Plant Society Get Together An Interesting Educational Opportunity

By Jaymi Mozeak

On the summer solstice, June 21, Maka Flora, the eastern Montana chapter of the Montana Native Plant Society had their second plant hike for June. It was a family-friendly get together of eastern Montana native plant enthusiasts in the great outdoors.

It started with a BBQ at 6 p.m. MT at Sather Lake. Fraser Watson, Maka Flora chapter president, mingled with his fellow members, their family, and friends. Between 20 and 30 different people showed from all across eastern Montana, as far as Sheridan WY, and even Canada. After some food and reconnecting, the group went on the plant hike. During the walk, they observed and documented the plant communities around Sather Lake in the little Missouri National Grasslands. They mostly used the iNaturalist citizen science app, inaturalist.org. Maka Flora tries to do a plant hike twice a month while the plants are alive and active. The first meeting for June was held at Medicine Rocks state park south of Baker and the next one is scheduled for July 16 at 10 a.m. in Medicine Lake. Frasier does not insist that those wishing to attend the chapter's plant hikes be members of the society. All they have to do is contact him by email at dfw9sb@gmail.com and request to be put on the email list.

The Montana Native Plant Society is a volunteer non-profit organization chartered in 1987. Today, they have more than 800 members. According to their flyer, the goals of the Montana Native Plant Society are to preserve, conserve, and study the native plants and plant communities of Montana, as well as inform the public about the value of native flora. Membership is open to individuals, families, businesses, and organizations within and outside of Montana. Members can affiliate themselves with a local chapter, become an eastern, or western member-at-large. Those wishing to join can do so online at www.mtnativeplants.org. The plant society can also be found on Facebook and Instagram.

Pamela Amelia (McNeil) Voll, 61

Pamela Amelia (McNeil) Voll was born November 5, 1960 to Edger & Arlene McNeil in Grand Rapid, MN. Pam grew up in Hill City, MN on her family’s ranch. She loved school and could still recite her high school anthem, along with the cheerleading routine. Pam started raising German Shepherd dogs when she was 12 years old. Raising German Shepherds was something she loved, took great passion in and was well known for. She also raised and rode horses for most of her life, competing in suicide races, team penning events and more. Pam enjoyed the simple country life and was a social butterfly, making friends wherever she went. She had a love for gardening, canning and cooking, she was an amazing cook! Something she loved more than anything though was kids! Pam ran a daycare and fostered kids for many years. She loved her kids the most though and nothing was more important than them. Pam was so proud of each and every one of her six kids! The last nine years of her life were devoted to being the best grandma she could be. She loved spending any time she could with her grandkids and took her role in their lives very seriously. Her five grandkids adored their grandma and will miss her tremendously.

Pamela Amelia (McNeil) Voll

Our mom was diagnosed with Myleofibrosis, a rare blood and bone marrow cancer, in June 2021. She spent a lot of time in and out of the hospital during her time sick in Sidney, but loved the nurses and her Doctor (Dr. Chad Peterson) at the Sidney Cancer Center. On April 8, 2022; mom flew to Salt Lake City, UT to receive a bone marrow transplant at the Huntsman Cancer Center. Healthy or sick, our mom was a complex woman - she had the doctors baffled in the last couple months of her life as they ran every test and couldn’t find the reason why she wasn’t getting better. On June 26, 2022; our mom went to heaven. She will be deeply missed here on earth but we know she’s with her Lord.

Pam is survived by six kids; Travis (Kate) Huot, her grandkids; Peyton (9), Judson (7) and Britta (5) Huot (Leonard, MN), Jesse (Megan) Huot (Williams, MN), Hayley (Shayn) Darnielle (Sidney, MT), Kodi (Scott) Sim, her grandkids Landon (13) & Anna (3) Sim (Williston, ND), Tate Brodhead (Crane, MT) and Kacie Brodhead (Sidney, MT), 5 sisters, cousins, nieces and nephews and many close friends. Pam is preceded in death by her parents; Edgar & Arlene, brother Fred, sister Penny and many other family members.

Grayson Mill Energy Contributes $15K To Watford City Fire Dept.

Submitted by Dana Johnson, Northwest North Dakota Community Foundation Executive Director

Watford City, ND — Grayson Mill Energy, an energy company operating in the Williston Basin, is donating $15,000 to the Watford City Fire Department to help purchase new portable handheld radios. This investment continues Grayson Mill Energy's commitment to the safety and wellbeing of the communities in which they operate.

"Grayson Mill understands that communications are a vital part of every emergency response, that is why we felt compelled to support the Watford City Fire Department with funding to supply them with additional communications equipment," stated Dusty Grosulak with Grayson Mill. "Emergency Responders take time away from their families and employers to assist their communities at the drop of a hat, this donation is a small token of our appreciation for them."

"We all know the inherent dangers that come with fighting any fire, whether it is a grass fire or a structure fire. This donation will aid us in getting the new radios that are a critical link in firefighter safety," said Chief Dave Uhlich, Watford City Fire Department Communications are critical in an emergency event and this helps us ensure everyone's safety and helps with effective firefighting when we respond. We thank Grayson Mill for their support to our department."

Flooding Creates Potential Human Health & Recreational Risks In Rivers Across MT

State Agencies Advise Recreators to Avoid Flood Events

By Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks; Montana DEQ, Montana DPHHS
Helena —River recreators should avoid contact with water during and for at least two weeks after flood events. Floodwaters have already impacted communities in the Yellowstone River basin, and more flooding is anticipated elsewhere in the state, such as in the Flathead River basin and Missoula County. Floodwaters can carry potentially dangerous debris and may contain chemicals and bacteria from damaged or overwhelmed wastewater treatment facilities and flooded homes, businesses, and agricultural fields.

Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks has issued closures for Fishing Access Sites along the Stillwater, Yellowstone, Madison, and Gallatin Rivers due to safety hazards related to collapsing banks, debris jams, and exposed or submerged infrastructure (myfwp.mt.gov/fwpPub/allRestrictions). Sites are being reopened on a case-by-case basis as site conditions and safety concerns allow.

“It’s likely more floating and boating hazards will emerge as waters recede,” said Hope Stockwell, Parks and Outdoor Recreation Division Administrator. “We’re opening sites as quickly as possible, but boaters and other recreators should still use an abundance of caution when on the water.”

Recreationists should also be aware that rivers and creeks could be contaminated with harmful bacteria. This is especially true downstream of communities where widespread flooding occurred because water treatment systems may take time to return to normal operation even after floodwaters recede.

The Department of Environmental Quality monitors water quality across the state and will conduct additional floodwater monitoring in areas where monitoring projects are already ongoing, such as the Yellowstone River basins. While this may help identify contamination, sampling will not determine the source of contaminants – whether it is from overwhelmed water treatment facilities or general runoff from other dispersed sources.

“Even during moderate rain events, it’s common to find high levels of E. coli bacteria in rivers and creeks,” said Darrin Kron, DEQ Water Quality Monitoring and Assessment Section Supervisor. “With historic rain and flood events occurring in parts of Montana, people should take extra precautions and avoid drinking, fishing, and swimming in rivers after flooding.”

Where public drinking water supplies are of concern, DEQ works with municipalities and certified operators to inform residents of boil orders and advisories and to ensure the safety of water systems when they return to service. Public water systems that experience or anticipate issues related to flooding should contact DEQ for support and guidance. The public can find additional flood-related resources on the DEQ Flooding Resources web page.

“Our technical assistance staff are proactively communicating with wastewater treatment operators,” said Jon Kenning, DEQ Water Protection Bureau Chief. “Most facilities are currently operating as normal, though the main issue is poor treatment capabilities where facilities are dealing with high inflows.”

According to the Montana Department of Public Health and Human Services (DPHHS), ingesting floodwater that contains even small amounts of bacteria (such as E. coli) can lead to diarrhea, abdominal cramps, and sometimes vomiting or fever.

“Residents should only use water from a safe source for drinking and washing or preparing food,” said Magdalena Scott, DPHHS Communicable Disease and Epidemiology Section. “Additionally, exposure to contaminated floodwater can cause wound infections, skin rash, or tetanus. The best way to protect yourself is to stay out of floodwater. If you do come into contact with potentially contaminated water, wash the area with soap and water as soon as possible, take care of wounds and seek medical attention if necessary. Wash contaminated clothes with hot water and detergent before wearing them again.”

The DPHHS Environmental Laboratory is available to conduct water testing for communities as needed. For more information, contact the laboratory at 800-821-7284.

DPHHS has also created a Flood Cleanup Health Tips brochure. The document provides information related to disinfecting water, food safety, health and hygiene, and mosquito and vector control.
DPHHS encourages Montanans to utilize local county and Tribal health department officials as a resource for health questions specific each jurisdiction.

Keeping Your Finances In Check

By Carrie Krug,
MSU Extension Richland Co. FCS Agent

Managing our money and keeping our finances in check might feel overwhelming at times. Keeping track of your finances is an important part of reaching your financial goals. The Harvard Medical School has identified a key factor in people's success in reaching their goals by shifting their thinking to a more positive approach. An example of this is mentioned by Melanie Dabb, Utah State University Extension Assistant Professor, in the article Tips for Sticking to Your Financial Goals and Budget (2022); instead of saying I have no money to save, start saying I will save a little here and there.

Another tip, is setting a self-motivating goal. When you take the time to identify why you create your budget and the goals you are trying to reach, it will help you stick to your plan and keep you working towards your important financial goals.

Try writing your goals out as SMART goals. When writing SMART goals keep them Specific, Measurable, Achievable, Relevant, and Time-Bound (SMART). Dabb has provided some more information on how to write a SMART goal:

- Specific: set goals that are specific. Instead of saying I want to save money, say I will set aside $20 from every paycheck for savings.
- Measurable: you need to be able to measure your goal to evaluate if you are meeting your goal or not. An example of this could be I want to get $2000 built up in my savings account, and you can measure this by the amount you have saved in your savings account.
- Achievable: this step is important because, in order to achieve your goals, it needs to be something you can realistically do.
- Relevant: your goal has to be important to you and your well-being to help you achieve your goal.
- Time-Bound: by putting a time frame on our goals, we are more likely to achieve our goals; remember to make your time frame realistic for you and something you can manage.

• SMART Goal Example: I will set up an automatic withdrawal to have $50 from every paycheck put into my savings account before my next paycheck.

Dabb also has some last tips for helping you stick to your budget, identifying your triggers and barriers that lead to spending more money than your budget allows, and keeps you from reaching your goals. Doing this will make it easier for you when you are tempted to throw your budget and goals out the window. By creating your own financial SMART goals, you are one step on the road to helping you on your financial well-being journey. 2022 Sidney Swim Meet

Submitted by Marie Holler

The sharks had more than 74 swimmers at the Sidney meet June 25-26. Thanks to all the families and swimmers it went very well. They won the meet and brought home many top point trophies. Top point winners were Kamden Johnson 8 and under boys, Toby Kleinke 9-10 boys, Ryleigh Kleinke and Avé Norby tied for 13-14 girls, Ella Norby 15-19 girls. Saturday was a bit chilly and the younger swimmers struggled to cut time. Sunday with the sun out it went much smoother and many swimmers cut some great time to place themselves up in their standings.

Richland County Farmers Market Begins July 9

By Carrie Krug & Marley Manoukian, MSU Richland County Extension Agents
The Richland County Farmers Market will once again be in Sidney this summer. The market will be held on Saturdays starting July 9 - Oct. 8 from 7:30 a.m. -12 p.m. at the Richland County Courthouse parking lot, on the corner of 2nd St NW and 2nd Ave NW.

There will be a variety of produce and handmade items at the market, and this year there will be additional food products available under the new Montana Local Food Choice Act. This act exempts certain homemade food producers from food licenses and requirements. Food that may be sold at the market includes, but is not limited to, baked goods including breads, pastries, cookies, and pies, cereals, trail mixes, granola, snack mixes, dried and freeze-dried products, jams, jellies, fruit butters, canned fruits and vegetables, dried herbs, seasonings, honey, whole shell eggs, and others. Items that are prohibited at the market include meat products, alcohol infused products, and any products containing marijuana, THC, or CBD. Individuals selling food products must fill out an application that is then reviewed by the Richland County Sanitarian. If you are interested in becoming a vendor at the market or if you have any questions pertaining to the market, please reach out to the MSU Richland County Extension Office at 406-433-1206.

Be sure to stop by the Richland County Farmers

Market on Saturdays starting July 9 and take in the variety of produce, food products, and handmade items that the vendors in our community have to offer.

Cost Of July 4th Cookout 17% Higher Compared To Year Ago

Submitted by Rebecca Colnar, Ag NewsWire

Washington, D.C. – U.S. consumers will pay $69.68 for their favorite Independence Day cookout foods, including cheeseburgers, pork chops, chicken breasts, homemade potato salad, strawberries and ice cream, based on a new American Farm Bureau Federation marketbasket survey.

The average cost of a summer cookout for 10 people is $69.68, which breaks down to less than $7 per person. The overall cost for the cookout is up 17% or about $10 from last year, a result of ongoing supply chain disruptions, inflation and the war in Ukraine.

Farmers are feeling the price-point pain too, like the people they grow food for, according to AFBF Chief Economist Roger Cryan.

"Despite higher food prices, the supply chain disruptions and inflation have made farm supplies more expensive; like consumers, farmers are price-takers not price-makers," Cryan said. He added, "Bottom line, in many cases the higher prices farmers are being paid aren't covering the increase in their farm expenses. The cost of fuel is up and fertilizer prices have tripled."

Cryan also pointed to the cascading effects of the war in Ukraine, as that country's contributions to global food security are cut off, Russian and Belarusian fertilizer exports are constrained, and some other countries pull back exports to protect their domestic supplies.

The marketbasket survey shows the largest year-to-year price increase was for ground beef. Survey results showed the retail price for 2 lbs. of ground beef at $11.12, up 36% from last year. Meanwhile, the Agriculture Department's Producer Price Index indicates that compared to a year ago, farm-level cattle prices are up 17.5%, but wholesale beef prices are down 14%. This serves to highlight the differences between farm-level, wholesale and retail beef prices and how the events of the last few years have had significant impacts on the beef production and cattle pricing cycles, making them all hard to predict.

Several other foods in the survey, including chicken breasts, pork chops, homemade potato salad, fresh-squeezed lemonade, pork & beans, hamburger buns and cookies, also increased in price.

One bright spot for consumers is the average retail price for strawberries, which declined by 86¢ compared to a year ago. Sliced cheese and potato chips also dropped in price, 48¢ and 22¢, respectively. Better weather conditions in some fruit-growing regions and greater retailer pricing flexibility for processed products are the likely drivers behind the modest price declines for these items.

The year-to-year direction of the marketbasket survey tracks with the federal government's Consumer Price Index report for food at home and general inflation across the economy. Both the index and the marketbasket show increases of more than 10% compared to year-ago levels.

"According to the Agriculture Department's revised Food Dollar Series, farmers currently receive approximately 8% of every food marketing dollar," Cryan said. "The farmers' share of the retail food dollar is as low as 2% to 4% for highly processed foods such as bread and cereal, and can be 35% or more for some fresh products."

Commenting on big picture concerns related to food security, AFBF President Zippy Duvall said: "The increased cost of food and supplies is a very real concern in our country and across the globe. U.S. food assistance programs and food banks help those who struggle to make ends meet here at home, but the story is much different around the globe as food insecurity skyrockets. The big impact of a single event in Ukraine shows how dependent the world is on stable, productive agriculture."
