Keeping Your Child Connected this Summer

Submitted by Missy Smies
for the Family Resource Center

As we ended the school year and heard that big sigh of relief from students, parents and teachers for another year done, we need to remember the summer months are just as important as the school year when it comes to keeping our children busy and connected with friends, family and activities. This is the time of year sleeping late, video games and lounging around are daily occurrences for many children.

Getting outside for healthy activities is crucial for a child's well-being, but so is socially interacting with friends and community. It curbs one from the influences of alcohol, tobacco, drugs and other bad lifestyle choices. Being "bored" is something most kids complain of at some point. And these are the times that active minds with little to do may decide to make the wrong decisions. Let's be proactive this summer with a few tips:

Get a list of friends from your child that they would like to see regularly. Make sure these friends are positive influences for your child.

Get to know the friends' parents and make a plan to talk about expectations and needs during the summer months. Plan times and days for your children to do things together.

Ask your child to text, call or see a friend daily to keep their social lives active. Follow up to make sure those texts and calls are going well and offer to listen when problems arise.

Encourage them to listen to their friends and to be sincere with their friendships. Teach them how to respect their friendships by not gossiping or talking negatively about them.

Make a daily schedule for your child with activities and times for their friends and make sure it is being followed, allowing for spontaneous activities, too! This also helps teach your child a great skill for life!

Keeping your child active in their lives helps them succeed in many aspects. Teaching them these skills can enhance their friendships, health, and social life, especially when school is back in session. Take these opportunities to teach them these life skills early in life and curb bad habits, physically and socially. Make this summer count!

If you have any questions about the Family Resource Center, parenting or how to help your child develop healthy lifestyle choices, contact Nicole Hackley (nicolehackley@yahoo.com) or Missy Smies (missysmies@outlook.com) at 406-433-4097, and checkout our Facebook pages at Richland County STAND or StAnD4yOUth. The Family Resource Center is partially funded by the Montana Children's Trust Fund. It is located at the Sidney Public Library and has many resources for parents.

Bakken Housing Company Teams up with Brutger Equities to Bring a New Kind of Community Living to Williston

Eagle Crest Apartment Homes located on 26th St W in Williston.

By Tie Shank

Formed in 2011 by veteran real estate executives George Kropinski and John Sessions, Bakken Housing Company (“BHC”) develops real estate projects throughout the Bakken region of western North Dakota, eastern Montana and southern Saskatchewan.

BHC projects exceed the quality standards in the cities and towns in which they are located, making them more appealing to individuals, families and businesses in the community.

Sitting on over 7 acres, Eagle Crest Apartment Homes is a pet-friendly, 168-unit apartment development located at 3710 26th Street West in Williston. The property is managed by Brutger Equities of St. Cloud, MN.

The development will consist of four individual buildings, each with a security system with controlled access, elevator service, its own fully-equipped exercise room and locker room. The landscaped grounds will have outdoor BBQ areas with picnic tables and playground equipment for the kids to enjoy. There will also be a distinctive community building on the property which will feature a business center with offices and a boardroom, a media room with a fireplace, an entertainment room, kitchen facilities and a mailroom.

Approximately 80 percent of the apartments are two-bedroom, two-bath units with the remaining 20 percent divided up between one and three-bedroom units. All of the apartments will have 9-foot ceilings, beautiful bay windows, AC, a washer & dryer, walk-in closets, a patio or balcony and stainless-steel kitchen appliances. In addition to surface parking, private garage parking will be available for most units.

Hail Insurance Deadline Approaching - Purchase Hail Insurance by Aug. 15

Submitted by Jana Mertens

With some much needed rain falling across most of Montana, now is the time to evaluate your crop insurance needs. Montana farmers and ranchers can still purchase state hail insurance through August 15 by contacting the toll free number at (844) 515-1571 or visiting the website at <http://agr.mt.gov/agr/Programs/Commodities/HailInsurance/> to obtain forms.

With last year's record hail insurance claims, the Hail Board purchased reinsurance to ensure that any and all claims made by Montana producers covered by the state hail insurance program will be paid.

County Department of Revenue offices will no longer be processing new policies; instead they will be providing information to interested parties on how to begin the process. Forms are also available at Montana State University Extension Offices and Conservation District Offices.

At the request of producers and authorized by the State Legislature, the dry land hail insurance rate increased to $75 per acre and $114 per acre for irrigated land. The Hail Board also approved a five percent premium increase. Producers should contact the Montana Department of Agriculture to discuss coverage and rates.

Contact Information - Montana State Hail Insurance Program, PO Box 200201 Helena, MT 59620 Toll Free: (844) 515-1571 Phone: (406) 444-2402 Fax: (406) 444-9422

The Montana State Hail Insurance Program was created in 1917 to provide basic hail insurance coverage on any crop grown in Montana.

The program is directed by a five-member board consisting of the department director, insurance commissioner, and three other members appointed by the Governor.

The Montana Department of Agriculture's mission is to protect producers and consumers, and to enhance and develop agriculture and allied industries. For more information on the department, visit www.agr.mt.gov

Crestwood's Footprint Continues To Grow With Expansion Of The COLT Hub

By Tie Shank

E P P I N G , N D : Strategically located in the heart of the Bakken and Three Forks shale plays, construction of the COLT Hub began in May 2011 and the facility went into service just one year later. Today the COLT Hub, owned and operated by Crestwood Midstream Partners LP, serves as a point of liquidity for the distribution of Bakken crude oil throughout North American markets by providing customers with crude oil storage and connectivity to the BNSF Railway Company and ties in with four major pipeline systems.

The COLT Hub brings in crude oil produced in Williams and McKenzie counties by pipeline and truck; provides crude oil handling, on-site blending and storage services through on-site tankage; and access to multiple downstream crude oil markets through pipeline and unit train loading capabilities. COLT also provides pipeline services into and out of the rail facility through the COLT Connector, a 21-mile, bidirectional, crude oil transmission pipeline. This pipeline connects the COLT Hub to a point of interconnect with multiple existing and planned crude oil pipelines at Rangeland's Dry Fork terminal near the Beaver Lodge/Ramberg junction, eight miles south of Tioga, including interconnects to the Tesoro and Enbridge pipeline systems.

With 1.2 million barrels of crude oil storage and two 8,700 foot rail loops, the COLT Hub can accommodate 120-car unit trains and is now capable of moving up to 160,000 barrels per day by rail.

On May 6, 2014 Crestwood released their first-quarter earnings and gave this update: "During the first quarter 2014, we completed various COLT Hub and Arrow expansion projects that resulted in higher Bakken crude oil volumes being handled. We also acquired a crude oil and produced water transportation fleet based in Watford City, North Dakota, which added capacity for approximately 22,000 Bbls/day of crude oil and water truck transportation volumes. This bolt-on acquisition further interconnects our Bakken value chain platform and complements the two crude oil unit trains we expect to receive in the first quarter 2015."

Loadings at COLT Hub in the second quarter are expected to average 20-25% higher than the first quarter.

Having recently signed long-term agreements with BP Products North America, Inc. and with Statoil Marketing & Trading, the COLT expansion is supported. Crestwood expects to complete the installation of new release and departure tracks at the COLT Hub in the third quarter 2014, which will provide greater operational flexibility to their customers and the BNSF Railroad. It will also improve utilization rates.

"We are keenly focused on growing our crude oil and NGL businesses," said Robert G. Phillips, chairman of Crestwood's general partner.

With so much current activity and planned near-future activity, we can expect to hear much more about Crestwood and their growing footprint in the Bakken.

Crestwood - Supporting America's Energy Independence Through Logistics

Crestwood crude oil transport truck.

By Tie Shank
Crestwood Midstream Partners LP provides services to support the growth of America's energy independence through operations in every premier U.S. shale play, including the Bakken region in North Dakota.
"Connections for America's energy are at the heart of Crestwood. We are all about logistics to connect upstream partners – including leading exploration and production companies – with downstream customers – crude oil refiners, gas utilities, industrial users and wholesalers from coast to coast," said Brian Freed, Vice President for Crude Logistics of Crestwood.
"In the Bakken, our COLT Hub provides seamless connections by truck, rail and pipeline to move crude oil and gas from this region to customers on the East Coast, West Coast or points in between. Our Arrow Midstream gathering system serves producers on 150,000 acres, with 450 miles of gathering pipes for crude, gas and produced water – and direct connections into the COLT Hub," Freed added.

Crestwood's operations in the Bakken – as well as in the Marcellus, Niobrara, Permian and other key shale plays around the country – provide extensive growth opportunities in midstream services for crude oil and natural gas liquids. These opportunities are especially strong given Crestwood's long-term contracts and dedicated acreage in the most productive areas, considered the "core of the core," of these premier shale plays.
In addition to operating

Colt Hub in Epping, ND
the COLT Hub in Epping, North Dakota, with state-of-the-art crude-by-rail loading, truck unloading racks, pipeline connections and storage (see related article in this edition) – Crestwood recently acquired Arrow Midstream, a crude oil, natural gas and produced water gathering system located in Williams County, North Dakota, approximately 60 miles southeast of the COLT Hub. Crestwood has recently expanded with the acquisition of two trucking operations in the Bakken region, giving the company one of the largest capabilities for trucking of crude, gas and produced water.
With their headquarters in Houston, Texas, and an executive office in Kansas City, Missouri, Crestwood views the Bakken region as a strategic growth opportunity for the future. The company has approximately 225 employees in the area and has committed to invest more than $180 million in expansion projects at the COLT Hub and Arrow gathering system from 2014 to 2018.

Severt Sponheim Featured on 2014 Fairview Old Timer's Festival Button

By Staci Miller

The year 1914 gave way to pioneering moments; the first scheduled commercial flight took place with one pilot and one passenger, Babe Ruth made his Major League Baseball debut, the first traffic signal was installed. A little closer to home, the city of Fairview was established and Severt Sponheim was born.

The 68th Annual Fairview Festival kicks off Friday, July 18th and runs through the weekend. Severt Sponheim, celebrating his 100 year birthday on July 16th, was elected by Fairview Festival Committee to be represented on the 2014 Fairview Festival button.

Severt was born at home in Cartwright, ND by a midwife, affectionately called Grandma Bergie. The oldest of three, he described his childhood as "happy". Time was spent hunting, fishing, swimming and playing baseball when not helping out on the family farm.

Cartwright, ND offered a mercantile, blacksmith, pool hall, delivery stable and 3 churches during Severt's early years. The only way to travel to nearby Fairview, MT was by cable ferry across the river. Kids in the neighborhood proceeded to complete their high school years in Alexander, ND as the cable ferry was not a reliable source of year round transportation. Severt stayed at home after elementary school to continue working on the family farm.

Childhood memories flowed as Severt talked about the "Wishing Book", the Hart-Parr Tractor, kerosene lamps, teams of horses and the Model T. A Sears Roebucks Catalog was called the Wishing Book. As Severt explained, "As you looked through the Sears catalog by kerosene lamp, we would say, 'wish I had this and wish I had that'; that is why it was called the Wishing Book."

Severt married the love of his life in 1938. Gunny and Severt had three children, 2 boys, Lyle and Dale, and a daughter, Arlene. They continued to live and farm in Cartwright. Through the years, they raised cattle, hogs, chickens and milk cows. Severt was known in the region as the "Community Mechanic", a "Jack of all Trades".

"When electricity was brought to the community it was like you came out of hell and into heaven", laughed Severt. Electricity made every aspect of life a little easier. Homes were furnished with one single light bulb and one outlet. Severt's talent of "Jack of all Trades" and his love of reading led him to be a self taught electrician. He then proceeded to help out friends and neighbors by wiring additional outlets and lights in their home.

Severt described himself as "kind of wild" in his younger years and shared stories of making dynamite while working in a coal mine with a friend, sitting on the drill box, jumping off running to the tractor when it arrived at the end of the field. He would turn the tractor around and then jump out of the tractor back to the drill box. He stated, "I lived this many years because I always had a guardian angel with me when I would pull crazy stunts. Also, I eat oatmeal every morning. That's the secret to a long life."

Severt worked on the farm and ran the tractor up until he was in his 90s. His passion for reading made him a world wide traveler through books. Three books Severt always had in his home were the Bible, National Geographic, and the Smithsonian. "Life is too short to read fiction" is one of Severt's quotes his kids and grandkids cherish.

Severt Sponheim

A poet, a farmer, an electrician, a plumber, a husband, father, grandfather - Severt Sponheim continues to support his friends and family and the town of Fairview through his knowledge, generosity and love of life. His only regret is not learning to play an instrument. Though, I would disagree. As we wrapped up the interview with Severt he belted into song, "The Strawberry Roan" by Marty Robbins. His voice, a strong tenor - a God given talent, the best instrument there is.

Have Fun in Fairview!

Fairview History

From Courage Enough
by Ralph Chase, Mildred Gardner, Flora Heinle, Chester Hillman, Marj Johnson and Aneta Vitt

Lewis Newlon was the founder and promoter of Fairview. He was born December 15, 1878 at Lincoln, Nebraska, but to him, Montana was his home. He came to what was to be Fairview in 1903. He built a claim shack which was a bit larger than most claim shacks. It had five rooms and was built of sod. It was the first house built on the townsite of Fairview.

Even in that early day, Lewis Newlon had in mind the building of a town. The lay of the land was of such as to encourage railroad building. In 1903, about the time he built his residence he also established himself in the mercantile business. His store was finished before his home and was known as the Farmers Store.

In 1907 a competitor built a store and it was the first competitor in his line of business. In 1907 he sold his store and turned his entire attention to the development and growth of Fairview. He platted three blocks in the line of his homestead, bordering on the Dakota line, as a townsite and gave it the name of Fairview. This was in January 1904, and at that time he offered a business lot at one dollar to anyone who would erect a place of business. The offer stimulated building to some extent but the town's growth continued slowly.

Various lines of industry were begun in the Fairview area before the coming of the railroad, which brought a real boom to the area. Mr. Newlon gave a gift of 96 acres of land to the railroad to be used as a right-of-way.

January 4, 1912 the first steel was laid into the town of Fairview. Within a week traffic with the outside world was carried on by rail. One of the business houses erected was occupied by Maxson Mercantile. He became a stockholder in the Delaney Bank, later called First National Bank. The Albert Hotel Company was formed at this time and this was to be one of the outstanding hotels in the area for many years.

In the year 1913 the City of Fairview was incorporated and Lewis Newlon was elected the first mayor and served in that capacity for three years. He was succeeded by Dr. Perkins.

Fairview grew rapidly during the time and had two doctors at one time, a dentist, a lawyer and a thriving drug store along with other business places.

Industry had a part in the growth of Fairview as well. The Gedney Pickle Company was established there in 1925, a creamery and cheese plant in 1924 and Blue Rock Products was established in 1913.
