Montana's Own Wylie Gustafson and the Wild West Band to Perform Oct. 22

Submitted by Jill Hill

The Northeastern Arts Network is excited to host Montana's own Wylie Gustafson and the Wild West Band on Thur., Oct. 22 as part of their Big Sky Concert Series.

Singer, songwriter, rancher, horseman, and the original, world-famous Yodeler, Wylie Gustafson leads the musical outfit known as The Wild West. The first incarnation of the group formed in 1989, getting its start on Ronnie Mack's Barn Dance at the Palomino Club in North Hollywood. Since then, Wylie & The Wild West have played thousands of gigs, delighting audiences around the world with their unique brand of good-time cowboy music. They've performed at the National Cowboy Poetry Gathering, The National Folk Festival, Kennedy Center, Lincoln Center, on A Prairie Home Companion, and have appeared more than 50 times on the Grand Ole Opry. Add to that an appearance by Wylie on Late Night with Conan O'Brien, with Wylie teaching Conan to yodel. This is not the resume of a mediocre performer.

With 3 decades of writing, recording and performing under his belt, Wylie has matured into a dynamic talent, and has become one of the few authentic voices of the West. One critic called him, "The coolest cowpoke around. Forget everything you hate about modern country, this guy is old-school cool without being a tired period piece".

In 2013 Wylie, along with his family members, appeared in the popular Dodge Truck "God Made a Farmer" commercial that appeared during the Super Bowl. Wylie & The Wild West's nineteenth CD "Sky Tones" was released in early 2013.

This performance will be held at the MonDak Heritage Center at 7:00 p.m. Season tickets and regular tickets can be purchased at the door: adults $50, senior $45, and students $35. For additional concert information contact Candy Markwald 406-488-4155, Jill Hill 406-489-4304, or Karen Boehler 406-433-4375.

This event is made possible in part through grant support from Montana's Cultural Trust, Montana Arts Council, The National Endowment for the Arts, and the Montana Performing Arts Consortium.

2015 Zombie Run to be held October 31st

By Meagan Dotson

The 2015 Zombie Run will be held Saturday, October 31st at the Richland County Fairgrounds with registration beginning at 9:00 am and the run beginning at 10:00 am. This is a Fun Run Obstacle Course and a family friendly event where strollers are welcome. This is the second year that the Sidney Area Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture has held the event and this year's sponsors are Oneok, Trisha Klempel Designs, and Kim and Andrew Simmonds. Participants are invited to dress up in their Halloween costumes, but are advised to keep in mind that the Zombie Run is an obstacle course where they will be climbing and crawling on the ground and tennis shoes are best. No weapons are allowed. This is one of three community benefits the Chamber puts on including the Sunrise Festival of the Arts and the Bakken Brewfest.

Participants should enter through the east entrance and will head South along the canal to the walking path along Airport Road where they will then travel West and turn North onto 22nd Ave SW. They will then walk or run a short distance East down Holly Street and reenter the Fairgrounds through the north entrance. Once inside, they follow the marked route through the south parking lot, livestock barns, through the rodeo arena, and back to the east entrance. Some of the obstacles people will encounter along the way include a hay stack pyramid, noodle alley, mazes, army crawl, and tire hurdles.

Prizes will be awarded to the Best Zombie Costume, Best Non-Zombie Costume, and Most Creatively Dressed for individuals and teams; the first three finishers will receive Chamber Bucks and other prizes include gift baskets and bags put together by the Chamber and area businesses, gift certificates, and age appropriate prizes for kids.

The always wonderful RSVP volunteers will be there to help out, but volunteers are still needed to set up on Friday the 30th and tear down Saturday after the event; anyone interested should contact RSVP at 406-433-2207. Those that would like to participate in this year's Zombie Run can register at the event; cost is $30 per runner. Pre-registration is encouraged and available at the Chamber, 909 S Central Ave in Sidney; those who register by October 15th will get $5 off and are guaranteed a long-sleeved tee shirt with the Zombie Run logo on it. For a team or family of four there is a $90 registration fee. Shirts will be available at the pre-registration table at the east entrance of the fairgrounds. For more information, contact the Chamber at 406-433-1916 or visit them online at www.sidneymt.com.

Defense Files Motion to Dismiss Charges Against Johnston

By Meagan Dotson

The arraignment hearing for Cody Johnston was held Tuesday, September 29th in Richland County District Court. Johnston was charged with deliberate homicide and tampering with physical evidence in regards to the 2013 disappearance of Nicole Waller and he pled not guilty to both charges.

Presiding District Judge Greg Pinski from Cascade County and Assistant Attorney General Joel Thompson were present via video conference.

Johnston's defense attorneys Luke Savage and Casey Heitz will be representing Johnston until a public defender is appointed. Savage and Heitz filed a motion to have the charges dismissed just prior to the hearing Tuesday morning, advising that the State should have sought Leave to File Information from District Judge Katherine M. Bidegary rather than from District Judge Richard A. Simonton. The defense also argued that had the State followed proper procedure, Judge Bidegary would have been responsible for setting bail.

Judge Pinski set the scheduling hearing for October 26th at 1:30 pm in Richland County District Court at which time a formal bail hearing will also be held and the motion to dismiss charges will be addressed.

Fall Clean Up Williston Campaign Oct. 17

Submitted by Barbara Peterson

The Fall Clean Up Williston Campaign will be held on Saturday, Oct. 17 beginning at 8:30 a.m. at Harmon Park. The initiative is important to Mayor Howard Klug and the Economic Development as it creates pride in our community and brings people together for a common cause. Any support you can give this project would be greatly appreciated. A number of different organizations come together to spruce up Williston in the spring and fall including Williston Parks & Rec District, Williston Convention and Visitors Bureau, City of Williston, Williston Area Chamber of Commerce and Williston Vector Control District.

For more details please contact Judy Billehus at judyb@jmacresources.com or Ann Kvande at annk@ci.williston.nd.us.

MEDA Fall Conference Will Include An Infrastructure Town Hall Meeting

Submitted by Gloria O'Rourke

The Montana Economic Developers Association will hold its annual Fall Conference in Billings on Tues. & Wed., Oct. 13-14, at the Northern Hotel. The conference will provide hands-on opportunities for economic developers and their partners to learn about and address important issues facing Montana as they work together to build real solutions to some of those key issues.

Beginning at 2 p.m. on Tues., Oct. 13, MEDA will also be hosting Montana's Infrastructure Town Hall meeting: A Call To Action. The meeting will include a review of Montana's infrastructure needs, a dialogue addressing these needs across multiple sectors, and an opportunity for participants to work together to lay the ground work for building a sustainable approach to address statewide infrastructure investment. The town hall meeting will end with a networking reception which begins at 5 p.m.

Additional conversations during the conference will focus on recent changes in Montana's key economic development programs and on discovering methods for marketing economic development organizations and community economic development efforts. The MEDA conference will provide a great opportunity to network with business leaders and professionals and to hear from several major players in the economic development business world. For more information about the conference or to register visit the MESA website at www.medamembers.org or call the office at 406-563-5259.

Seventh Annual Oktoberfest October 23

Submitted by MonDak Heritage Center

The MonDak Heritage Center and Northeastern Arts Network present the Seventh Annual Oktoberfest, Friday, Oct. 23, 7 pm at the MonDak Heritage Center in Sidney.

Proceeds from this event provide funding for the continuing presentation of Live Music at the MonDak Heritage Center and area schools by MDHC and NAN.

This year's celebration features music from Wylie Gustafson and the Wild West Band. Wylie Gustafson is a native Montanan singer/songwriter who lives the songs he writes. With three decades of writing, recording and performing under his belt, Wylie has matured into a dynamic talent, and has become one of the few authentic voices of the West. One critic called him, "...the coolest cowpoke around." For over 25 years, Wylie and his band, The Wild West, have performed their refreshing blend of cowboy, swing, folk and yodeling music worldwide.

Ticket price covers admission, souvenir glass, delicious food including sausage and bratwurst donated by Redneck meats and an unmatched selection of beverages.

Our Oktoberfest sponsors this year include Stockman Bank, Blue Rock Distributing and Redneck Meats.

Join the MDHC, NAN and live music lovers at the MonDak's premiere Oktoberfest celebration. This event historically sells out so don't hesitate.

Tickets are limited, $45 for MDHC Members and Northeastern Arts Network Season Ticket Holders, $55 for Non-Members. Call the MDHC at 406-433-3500 to reserve with your credit card or stop by to purchase.

Additional information can be found at mondakheritagecenter.org and www.wyliewebsite.com.

For further information please contact Leann at the MonDak Heritage Center, mdhc@richland.org or 406-433-3500.

Try Hockey For Free
Day
Coming
To Ranger
Arena
Oct. 10th

Submitted by Mike Fink

Richland Youth Hockey invites boys and girls to Ranger Arena on Sat., Oct. 10th for a Try Hockey For Free clinic as part of Come Play Hockey Month. Starting at noon local youth ages 4 to 12, are encouraged to experience ice hockey for the first time and learn the basic skills in a fun, safe environment. "We look forward to welcoming families to Ranger Arena to try our great sport of ice hockey" said Damon McLaughlin. "Our goal is for these families to enjoy watching their kids learn new skills with big smiles on their faces."

USA Hockey's Try Hockey program, with the support of the National Hockey League and NHL member clubs, among others, is designed to provide youth hockey associations a national platform to introduce new kids to the sport. USA Hockey has close to 500 locations offering this unique opportunity to kids nationwide.

To register for this Try Hockey For Free event, please arrive 15-30 minutes early, as we will be providing hockey equipment, which will take some time. All children will need to have a parent fill out a waiver and have a parent's signature. Waivers will be on hand at the event.

For more information, please contact: Mike Fink, mwfink@hotmail.com or call 406-433-2225.

MSU Online Master's Graduate Studies Results of Fracking Brine Water Spill

By Jenny Lavey, MSU News Service

Alexa Azure has always been interested in water.

An enrolled member of the Standing Rock Sioux Tribe in North Dakota, she remembers one spring when the water tasted gritty and another time when Standing Rock completely ran out of water. She doesn't drink the water from her home faucet. Instead, she uses her own reverse osmosis water filter system.

"My whole life I've been interested in water," Azure said. "It's a basic resource that's essential for all life on the planet."

Azure's interest in water, as well as her experience teaching pre-engineering classes at a tribal college in an area that she says is sensitive to water issues due to its proximity to the Bakken oilfields, prompted her to consider an educational background in environmental science. That educational background would help her be a better teacher for her students who are interested in environmental issues, she thought.

"I wanted to deepen my understanding of the environmental side of things," Azure said. "I have the chemical and engineering background but not the environmental background and I could tell that's where the interest of most of my students was, because of the industry in our region and the effect it has on local communities."

The catch, Azure said, was that she didn't want to have to leave her job in order to pursue an advanced degree.

That's where Montana State University came in. MSU and its online master's program in land resources and environmental sciences within the College of Agriculture helped Azure achieve her educational goals without having to drastically change her life or quit her full-time teaching job.

"The program was great, and I would recommend it anyone," Azure said. "The instructors were amazing and I learned a lot not just in the technical field, but professionally as well."

The online LRES master's program started in 2012 with 11 students. Now in its fourth year, the program enrolls 58 students with 18 instructors.

Azure also enjoyed great success as a student in the MSU program. During her time in the program, she earned a prestigious scholarship, the American Indian College Fund and Alfred P. Sloan Foundation Leadership Fellowship Program, a fellowship created to increase and retain the number of diverse and under-represented faculty at the nation's tribal colleges teaching in science, math and engineering. In 2013, Azure was one of only two native students in the country who earned the prestigious scholarship, according to the American Indian College Fund.

Azure once attended United Tribes Technical College as an undergraduate student and completed a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from The University of North Dakota in 2012. She has since been teaching pre-engineering classes at the tribal college, located just three hours from Williston, N.D., where the Williston Basin and Bakken formation is.

On Jan. 6, the largest brine spill that has occurred in North Dakota happened in Williston. Three million gallons of salty brine water was accidentally released into the surrounding environment, local surface and groundwater. According to the Environmental Protection Agency, the contaminated water reached the Missouri River.

Brine water, a byproduct of oil and gas drilling, is a particular risk where hydraulic fracking is practiced because the brine can include toxic levels of salt, heavy metals and radioactive materials that can raise salinity levels of local waterways that can affect plants, invertebrate and amphibian life, according to the EPA.

Azure decided to use the environmental disaster in her own backyard as the subject of her professional paper required of the master's degree, so she performed an environmental risk assessment of the brine spill to measure the potential effect on the surrounding environment. She evaluated water samples from the nearby Blacktail Creek and the Little Muddy River and also used the rivers' fathead minnow, a key food-web species in North Dakota, to see if there were any harmful effects from the brine spill on local fish habitat. She found that some of her samples that were exposed to the brine water exceeded risk thresholds set by the North Dakota State Department of Health and the EPA.

Robert Peterson, director of the online LRES program and faculty in the department, who also served as Azure's professional paper instructor, said the spill was unfortunate, but it was also an asset to the scientific training the program encourages.

"What was really awesome is that she used the process of science and research to respond to a very timely and regional environmental problem," Peterson said. "Her data can potentially be used in predicating risk from future spills of a similar size, so the applicability of her study was directly tied our curriculum and her field."

Peterson said his online students can bring a different viewpoint to class discussions, as most are currently working in a professional field, many from nonprofits, governmental organizations and private industry.

"Alexa is a teacher and an engineer, so you could sense her earnestness to improve her teaching," Peterson said. "We don't have too many engineers in our program, so she brought a very different perspective to the coursework, which was an advantage for her and for the rest of the class."

Karlene Hoo, dean of The Graduate School at MSU, said online graduate students are a growing and important demographic at MSU.

"Alexa exemplifies the many graduate students at MSU who are earning a degree while living and working at a distance," Hoo said. "Programs such as the online LRES degree offer students like Alexa the opportunity to establish rigorous research agendas that also serve the needs of rural and indigenous communities"

Lundemo Firearms & Sports is located at 703 East Main Street in Sidney.

Lundemo Firearms & Sports will Open in October

By Meagan Dotson

Lundemo Firearms & Sports will be opening its doors this month supplying firearms, ammo, powder, bullets, and Dillon re-loaders; the gun shop has about 200 guns for sale and will accommodate special orders. They also supply American Surplus Ice Castle fish houses, which have been a big seller to those in the oilfield. Owner Duane Lundemo, who is a hunter himself, initially started the small business out of his shop at home and over the last four years the business has grown.

"Business was good and it was keeping me busy, so I felt I could make the move into town," said Lundemo of his decision to move the home-based business into Sidney.

The process of moving into town took about a little less than a year and finding an appropriate space was key. Lundemo and his business partner Jerry Choate will be renting space in the same building as M3 meats; Lundemo Firearms & Sports is located at 703 East Main Street, Sidney, MT and their days and hours will be Monday through Friday from 8:00 am until 5:00 pm with the possibility of being open Saturdays with shortened hours. The owners are currently waiting to be licensed and want to make sure that everything is up to par before opening their doors. Details are being finalized as inventory is moved into the shop and displayed in preparation for opening day.

For more information, call 406-433-2290 or 406-480-2290.

Youth Only Deer Hunt

Montana's annual youth-only deer hunt, set for Oct 17-18, will come a week earlier this year. The two-day special season is open to youngsters ages 12 to 15 who've passed a hunter safety course. Additionally, 11-year-olds who passed hunter safety may hunt if they'll be 12 by Jan. 16, 2014.

"There's been some confusion this year due to the scheduling of the statewide teachers' convention," said Ron Aasheim, Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks spokesman in Helena.

The youth hunt is always scheduled during the public schools' two-day vacation in October, which is scheduled for Oct. 17-18 this year.

"The teachers' convention usually falls on the Thursday and Friday just before the general season opener, but this year it's a full week before the big game season opens on Oct. 26," Aasheim said.

That also puts youth rifle hunters in the field during the final days of Montana's archery season.

"Archers and our young hunters need to be aware of the overlapping seasons and plan accordingly," Aasheim said.

Young hunters must wear hunter orange and follow all hunting district regulations, which may limit them to certain species or require a special permit.

To participate, youth hunters must be accompanied by an adult who must also wear hunter orange. The adult is not allowed to hunt during the youth-only deer hunt and should not carry a hunting rifle.

"This is the fourth year for the youth-only deer hunt," Aasheim said. "It has proven to be a good opportunity to introduce kids to hunting. This year, remember the hunt is set for Oct. 17-18 and remember that archers may also be in the area looking for deer, so be extra careful."

2015 Deer Hunting Outlook

Submitted by Erin O'Connor

Hunters who witnessed a drop in mule deer numbers in many areas of Montana a few years ago will see improving populations this year as favorable weather and habitat conditions kicked in in 2014 and 2015.

Additionally, in many areas of the state, fawn recruitment has been excellent and populations are doing well. Even if you didn't draw a special permit this year, remember Montana offers numerous opportunities to hunt for deer with just a general hunting license.

Montana's archery season for deer will close Oct. 18. The general deer season opens Oct. 24 and ends Nov. 29.

FWP wildlife biologists and game wardens will be operating hunter check-stations throughout the state to collect biological information and ensure regulations are followed. All hunters are required to stop at check stations. For more information on Montana's five-week long general deer hunting season, visit FWP's website at fwp.mt.gov, click "Hunting" then click Plan Your Hunt.

Here's a regional rundown on what deer hunters can expect this season.

Region 6—Northeastern Montana

Mule deer numbers are at or above long term averages in the eastern half of the region and at or below long term averages in the western half. In general, mule deer hunters can expect to see more mule deer as compared to recent years.

White-tailed deer numbers have continued to lag behind mule deer due to EHD outbreaks in 2011, 2012 and 2013. Nonetheless, very good fawn numbers for both white-tailed deer and mule deer have been observed across the region this summer.

Region 7—Southeastern Montana

Spring trend surveys show that mule deer populations are up a healthy 20 percent from last year and are currently 16 percent above the long-term-average. Overwinter survival last year was good, and fawn recruitment this spring was excellent—65 yearlings per 100 adults. Buck ratios are high at 37 bucks per 100 does but there are a lot of young bucks in the population. That's characteristic of a population undergoing rapid population growth. The mule deer population here is comprised of primarily young, reproductively fit animals. While deer numbers have generally increased region wide, numbers remain below long-term averages in hunting districts 701 and 702.

Last year white-tailed deer caught a break from EHD, with all outbreaks localized in scale and small in magnitude. Whitetail numbers can rebound rapidly from declines, and populations in most parts of the region are recovering well from past EHD outbreaks. Populations continue to be variable throughout the region, however, with numbers ranging from below-average to very high at the local scale. Hunters who do their homework by scouting and visiting with private landowners should have success locating good areas to hunt whitetails.

2015 Elk Hunting Outlook

These are good times for elk hunters as Montana elk populations continue to be strong across most of the state. In some areas of western Montana, where populations have declined, wildlife biologists have recently observed increased recruitment of calves. In many hunting districts, however, access to private lands can be difficult, which can affect hunting success given landownership patterns and distribution of elk.

Montana's archery season for elk will close Oct. 18. The general, five-week long, elk-hunting season runs Oct. 24 through Nov. 29. Even if you didn't draw a special permit this year, remember Montana offers numerous opportunities to hunt for elk with just a general hunting license.

Depending on the hunting district regulations hunters can pursue brow-tined bull elk, spike bull elk, either-sex elk, or antlerless elk. For more information on elk hunting in Montana, visit FWP's website at fwp.mt.gov, click "Hunting" then click Plan Your Hunt. FWP wildlife biologists and game wardens will be operating hunter check-stations throughout the state to collect biological information and ensure regulations are followed. All hunters are required to stop at check stations.

Here's a regional rundown on what elk hunters can expect this season.

Region 6—Northeastern Montana

Elk numbers remain at or above management objectives in most hunting districts. All elk hunting in the Bears Paw Mountains and the Missouri River Breaks is by special permits awarded via the annual drawing. Elk in these areas are most often found in core-habitat areas a mile or more from active roads and other human activity. Elk densities are lower in the general-season hunting area north of U.S. Highway 2.

Region 7—Southeastern Montana

When hunters think of classic elk hunting country, the plains of southeastern Montana seldom come to mind. And yet there is the region's storied Missouri Breaks, where elk numbers continue to increase beyond FWP's management objectives in all hunting districts. Outside of the Missouri Breaks and the Custer National Forest, elk are primarily found on private land where public hunting access is limited. While special-permit only opportunities can be found in hunting district 700 for either-sex and antlerless elk, there is general license hunting for either-sex elk in hunting districts 701 and 703. Also, in hunting districts 702, 704 and 705, there are either-sex opportunities by special permit and antlerless hunting within the Custer National Forest boundaries by special permit only. Outside forest boundaries antlerless elk can be hunted on a general license.

2015 Antelope Hunting Outlook

Submitted by Erin O'Connor

Montana antelope populations are continuing to recover and grow from previous years' winter kills and low fawn numbers in central and eastern Montana. This year, there are even a few more special licenses available reflecting that improving status. Successful antelope-license applicants may recognize increased fawn production in many areas as populations respond to this year's favorable weather and habitat conditions.

Montana's antelope archery season will close Oct. 9. The general rifle season for antelope will run Oct. 10-Nov. 8.

As always, FWP wildlife biologists and game wardens will be operating hunter check-stations throughout the state to collect biological information and ensure regulations are followed. All hunters are required to stop at check stations.

For more information on antelope hunting in Montana, visit FWP's website at fwp.mt.gov, click "Hunting" then click Plan Your Hunt.

Here's a regional rundown on what antelope hunters can expect this year.

Region 6—Northeastern Montana

Antelope numbers are still below long-term averages here but are continuing to rebound. Although license numbers remain low, hunters lucky enough to draw a tag should have good success in filling it.

Region 7—Southeastern Montana

Antelope populations are rebounding throughout the region. Summer production surveys indicate numbers are 25 percent higher than last year, but still 23 percent below the long-term average. As numbers continue to be best in the region's southern portion, FWP recommends that hunters head in that direction for antelope this fall.

The New Williston High School

A Building for Everybody to be Proud of

By Tie Shank

WILLISTON: The new Williston High School is right on track to open for the 2016-2017 school year. Located on approximately forty acres just west of the Harvest Hills Phase II Subdivision, between 32nd and 37th Streets West, the high school is expected to be completed in July, 2016.

Williston High School Principal, Jason Germundson, refers to the new building as the “Flagship,” as it’ll be one for every student and every community member to be proud of. The school is being built by award winning contractor, JE Dunn, the same contractor who built the Williston Area Recreation Center.

With a capacity of 1500, the new building will be roughly 200,000 square feet and the Construction, Trades and Education building (CTE) will be an additional 20,000 square feet. In addition to the extra classroom space, Germundson advised that the new school will have an Auto-tech center, vocational agriculture, greenhouse and a turf football field. Another sure hit with the students will be the number of food stations which will offer students a large variety of lunch options to choose from.

The cost of the new school is expected to be in the ballpark of $70 million. An open house will be scheduled upon completion.

Williston Named 2015 City Of The Year

MNAXLP

Submitted by Blake Crosby

Williston, the fastest growing micropolitan for four years in a row, was named the 2015 City of the Year by the North Dakota League of Cities Saturday during the closing event at the League's annual conference Sept. 24-26 in Fargo.

League President and West Fargo City Planner, Larry Weil, read off the list of Williston's many accomplishments over the past few years. They included: issuance of over 2,000 housing unit building permits since the beginning of the year, beginning construction of a new high school to accommodate the 40% growth in student enrollment, launching a six-year $1.04 billion capital improvement plan, a main street reconstruction project, and the addition of many new businesses.

Williston Mayor Howard Klug accepted the award on behalf of his city. “As mayor of the city of Williston we are honored to receive the City Of The Year award from the North Dakota League of Cities. This award reaffirms that Williston is doing the right things in building a community that our residents will be proud of for many years,” Klug said.

Williston has experienced dramatic growth since 2008 due largely to the rush of oilfield workers coming to seek their fortunes in the Bakken Shale Oil and Gas Play. The City's population tripled and so did its boundaries. Despite the challenges of guiding the fastest growing small town in the US, civic and private leaders have remained steadfast in their efforts to make Williston a better place than it was before. “We have worked hard to get our message of economic opportunity and a city that is improving every year to lawmakers and residents outside of western North Dakota. This award shows the faith that others have in our city when they provide funding to help with our many projects,” said Klug.

was established in 1984 to recognize North Dakota cities for the quality, number and progressiveness of activities undertaken in the community. The winner is named annually during the League of Cities annual conference.
