Angel Food Cookbook Preserves Memories

By Lois Kerr

Losing a child might be one of the most difficult situations families face. The loss of a child of any age can devastate families and it may take years for the healing process to complete. A group of three ladies, all of whom have lost a child, decided that a good way to remember their children who have passed and at the same time preserve precious memories for family and friends, lies in the development of a special cookbook. Jacquie Pourroy, Vicki Waddington and Becky Kallevig have teamed up to produce Angel Food, a community cookbook project that will contain favorite recipes of beloved children who have passed on. The ladies invite anyone who has lost a child of any age to participate in this project by contributing a recipe or recipes to the cookbook, along with a brief memory of that child or the story behind the favorite recipe.

"We want this book full of love," says Pourroy. "Sharing meals, cooking together and finding favorite recipes say 'family'. After parents lose a child, they may find it difficult to face the food memories at first, but this can become a way of celebrating memories. Traditions develop around food. Kids help to cook in the kitchen when they are small, and after they grow up and move away, they still call home to find out how to make something."

She continues, "We want to put together a cookbook containing the favorite recipes of these children who are no longer with us. This is a way of healing and a way of preserving precious moments. Just talking about food brings back memories."

Another member of the team, Vicki Waddington, points out that those who have lost children are a community of silent sufferers. Angel Food will give them a voice. "We often aren't given permission by society to talk about our children who have passed," she remarks. "This cookbook offers a way to counteract that. We have to be able to say our children's names and we have to be able to tell stories. This cookbook is a fun way to do this and it will have personal meaning to every parent who contributes a recipe or recipes."

The ladies ask anyone who has lost a child of any age to participate in this project. The ladies will accept all recipes, from appetizers to desserts. Along with each recipe, parents can write a brief memory that will appear with the recipe. "This theme of favorite recipes with memories surrounding that recipe and that child keeps the focus on the child and makes a great memory book," says Pourroy. "This is an opportunity for all parents to participate."

She concludes, "The cookbook is for families but it is also for friends. Kids have a second family of friends and we invite those friends to contribute stories and recipes as well."

To submit a recipe, people may call Jacquie Pourroy, 488-4990; Becky Kallevig, 488-5455, or Vicki Waddington, 433-3151 for the form used to produce the book. Please obtain the form or forms and return them by Jan. 15, 2012 to meet the publication deadline.

Editor's note: Vicki Waddington, Lonsdale Methodist Church pastor, Sidney, invites all interested people to attend a candlelight memorial service, scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 11 at 7 p.m. at the Lonsdale United Methodist Church, Sidney, 205 3rd Ave. SE. The service will honor and celebrate the lives of those children who have passed on.

The fifth annual NILE Ranch Rodeo Finals were held Oct. 19 in the Rimrock Auto Arena, MetraPark. This year's rodeo had teams qualifying at six sanctioned rodeos from around the region competing head-to-head. Hailing from the states of Montana, Wyoming, Idaho and North Dakota the teams were S Ranch, Reid Ranch, Criss/Double 4 Ranch, the Cook Ranch, the Reversed EV, the Harrington Ranch, Sperry/Reid Horse & Cattle Co, Nelson Ranch, Swenson/Martin Horse & Cattle Co, M Triple T, Sand Creek Cattle Co and Hyche/Starkson Ranch.

This one of a kind rodeo featured working ranch activities including bronc riding, team trailering, team branding, team doctoring and wild cow milking.

Top three teams were: 1. Sperry/Reid Horse & Cattle Co., Poplar; 2. Reid Ranch of Firth, ID; 3. Swenson/Martin Horse & Cattle Co., Beulah, ND was awarded to Robert Sperry, Sperry Reid Horse & Cattle Co, Poplar. The Top Horse received a custom cowboy hat by Dorer's Hatmaker and the Top Hand received a custom saddle made by Vaquero Saddlery.

Additionally, the Top Horse award went to "Purple" ridden by KC Verhelst, S Ranch, Pryor, MT. The Top Hand award

The NILE is a non-profit organization established in 1967 that is dedicated to the promotion of livestock, agriculture education, and respect of the western tradition. For more information contact the NILE office at 406-256-2495 or visit www.thenile.org.

Moonlight Madness In Sidney Set For Oct. 31

The Trade Promotion Committee has made some changes to the Moonlight Madness event on Oct. 31. They will not be promoting extended hours however, store employees will be dressed up in the spirit of Halloween.

For kids there will be a "trail of treats" which will start at 4 pm at Reese & Ray's IGA. They will receive candy bags provided by Wells Fargo Bank and then begin a hike around downtown to businesses that have a Halloween sign on their door or window to receive a treat. The "Trail of Treats" will end at the Yellowstone Marketplace for a costume judging contest at 5:30 p.m.

We ask that the parents be with the kids, and students from the high school will be leaders. If you have any questions please call the Chamber.

Savage & Fairview Warrior Volleyball Teams Raise Funds For SHC Cancer Care Center

More than 350 spectators joined the Savage Warriors and Fairview Warriors on Oct. 15 for high school volleyball "Pack it in PINK" tournaments.

Proceeds from each community's tournament benefited Phase II of Sidney Health Center's Cancer Care Center.

Hurley Oil Field Services and W.L. Neu Construction made a donation for each person wearing pink to Fairview's tournament. In addition, Richland County Cancer Coalition had a pink carnation for each player to give to a fan as a reminder to make an appointment for a cancer screening.

Savage Warriors donated all gate admission, held a raffle, a bake sale and silent auction towards Phase II of the Cancer Care Center.

This was Savage's 3rd annual and Fairview's 1st annual event.

A special thank you to each volleyball team, coaches, managers, businesses and fans that joined the girls for a day of awareness and helping to bring the BEST Cancer Treatment closer to home.

The Savage volleyball team during "Pack it in PINK" night on Oct. 15.

Sidney Health Center Cancer Center Donation

Tori Todd, Madeline Warner and Cedar Lewis present a $210 check to the Foundation for Community Care in honor of breast cancer awareness. Proceeds were donated on behalf of Sidney High School's volleyball team and Business Professionals of America and will benefit Phase II of Sidney Health Center's Cancer Care Center.

26 Local Restaurant Employees Attend Food Safety Training

Food safety, a larger issue than most people are aware of, costs the nation an estimated $35 billion each year. Problems can occur at any point in the food chain from the farm to the kitchen to how the food is served.

Employees from Betania, Cattle-Ac, DCC Rental Bed and Breakfast, Double Barrel, Hotel Albert, South 40 and Winners Pub attended a two-hour food safety workshop taught by Judy Johnson, MSU Richland County Extension Agent. For some attendees it was a refresher course while it was new to others.

With most food establishments being short staffed and very busy it was a good opportunity to take a look at what can cause problems when preparing food. Since germs cause almost all food-borne illnesses the class focused on how personal hygiene can be a positive or negative influence, keeping foods at the correct temperature will reduce bacteria growth and preventing cross contamination can also guard against unwanted germs.

For more information on food safety contact MSU Richland County Extension at 406-433-1206.

Schools Invited To Take Part In Recycling Challenge

The Montana Department of Environmental Quality is encouraging schools from all across the state to sign up for this year's Great American Can Round Up School Recycling Challenge sponsored by the Can Manufacturers Institute.

What can aluminum recycling do for your school? The kids in Cascade, MT, will tell you it can mean extra money for school activities. Recently, they were recognized for collecting the most aluminum cans per capita among Montana schools in the first annual School Recycling Challenge. The school placed 3rd nationally by collecting 13.06 lbs. of cans and won $1,000 to help fund school activities.

"This event is open to all K-12 public and private schools and schools can earn money and prizes for participating", said Sandra Boggs, DEQ recycling specialist. As an added incentive she said that Pacific Recycling is paying $.05 more per pound to schools recycling at one of their facilities.

The School Recycling Challenge runs between America Recycles Day (Nov. 15) and Earth Day (April 22). The national champion school wins $5,000 and the state champion school will win $1,000. In addition, there will be monthly drawings for $50 pizza gift cards.

To take part in the challenge, schools register at the CMI website. The students will record the pounds of aluminum cans recycled and submit the numbers monthly by mail, fax or email. For all the information and to register go to www.cancentral.com/RoundUp.

MSGA Annual Convention, Trade Show To Be Held In Billings, Dec. 15-17

The 2011 Montana Stockgrowers Association (MSGA) and Montana CattleWomen (MCW) Annual Convention and Trade Show will meet at the Holiday Inn Grand Montana, Billings, on Dec. 15-17. The convention will offer opportunities for attendees to learn tips to improve their ranch or business, find out about new products available for their animal health and ranch supply needs at the trade show, and for members to weigh in on policy discussions. Members who attend convention will be eligible to win a Ford super duty truck from the Montana Ford stores.

Speakers will include Bill Donald, National Cattlemen's Beef Association president and Gene Carlson, Big Sky Little League All-Stars manager, with Rocky Erickson, Northern Ag Network. The Pfizer Cattlemen's Colleges will be held on Dec. 17 featuring Gary Brester, Montana State University agricultural economics professor, and Larry Gran, Pfizer Animal Health. Brester will conduct two economic workshops. Gran will talk about utilizing modern technology to help commercial cattlemen select bulls for their ranch.

A major component of the convention is the setting of new policy and the review of past policies to guide the association through its day-to-day work. The policy process will begin on Thursday, Dec. 15 with the Beef Production & Marketing and Membership Development & Services committee meetings. The Land Use & Environment and Tax, Finance & Ag Policy committee meetings will be on Dec. 16. The Second Reading of Resolutions will be held on the morning of Dec. 17, with reports from each committee. The final reading, and an up or down vote on resolutions, will occur at the MSGA Business Meeting on the afternoon of Dec. 17. Resolutions that make it through the entire process will become association policy.

MSGA membership will be voting for new MSGA board of directors as Don Griffin, Ismay; Jason Camp, Belgrade; and Kraig Meeks, Geraldine, end their terms on the MSGA board.

MSGA and Montana Ford stores have teamed up to give a Ford super duty truck to one lucky member who attends convention. The drawing will be held on Saturday during the Grand Finale Banquet with Justin Mills emceeing the banquet. To be eligible for the truck drawing, you must attend convention, be a current Rancher, Stocker/Feeder or Young Stockgrower member, and fill out the truck entry form.

To learn more, please call the MSGA office at 406-442-3420, or visit www.mtbeef.org. If you would like to reserve a trade show booth or sponsor part of the convention, please contact the MSGA office soon as there are limited spaces open.

MCHF & WHC One Step Closer To Decision On Future Building Site

The Montana Cowboy Hall of Fame & Western Heritage Center (MCHF & WHC) Board of Directors is pleased to announce the list of respondents that have submitted proposals to "Phase Two" of a three phase Request For Proposals selection process that will decide the organization's future building site.

Proposals have been submitted from: Eastern Plains Economic Development Corporation, Terry; Madison County Economic Development Corporation, Madison County; Miles City Chamber of Commerce, Miles City; Missouri Valley Development Corporation, Wolf Point; Montana Event Center, Huntley; Musselshell County Commissioners, Roundup; Park County Extension Service, Livingston; PhillCo Economic Growth Council, Malta; Ryan Hamilton on behalf of the Community of Big Sky; and Sweet Grass County Commissioners, Big Timber.

The Request for Proposals Evaluation Committee will now take up the task of evaluating each proposal response against a standard set of criteria. From this evaluation the MCHF & WHC Board will announce a field of finalists to be considered in the third and final phase of the selection process. Each proposal will also be evaluated by an independent evaluator with expertise in non-profit administration and museum operations. The third phase will include interviews and comprehensive negotiations with each of the finalist candidates. The board of directors currently plans to announce the awarding of the future building site by the end of November.

Directed by the organization's vision to develop a facility that will serve as a "premier destination attraction that honors and celebrates Montana's unique western culture and heritage," the MCHF & WHC has taken on the ambitious effort to move forward with development of the facility despite the economic downturn that has slowed or stopped many other major development projects. Christy Stensland, MCHF & WHC executive director, stated, "The support and sense of urgency that many feel about the need to capture our heritage before it is lost and to pass it forward to future generations has driven us to move forward with the project. This site selection request for proposals process is an incredible undertaking for everyone involved. It is humbling to see folks from all corners of the state join together and rally around the important task of honoring our cowboy way of life, American Indian cultures and our collective Montana Western heritage."

With the passage of H.B 528 in April, the board of directors moved to open the opportunity of being considered as the future building site of the MCHF & WHC to all Montana communities. Aaron Lyles, MCHF & WHC director of finance, stated, "The decision of issuing the request for proposals and allowing any interested community the opportunity to be considered was the best approach and most objective way to select our future building site. The selection process requires the highest standards of transparency to meet the expectations of the public trust we operate under." The board of directors chose a traditional Request For Proposals process to administer the site selection. Therefore, the organization could not comment at this time on any one community's prospects or standing in the evaluation process. The organization will announce the finalist candidates upon the completion of the Phase Two evaluation. Lyles continued, "Since no community can claim exclusive rights to our collective Montana Western heritage, this selection process had to be focused on an objective alignment of the resources necessary for accomplishing our vision and mission to those communities that have expressed a desire to be considered. Though each community is anxiously waiting the final decision, it is clear after seeing the hundreds of letters of support that have poured into our office that no matter the final location our Montana community is behind the project."

Kyler Bracelets Available

Bracelets, similar to Lance Armstrong's "Live Strong" ones, have been donated to help raise money for the family of Kyler Streib. Kyler was diagnosed with Leukemia on March 8th. His family is staying in Seattle, WA while he is in the hospital receiving treatment. The bracelets, which say "I fight cancer for Kyler", are only $2.50 each and all proceeds go directly to the family. Bracelets can be purchased at the Yellowstone Marketplace or by calling 480-2600.

Dining With Diabetes - North Dakota Style Coming In November

By Marcia Hellandsaas

NDSU Extension Agent, McKenzie/Dunn Counties

If you or a family member is living with diabetes, pre-diabetes, or are the caregiver or other support person of someone with diabetes, you are encouraged to attend "Dining With Diabetes" in November. This series of four classes, held on Tuesday afternoons - Nov. 8, 15, 22 and 29 - at the McKenzie County Courthouse meeting room, Watford City, will help you promote self-management of diabetes through healthy food choices and meal planning.

Classes will start at 1 p.m. CT and conclude by 4 p.m. CT. They will be delivered through an interactive video network and will also include food demonstrations, hands-on food preparation, and tasting healthy foods. Participants will learn how to plan and prepare balanced and flavorful meals. Discussions and time to answer questions and network with each other will be included.

Offered in 30 states, this tested program follows established clinical practice guidelines that reduce the risk of diabetes and complications. Classes are taught by diabetes health professionals such as registered dietitians, certified diabetes educators, and extension agents.

Cost to attend is $25, which includes food and all class materials. Registration deadline is Oct. 31, 2011. Registrations are taken at the McKenzie County Extension Office in the courthouse, 201 W. 5th St., Watford City, or registrations may also be made by calling the extension office at 701-444-3451 or e-mailing extension agent Marcia Hellandsaas at marcia.hellandsaas@ndsu.edu.

Deer Hunting: A Family Outing

Remaining FCFS Deer Licenses Suspended, Hunters May Seek Refunds

Based on continuing reports of white-tailed deer mortality in western North Dakota caused by epizootic hemorrhagic disease, the state Game and Fish Department is suspended the sale of remaining first-come, first-served deer licenses in units 3F1, 3F2 and 4F, effective Oct. 21.

In addition, hunters with white-tailed deer licenses in units 3B1, 3D1, 3E1, 3F1, 3F2, 4A, 4B, 4C, 4D, 4E and 4F have the option of turning in those licenses for refunds.

Randy Kreil, department chief of wildlife, said the decision is based on evidence of moderate to significant white-tailed deer losses in some areas that might affect hunting success in those locations.

"While we first received reports of isolated deer deaths in August, loss of deer to this disease appears to have extended through September and into October, and covers a large area of western North Dakota," Kreil said.

More than 13,000 white-tailed deer license holders are eligible for license refunds. Individuals who return their license will have their preference points restored.

EHD, a naturally occurring virus that is spread by a biting midge, is almost always fatal to infected white-tailed deer, while mule deer do not usually die from the disease. Hunters do not have to worry about handling or consuming meat from infected deer because the virus that causes EHD is not known to cause disease in humans. In addition, the first hard freeze typically kills the midge that carries and transfers the EHD virus which will slow or halt the spread of the disease.

Before deciding to turn in a license, Kreil urges whitetail license holders to make local contacts to find out the extent of mortality in their hunting area. Large portions of affected units had no reports of whitetail deaths. "The whitetail population has not been decimated and in many areas a good harvest is still needed," he added.

The last time Game and Fish made license refunds an option for hunters because of an EHD outbreak was in 2000.

White-tailed deer license holders who want a refund must return their license, along with a note requesting a refund due to EHD, to the Game and Fish Department's Bismarck office no later than Nov. 3. Envelopes postmarked Nov. 3 will be accepted.

"Flag Football"

By Jerome Kessler

The name Rance Haralson is synonymous with Sidney Flag Football. And it should be. Rance and his wife, Colleen, have run Sidney's Flag Football Program for the last 16 years. Wayne Swigart is the one who started the Sidney program, back in 1990, and he ran the program for the first 5 years of its existence. This program has been highly successful. Many kids and parents have enjoyed their "flag football days," and appreciate the work that these community benefactors have done.

Ninety-two kids signed up for flag football this year. Kids from Sidney, Fairview and Savage participate. There are five teams in the 3rd and 4th grade division this year, and two teams in the 5th and 6th grade division. In past years the program has had up to 148 participants and 10 teams. The numbers are down a bit this year because 50 some kids now participate in the recently started 5th and 6th grade tackle football program.

Rance and Colleen are in charge of disseminating information about flag football; signing up elementary school kids to participate in the program; organizing the teams and coaches into reasonably equitable units; ordering uniforms, trophies, and other supplies; lining up referees for the games; making the regular season and playoff schedules; mowing and lining the fields; and transforming an activity that attracts approximately 100 kids (and their respective families and friends) into something that is constructive and entertaining.

I have enjoyed helping Rance Haralson ref some games this fall. Working with Rance and the other referees (Bill Brenner, Duane Smith, Gordy Torgerson, Jerry Hughes, Cory Wheeler and Jeff Hintz) has been a good experience. Refereeing is harder than most people realize, though, and anyone interested in volunteering is welcome to do so.

It has been interesting to hear the refs talk about some of the funny things that have happened over the years: remember, they said, the time when a player had his breakaway pants pulled off, but his flags were left intact, as he ran (in his skivvies) to score a touchdown; the time the refs discovered that flags were being trimmed and greased – so that they would be more difficult to grab; and remember all those cute things that kids have said, e.g., "my hands feel like ice cubes" and "when is the game over, ref? I've got homework to do." But there have also been instances when players, coaches, and fans have forgotten that flag football is only a game. Referees try to enforce the rules – to the best of their abilities – and also try to remind everyone that flag football is a "just for fun" activity.

Rance tells me that this may be his last year running the Sidney Flag Football Program. I hope not. He does, after all, have other things to do with his life. He is co-manager and X-ray technologist par excellence at Sidney Health Center's Radiology Department. He is married and has two adult children. He and his wife (Colleen) enjoy many community and church activities. Rance also plays and officiates volleyball.

While Rance has enjoyed his volunteer flag football activities over the years, he sometimes says "the hassle" of running the program is starting to get to him. He hates, for example, when people say that he is "biased" in his officiating. And I relate to that sentiment. I also relate to a parent's concern that "his kid" should be given a fair shake in life.

I remember (from the 1990s) when my own kids were in the flag football program. I have to admit that I did occasionally criticize the referees. Now that "the shoe is on the other foot," I realize that the only thing these referees want is for the games to be played in a fair and safe manner. They want it to be a good experience. Some of these kids may never play organized sports again. And some of them will go on to compete in a variety of sports activities.

If you run into Rance or Colleen Haralson, you should tell them "thank you" for their many years of service to the Sidney Flag Football Program. It hasn't always been easy. Their work has taught thousands of young people a little bit about sports. It has also given these kids a chance to do something that is just plain fun.

Creating A Spooktacular Halloween For Your Family

(ARA) - Halloween is a time for crazy costumes, ghost stories, sugar-buzzed kids and all things that go bump in the night.

While the average American is expected to spend over $70 on Halloween this year, you don't have to break the bank to have a spooktacularly fun holiday. Here are a few tips to help you create a festive Halloween without sending a chill down your spine.

Quick and easy costumes

While purchasing a costume may be the easiest solution, it can be expensive. Instead, consider making a one-of-a-kind costume. All it takes is a little creativity and items likely found around your home.

With a few supplies, a little prep-time and some imagination, paint and scissors can transform a simple box into a robot, a racecar or a kissing-booth. Or, scan your closet for inspiration; a fortune teller, Greek goddess or private detective costume may be lurking amongst the treasures and accessories in your closet.

For hair-raising fun, the folks at Jack Link's Beef Jerky have made it easy for fans of their iconic "Messin' With Sasquatch" commercials to create a costume of the elusive Sasquatch. Check out JackLinks.com to download a free, printable Sasquatch mask, iron-on T-shirt transfer, and other fun tips to make an inexpensive, yet ferociously fun Halloween costume this year.

Don't be tricked by your treats

Between the candy corn, candied apples and popcorn balls, finding a healthier Halloween treat can be a spooky experience for parents. Don't be tricked; a "fun" sized mini chocolate bar can pack 60 to 80 calories and it's loaded with sugar.

To avoid a holiday candy coma, choose non-sugary, protein-rich snacks such as roasted pumpkin seeds, low-calorie beef or turkey jerky or fun-to-eat string cheese. In fact, after carving your Halloween pumpkin, roasting the pumpkin seeds is a fun activity to share with your family.

The great pumpkin

Nothing conjures up memories of Halloween's past like carving jack o' lanterns. This year, test your pumpkin carving skills with a family friendly "carve-off" competition. Choose prizes that will engage the whole family such as a "winner's choice" family movie night or movie passes to a local theater.

"Everyone likes pumpkins, and carving jack o' lanterns is a great way to bring people together," says children's book author and avid pumpkin and woodblock carver Betsy Bowen. "Youngsters, oldsters and in-betweens can all be creative with a pumpkin."

If you're a pumpkin-carving novice, it's easy to get started. Select a nicely shaped, firm pumpkin and cover your work surface with newspaper. Gather all of the necessary carving tools, such as spoons, toothpicks for marking your pattern and a small carving knife or saw. Get creative and sketch out a unique design, or use a stencil or pattern as your guide. You can download a variety of free patterns online, suitable for all skill levels, including a Sasquatch stencil at JackLinks.com. If you're not comfortable carving your pumpkin, try painting it instead.

After carving, light each pumpkin by placing a candle, battery-operated tea-light, or glow stick, inside. There is a certain magic in the air when pumpkins are aglow.

Don't Let Your Electronics Make Your Energy Costs Soar

Stop vampire electronics dead in their tracks!

Even at night, items such as microwaves, coffee makers, phones, computers, MP3 players, and power tool chargers are alive, silently draining your home of energy and money. According to the U.S. Department of Energy, these "vampire electronics" can add 8 percent to your annual electric bill. Stop wasting money. Cut these "vampires" off at the source. Unplug fully charged battery-operated devices and plug appliances into power strips that can be switched off when not in use.

USDA To Make Payments To ND Farmers/Ranchers

North Dakota State Executive Director Aaron Krauter announced recently that approximately $263.5 million in payments, including $95.5 million in Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) rental payments and $168 million in final direct payments, will be made to North Dakota agricultural producers this month.

North Dakota producers have more than 40,500 CRP contracts that cover over 2.4 million acres of land enrolled in CRP. The voluntary program helps farmers and ranchers safeguard environmentally sensitive land and provides habitat for game and non-game species.

Final direct payments are made through the Direct and Counter-cyclical (DCP) and Average Crop Revenue Election (ACRE) Programs, which provide payments to producers of certain commodities based on planting history and established yields.

Participants in the programs in North Dakota have enrolled 19.1 million acres of cropland. About 94% of producers in North Dakota participate in the two programs. In addition to the $168 million in final direct payments issued in October, $42 million in advance payments were made to participants at sign-up time.

A Little Bit Country Water Quality Tests Available

By Warren Froelich
NDSU Extension Service
Williams County

Although I have not been overwhelmed with callers asking for information about water quality tests, there is a growing trend of requests regarding testing services and interpretation of test results. I suspect much of this is being driven by the desire to document the quality and safety of ground water sources.

When someone inquires about testing water I usually ask if an analysis is desired for bacterial or mineral content. The reason for this question is because a bacterial analysis requires a sterile container. These are usually available from the laboratory which will also provide some sampling and timing instructions.

For a mineral or chemical analysis, most laboratories suggest using a clean plastic or glass container commonly available at home. One quart containers previously used for bleach, soap or other substances will contaminate the water sample. It is advised to rinse the container three times with the water to be tested.

For a bacterial test the laboratory commonly will report the analysis as either positive or negative (absent), indicating the presence or absence of coliform bacteria. A satisfactory (negative) rating would mean the water is safe for human consumption from a bacteriological standpoint.

Coliform bacteria are present in the intestinal tract of warm-blooded animals, including humans. While not a cause of disease by itself, its presence indicates probable contamination of the water supply and possible presence of disease organisms. This can lead to more serious problems for people with weakened immune systems such as the very young, elderly or immune-compromised individuals.

A positive bacterial test (greater than 1 per 100 milliliters of water) suggests further testing is necessary to include fecal coliform or E. coli bacteria testing. If such bacteria are present, the test confirms sewage or animal waste is contaminating the water and shock chlorination should be performed.

A mineral analysis is likely to include tests for total dissolved solids (TDS), pH, hardness, nitrates, iron and manganese, calcium and magnesium, chloride, sodium and sulfates.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has established a safe water guideline which is used by public water systems in North Dakota. Although the EPA cannot force private well owners to comply with the guidelines they can serve as a reference in determining the consumptive safety of ground water.

The Extension Agricultural Engineering Department of North Dakota State University has developed a publication which includes EPA's water quality guidelines and more details about the interpretation of test results. The publication also includes a list of laboratories which are certified by the North Dakota Department of Health or EPA. This publication is available free of charge by calling the NDSU Extension Office of Williams County-701-577-4595.

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month
Did You Know? If found and treated early, over 95% of women diagnosed with breast cancer will survive.

Digital imaging to enhance patient care and reduce call-back

A combination of regular mammograms, clinical breast exams and breast self-exams is the best way to detect breast cancer at its most treatable stage.

Sidney Health Center's Digital Mammography Unit reads all mammograms with the assistance of iCAD. This feature displays a digitized image of the mammogram and highlights suspicious areas, which contain features associated with cancer, reducing observation oversights and aiding in the early detection of breast cancers.
