder encouraged.

For anyone interested in becoming a food vendor, entering in the Car Show, or just needing more information, contact Co-Chairs of Revin' Up the RCC, Lisa Gorder at 406-480-3193 or Billie Hillesland at 406-480-3173.

May Is Asthma Awareness Month

DPHHS Asthma Control Program Offers Tools And Resources To Help

Submitted by Kay Nice, RCHD

Department of Public Health and Human Services (DPHHS) officials say that nearly 1 in 12 people in Montana currently have asthma.

Further, 6 out of 10 adults and children with asthma report the condition limits their activities.

However, the DPHHS Asthma Control Program is working with certified asthma educators and other health care providers, childcare professionals, home visitors, and community members across the state to help people better understand how to make changes in their day-to-day life to control their asthma. These are changes such as accessing quality, guidelines-based care for asthma, gaining skills to improve inhaler technique, and identifying what triggers asthma and how to remove triggers from home, work, or school.

According to Jessie Fernandes of the Montana Asthma Control Program, the key is learning how to self-manage the disease. "It is important that a person knows their triggers and their medications and knows how to respond early to an attack," she said. "The program works to help Montanans have better control of their disease and better quality of life."

She said this is all information that can be developed into an Asthma Action Plan with a primary care provider. An Asthma Action Plan provides information about what medications to use when, and how to respond to signs of an asthma attack.

Even though asthma can be controlled, many people with asthma in Montana live with frequent symptoms, activity limitations, and poor quality of life; about half (52%) of adults and one third (36%) of children with current asthma in Montana report asthma symptoms indicating that their asthma is not well or very poorly controlled. "Well-controlled asthma shouldn't limit activities," Fernandes says.

The Montana Asthma Control Program conducts various activities around the state, many of which focus heavily on providing asthma self-management education. One activity, the Montana Asthma Home Visiting Program (MAP), has demonstrated that upon completion, the percent of enrolled children with good inhaler technique increased from 26% to 93%, the percent having an Asthma Action Plan increased from 25% to 89%, and the percent of children having symptoms on all 30 days of the last month decreased from 23% to 4%. Other activities, conducted with health care facilities and school nurses, work to achieve similar results.

May is National Asthma and Allergy Awareness Month and May 5 is World Asthma Day. "Now is the peak season for asthma- and allergy-related medical problems, so it's a great time to educate and spread awareness," Fernandes said.

For more information about Asthma and Allergy Awareness Month, please visit the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America website at www.aafa.org. A toolkit with information for people with asthma, schools, public health practitioners, and others is at www.cdc.gov/asthma/world\_asthma\_day.htm.

To contact the Montana Asthma Control Program" with To refer a child to the Montana Asthma Control Program, call the Richland County Health Department at 406-433-2207 and to learn more about asthma activities in Montana communities, go to dphhs.mt.gov/asthma.

Suicide Prevention Is A State And Community Responsibility: SMR Team Works At State Level While Upcoming ASIST Workshop Provides Local Suicide First Aid Training

By Meagan Dotson

In 2012 Montana was the first state to form a Suicide Mortality Review (SMR) Team. After volleying with Wyoming year after year for the highest suicide rate per capita in the nation, the legislature moved to do something about it on a government level. Reverend Vicki Waddington of the Lonsdale United Methodist Church in Sidney serves on that review team, made up of clergy, law enforcement, social services, mental health professionals, and coroners. Her husband, Mark Waddington, wrote a letter to the Governor recommending her for the position. Vicki Waddington, caring by nature and in the business of helping others, had been involved in suicide awareness for eight years prior to this, adamant that no one should suffer to the point of taking their own life.

Todd Bergerson, Waddington's son, is described as a great kid with a great sense of humor. He had good friends, played football, loved biking and fireworks, and was developing a deep interest in music, playing the tuba and bass guitar and singing in the church choir.

"He had a beautiful singing voice. He used to come up behind me and flip the back of my hair.... It drove me nuts," Waddington fondly recalls. "He was starting to grow into a teenager with a heart for other people."

On August 31, 2000, at 13 years, 5 months, and 15 days, Todd Bergerson passed away, having died by suicide. Waddington recounts that they had no idea that anything was wrong and discussed "fogging", a behavior displayed by many with suicidal thoughts.

"Fogging" refers to seemingly normal behavior displayed in an attempt to protect those around them from knowing the truth, and to prevent burdening them with the severity of the situation.

Three years later, Waddington was asked to speak at the Jr. High School in Miles City, which happened to be on her son's birthday, and she could see that it hit close to home for her audience; some of the students had known Bergerson.

"You could see that they needed to be allowed to grieve, ask questions, and be angry. People don't want to talk about it but they need to, especially kids because they are too young to deal with the pain themselves. We have to be willing to learn how to talk to them because children grieve differently than adults; your grieving isn't over when the funeral is over," said Waddington.

Today she is part of the SMR Team, which reviews every suicide in the state and compiles information on everything from education level to relational status to the day of the week it occurred on, identifying risk factors, patterns, trends and figuring out where the 'gaps' are.

"The SMR team is a state-wide effort to identify factors associated with suicide in an effort to develop prevention strategies... The purpose of the review team is to determine if a suicide was preventable and the factors associated with the suicide. The prevention of suicide is both the policy of the state of Montana and a community responsibility." – Suicide Mortality Review Team

"There is a stigma that comes with suicide and I want to work towards ending that stigma," Waddington stated. "This area tends to have a 'cowboy-up' mentality and people are always afraid of what they don't understand, but it is an illness that can kill you just like cancer and diabetes. We work to prevent and treat those illnesses, so why not this one? This is a matter of compassion and medical science."

According to the Summary Report for January 1, 2014 – August 31, 2014 (compiled by the SMR Team), it seems clear that so little is known about the facts of suicide, there are many common misconceptions. For instance, more than half of those that die by suicide don't leave a note, the most common drugs in a person's system are caffeine and tobacco, with 41% having alcohol and 9% having methamphetamines in their system. Veterans made up 28% of state-wide suicides, 40% of all suicide victims had identified mental health disorders and of those 66% suffered from depression. Males made up 85% of victims, white males ages 45-64 are the largest suicide demographic with health, mental health, and relational loss all seeming to be contributing factors and unfortunately, of all the suicides reviewed, 75% had warning signs identified. Tragically, those affected by suicide are 4-7 times more likely to die by suicide themselves.

One of the most important factors in suicide prevention is community involvement. District II Drug & Alcohol will be providing suicide first aid skills to the community through an Applied Suicide Intervention Skills Training (ASIST) workshop. The no-cost ASIST workshop will be held June 8th and June 9th at the Assembly of God Church, 414 E Main Street in Sidney. Participants will learn how to identify suicidal behavior and will develop skills in preventing suicides. Books, materials, breakfast, and refreshments will be provided each day and continuing education credits are available. Anyone interested must register for the workshop by contacting Nicole Hackley with District II Drug and Alcohol at 406-433-4097 or emailing her at nicolehackley@yahoo.com.

"People don't know what to do and if they should take someone seriously when threats are made, but it's better to have that person mad at you than for them to end up dead. Asking if someone is thinking about committing suicide isn't going to put the idea in their head and if someone has a plan, a means, and an opportunity, they are in immediate danger and you need to call 911. I had no reason to believe that Todd was in danger of taking his own life because I just didn't know what to look for. You don't have to be someone's best friend to help them. You just need to care enough to help someone when you see them suffering," Waddington explained.

Open Season Launched For Bakken Crude Oil Gathering System In McKenzie County, North Dakota

Submitted by Tie Shank
DENVER: American Midstream Partners, LP (AMID) (the "Partnership") announced on Friday that American Midstream Bakken, LLC, a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Partnership, is conducting a binding open season for a proposed approximately 50-mile Bakken crude oil gathering and transportation system in the core of McKenzie County, North Dakota (the "Bakken System") to transport up to 40,000 barrels per day (Bbl/d) of crude oil for delivery to major intrastate and interstate pipeline systems beginning in June 2015. As proposed, the Bakken System will have initial transportation capacity up to approximately 15,000 Bbl/d with the ability to expand up to approximately 40,000 Bbl/d. During the binding open season, potential shippers have the opportunity to obtain crude oil transportation service on the Bakken System on a committed or uncommitted basis at various tier-based rates according to volumes transported. Parties interested in becoming Committed Shippers can do so by making long-term acreage or volumetric dedications for crude oil gathering and transportation service on the Bakken System. The open season will also provide potential shippers with the opportunity to deliver volumes into the system via a truck rack. The open season will last approximately 30 days, closing on June 22, 2015. Shipper Inquiries Bona fide potential shippers that would like to receive copies of the open season documents and proposed tariff(s) must first sign a confidentiality agreement. During the binding open season, comments, questions, or changes to the general terms and conditions of the proposed tariffs, services and/or routes are due in writing by noon Central Time on June 22, 2015. Interested parties will have the opportunity to execute committed agreements for crude oil transportation service on the proposed gathering pipeline system. For more information about the open season, or to obtain copies of the open season documents and proposed tariff(s), please contact Rod Donovan, Vice President of Business Development at rdonovan@americanmidstream.com or (713) 815-3970.

Sidney ARS Field Days To Feature ‘Drones 101’ Workshop

Submitted by Beth Redlin, USDA/ARS
Both the dryland field days co-sponsored by the USDA Agricultural Research Service's Northern Plains Agricultural Research Laboratory in Sidney, MT will include a special hour-long "Drones 101" workshop designed to acquaint tour goers at both sites with the basics of the machines. Formally known as unmanned aerial systems (UAS), these small aircraft hold big promise for agriculture. Two models will be featured at the Sidney ARS Dryland Farm Field Day to be held on Friday, June 19th, as well as at the annual Froid Research Farm Field Day on Thursday, June 25th. Speakers for the "drones 101" workshop include Brian McGinnis of Sidney who has been working with drones for the past three years as a hobbyist. In addition to discussing the rules and regulations required for flying drones, he will also demonstrate his latest quadcopter. McGinnis owns Exdivio Solutions, Inc., a computer consulting firm in Sidney. Joining him at the June field days will be Roger Meyer PLS, a Registered Land Surveyor, of Lambert who will demonstrate the Trimble UX5, a fixed wing UAV. Meyer, of Montana Land and Aerial Surveys, is one of only a few Montanans that have applied for and received a Section 333 exemption from the Federal Aviation Administration that allows him to use his craft for commercial operations. "We're pleased to have Brian and Roger share their information and expertise at these upcoming field days," Sidney ARS dryland Agronomist Brett Allen said. "The drone technology is still new in agriculture, but it holds a lot of promise for the future. These basic presentations will give interested producers and others the opportunity to see a drone in action and ask questions of the operators." Again, the two field days featuring the drone workshop include: The 2015 Sidney ARS Dryland Field Day on Friday, June 19, from 9 am to 12:30 pm. The event is co-sponsored by the Richland County Extension Service and includes a number of other talks and a free lunch. The Sidney research farm is located about 4 miles north of Sidney off MT Highway 16. Take a left at County Road 129 and a second left on County Road 346. The 2015 Froid Research Farm Field Day on Thursday, June 25th, from 1-5 pm. It, too, includes numerous other talks of interest to farmers and ranchers and concludes with a free steak supper sponsored by the Sheridan and Roosevelt County Conservation Districts. Other event sponsors include the Sheridan and Roosevelt County Extension offices. The Froid farm is located 8 miles north of Culbertson on MT Highway 16. More tour details for both the Sidney and Froid events will be available shortly. Pesticide points are also pending. For more information, contact Beth Redlin at 406-433-9427 or by email at beth.redlin@ars.usda.gov.

Schmitz Retires After 35 Years

By Jaimee Green
A retirement party is being held on June 10, at 5:30 p.m. to honor Sharon Schmitz's 35 years of service to Roosevelt Medical Center. Weather permitting, the celebration is taking place on the patio, but will be moved inside if necessary. "I think everyone is going to miss her. She was not just a co-worker who wore so many hats, but a friend, a supportive person, someone to look up to who was great at what she did, and always did it with her fiery passion," said Amber Bond, Clinic Coordinator. For the last three-and-a-half decades, Sharon Schmitz has watched the healthcare industry grow and change. This month, she is retiring from her role at Roosevelt Medical Center as Business Manager for 34 years and as the Better Health Improvement Specialist for the last year. But, she has no plans of slowing down. "My husband Gene and I are at the age where we are old enough to retire and want to enjoy our time while we are still young enough and able enough to do the things we have always dreamed of," she said. They also want to spend more time with their children and grandchildren. As excited as she is about spending more time with family, Schmitz will miss the staff who have come to be her extended RMC family. "The greatest highlight of my career is the quality of people I have gotten to work with," she said. "I think the people here are just wonderful. I have depended on them over the years and I treasure those friendships that have been forged along the way," she added. Schmitz began her career at RMC in 1980, but not as the manager of the business office. She first began working in the housekeeping department and after six months moved into the new clinic where she worked as a medical assistant and receptionist. There, she was instrumental in helping design and implement policies and procedures and certifying the RHC in 1992. Her work provided a perfect background for her to take on the role as business office manager beginning in 1998. In her earliest years at RMC, the organization consisted of two hallways dedicated to 32 nursing home residents and two halls for as many as 15 hospital patients. When RMC transitioned from nursing home status to long-term care status, she was directly involved in helping make the huge regulatory process smooth. She worked with many providers throughout the years. "Dr. Mann was an excellent teacher. I came into this job cold, off the street, but over the years, the encouragement I received always made me feel like I was making a difference," she recalled. More recently, Schmitz faced the challenges of growing federal regulations along with the implementation of electronic health records. "The days of handwritten orders and charting are long over. Documentation requirements have quadrupled since I began this journey, but I have always enjoyed the challenges presented in healthcare," she said. This last year she has worked as the Better Health Improvement Specialist, working through a grant that has enabled RMC to receive leadership and staff training, as well as purchase three electronic smart boards for the facility and community to use. When she retires, her remaining duties will be absorbed by the appropriate departments. "I will miss the everyday challenges that come with working in healthcare. RMC has always been a good place to work where the leadership is forward thinking, the staff is kind and the primary care is exceptional," she said.

Summer Safety on the Water

By North Dakota Game & Fish Dept.
Failure to wear a personal flotation device is the main reason people lose their lives in water recreation accidents. North Dakota Game and Fish Department boat and water safety coordinator Nancy Boldt said safety begins with wearing a personal flotation device, and knowing what's below the surface of the water. "Water recreationists need to be alert and safe," Boldt said. "Swimmers need to know the water's depth, as serious injuries can occur from diving into water. Large objects hidden below the water's surface can lead to significant injury." North Dakota law requires all children ages 10 and younger to wear a personal flotation device while in boats of less than 27 feet in length. The law also requires all personal watercraft users to wear a life jacket, as well as anyone towed on skis, tubes, boards or other similar devices. Water users should make sure to wear life jackets that are the appropriate size, and in good condition. It is also important that children wear a PFD while swimming. Water skiers and tubers should wear a life jacket with four nylon straps rather than one with a zipper, because straps are stronger than zippers upon impact with water. Anglers or persons paddling a canoe should opt for a PFD that is comfortable enough to wear for an entire outing. Water skiers and tubers are reminded it takes three to ski and tube. When a person is towed on water skis or a similar device, an observer other than the operator is required on the vessel. North Dakota boaters also are reminded that marine VHF radios are an important part of boat safety that should not be improperly used by operators. These radios are intended for boat operators who are in distress and facing an emergency situation. Regulations to help ensure safe boating this summer are found in the 2014-16 North Dakota Fishing Guide. A more comprehensive listing is available in the North Dakota Boat and Water Safety Guide or the Boat North Dakota education book. These guides are available online at the Game and Fish website, gf.nd.gov, by email at ndgf@nd.gov, or at a local Game and Fish Department office.

Blessing Sale to Provide Safe House for Trafficked Women

Submitted by Lynn Sloan, Fairview Alliance Church

The Bakken area is in desperate need of a safe house for victims of human trafficking. Windie Lazenko of 4 Her North Dakota is hard at work to establish such a facility, and residents of Richland County are invited to help.

The annual "Blessing Sale" at Fairview Alliance Church will channel all proceeds to the safe house project for the second year in a row. Last year your generosity provided over $5,000 to 4 Her and we're hoping to exceed that figure this year in order to help meet this urgent need.

This "priceless" rummage sale will be held Saturday, June 20th from 8:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. at the Fairview Alliance Church, 702 Western Avenue, across from Fairview High School. Very few items will be priced as shoppers are encouraged to take whatever they need and contribute whatever they wish. Get a blessing. Give a blessing. Be a blessing.

Donated sale items are welcome and may be dropped off at the church by June 17th. Please contact Pastor Kelly Sloan at 406-742-5425 for additional details. See 4hernd.org for more information on Windie's work.

Windie Lazenko will also be speaking following the sale at 6:30 p.m. and at the Church's 11:00 am Sunday service. Come and learn more about the situation in the Bakken, how you can be alert to the signs of trafficking in your neighborhood, and ways you can be part of the solution.

Dam Safety – A Shared Responsibility

Submitted by Montana Dept. Natural Resources and Conservation

HELENA, Mont. —The Montana Department of Natural Resources and Conservation (DNRC) will observe the 30th anniversary of the Montana Dam Safety Act on May 31, 2015, which is also designated as National Dam Safety Awareness Day.

Laurence Siroky, chief of DNRC's Water Operations Bureau and one of the original architects of the 1985 Dam Safety Act, noted the law was aimed at protecting Montanans from dam failure and encouraging responsible use and maintenance of dams. "Under this law, dam owners are responsible for scheduling an engineering inspection of their dam at least once every five years," Siroky said. "They're also required to perform proper maintenance and have an Emergency Action Plan (EAP) that outlines notification procedures to local law enforcement and emergency management agencies, including evacuation maps for all areas that could be impacted."

The act also requires dam owners to outline strategies for repairing a dam in danger of failing, Siroky said.

This year's Montana Legislature implemented new dam safety laws focusing on impoundment structures for mine tailings ponds. Siroky said the law was proposed by the Montana Mining Association after a tailings pond breach in August of 2014 at the Mount Polley Mine in British Columbia. The breach released millions of cubic yards of mine waste into a local creek and lake.

"Dams provide critical water storage with a broad range of benefits for our state — irrigation, hydroelectric power, flood control, recreation and municipal water supplies, among others" said DNRC Director John Tubbs. "DNRC owns and manages 20 water-storage projects statewide and we place a premium on dam safety and maintenance."

Along with managing its own water projects, DNRC also operates the state's Dam Safety Program, which regulates the construction, operation and maintenance of Montana's dams to protect life and property. The program provides training and outreach to dam owners and engineers, and assists with emergency preparedness activities.

Of the thousands of dams in Montana, an estimated 185 are structures that could pose a threat to downstream residents. Siroky said there are two or three incidents each year involving dam malfunctions; most of these involve small dams and are caused by deterioration of the outlet works.

It's a shared responsibility between state and federal agencies, dam owners, emergency responders and citizens to know their roles in the event of an emergency. For the estimated 160,000 Montanans and businesses living downstream of a dam there are actions they can take for their own safety, including:

- Knowing the benefits and risks associated with dams
- Knowing evacuation routes and areas that may be inundated by water and debris
- Maintaining flood insurance
- Having an evacuation plan

Siroky also encouraged citizens to contact local law enforcement or emergency responders if they notice anything unusual or suspicious at a dam, such as significant water seepage.

National Dam Safety Awareness Day is held each year on May 31. The date corresponds to the failure in 1889 of the South Fork Dam in Johnstown, Pennsylvania. More than 2,200 people lost their lives in what is regarded as the most catastrophic dam failure in US History.

BakerHostetler Filed A Preliminary Injunction Against The BLM's Final Rule To Regulate Hydraulic Fracturing On Federal And Indian Lands

By Tie Shank

DENVER: BakerHostetler, one of the nation's leading law firms, announced they have filed a request for preliminary injunction against the final rule the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) issued to regulate hydraulic fracturing on federal and Indian lands.

In a May 15, 2015 press release BakerHostetler writes, "The motion was filed in the United States District Court for the District of Wyoming on behalf of the Independent Petroleum Association of America and Western Energy Alliance. The motion details the flaws in BLM's final rule and requests that the federal district court halt implementation until the legal challenge is resolved."

Mark Barron, one of the Denver-based BakerHostetler attorneys heading the litigation states, "BLM has underestimated the cost of the final rule at every phase of development," and "Given the magnitude of expected costs and the legal flaws of the final rule, injunctive relief is necessary to protect independent producers until the court reaches resolution."

"After five years of rulemaking, BLM still has not identified a single case of hydraulic fracturing contaminating drinking water," added Poe Leggett, Co-leader of BakerHostetler's Energy and Shale practice team. "There is no excuse — as a matter of law or in the interest of good government — for the agency to continue to rely on unsupported assertions."

While the final rule is not scheduled to take effect until June 24, 2015, independent producers are already incurring substantial compliance costs. Producers are adjusting drilling schedules, moving equipment, contracting for operational services, and training personnel. Producers anticipate that these additional costs will exceed several hundreds of millions of dollars each year.

The motion emphasizes BLM's failure to consider relevant evidence during the rulemaking process and to justify its action with objective and technically sound support. "BLM argues that some states with hydraulic fracturing activity lack the regulations necessary to protect federal and Indian lands, but BLM is yet to identify a single harm that the agency's rule will prevent that state regulation isn't preventing already," noted Barron.

A copy of the Initial Complaint and of the Motion for Preliminary Injunction that BakerHostetler filed in the United States District Court for the District of Wyoming can be viewed on the BakerHostetler website at <http://www.baker-law.com>

North Dakota – One Of Four States In A Lawsuit Challenging New Rules For Oil And Gas Drilling On Federal Land

By Tie Shank

The Bureau of Land Management (BLM) began working on a proposed rule concerning hydraulic fracturing in November 2010, when it held its first public forum amid growing public concern about the expansion of hydraulic fracturing. The new rule was the first revision to BLM's hydraulic fracturing regulations since 1988. The agency unveiled its first proposal to update these rules on May 4, 2012.

The revised final regulations for hydraulic fracturing on federal and Indian lands were published in the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) on March 26, 2015 and were scheduled to go into effect June 26, 2015.

Wyoming files lawsuit:

In March, Wyoming's Attorney General's office filed a petition for review of final agency action in federal court over the BLM's effort to regulate fracking.

Colorado and North Dakota intervene:

In April, U.S. Magistrate Judge Kelly Rankin of Cheyenne granted permission for both Colorado and North Dakota to intervene with Wyoming in a lawsuit challenging new rules for oil and gas drilling on federal land. The three states believe the regulations exceed the BLM's statutory authority and contradict existing federal law and plan to seek an injunction or temporary restraining order to prevent the rules from going into effect until the case is settled.

North Dakota Attorney General Wayne Stenehjem said last week in a prepared statement, "I am pleased the court has allowed North Dakota to participate as a party to uphold our state's strong and comprehensive fracking regulations....We will be there alongside Wyoming in protecting our own state's authority to regulate the industry."

Utah announces they'll be joining the lawsuit:

Since permission was granted to North Dakota and Colorado to join Wyoming in the lawsuit, Cody Stewart, Utah Governor Herbert's Policy Director and Energy Advisor states that Utah will be filing a protest to try to show in court that the BLM has stepped out of bounds beyond their authority.

SIDNEY — Stockman Bank broke ground on Wednesday, May 27, on its new full-service banking location at 301 West Holly Street at the northwest corner of Holly and Third Avenue NW in Sidney.

Construction will continue on the three-story, 29,157 square-foot facility that will depict the design of other Stockman Bank buildings, with a 24 hour ATM and night depository, and a spacious multi-lane drive-up that will be large enough to pull a trailer through to better serve our area farmers, ranchers, and trades people. The main entry will be all glass with high ceilings allowing for the second floor atrium to overlook the lobby. More importantly, this new location will provide adequate parking for customers, employees and guests. The completion date is set for spring 2016.

“Stockman has been committed to the MonDak area for decades and we’re excited to further our commitment by building a larger facility to continue serving the financial needs of our growing community,” comments Garth Kallevig, President of Stockman Bank Sidney. “With the extensive growth in agriculture, medical, professional, retail and energy production in our area, we feel this expansion is another example of our continual commitment to Richland County and the surrounding areas.”

In addition to the new banking facility, Stockman plans to keep their existing drive-up location at 120 2nd Street SW to conveniently serve their customers in central downtown Sidney. At this time, Stockman Bank will stay in their main bank on the corner of Main Street and Central Avenue until the new facility is open.

Stockman Bank is Montana’s largest privately held family owned bank. Stockman is committed to the MonDak area and looks forward to continuing the community banking principles they were founded upon over 60 years ago.
