Sidney NAPA Changes Ownership, Name and Location

By Dianne Swanson

On June 1, 2019, the Sidney NAPA store changed ownership and name, becoming Sidney Auto Supply. On July 1, the former Farm & Home building was purchased with work beginning immediately to upgrade that space. New flooring, lighting and a coat of paint have brightened up the interior while new siding in NAPA blue and tan has spruced up the exterior. A target date of October 28 has been set for the new store to open, with a NAPA crew coming in to ensure a seamless move.

The NAPA Auto Parts n is at one end of the build-end says Farm & Home. Within a month or two after the NAPA opening, area consumers will once again be able to experience the amazing selection and customer service that was Farm & Home. "They had the knack of supplying what was needed," operations manager Bryan Christensen said. "Our goal is to recreate what Buxbaums had established in their 50 years of serving the MonDak region." Friendly, experienced staff have been retained to ensure a quality experience for the hardware store customers.

Christensen is excited about the move and what the ing while the sign at the other stores will bring to Sidney and tory NAPA is currently able to manager. Anderson has 15 the surrounding community. One of the main drivers of the project was to counter the recent loss of several stores, and take a step back towards revitalization of the local communities. "We wanted to give back to the community and try to make up for some of the loss. It just makes sense and we want to see that everywhere,' he stated.

Both new stores are locally owned and locally operated with local employees offering excellent customer service.

With approximately double the space, Sidney Auto Supply will be able to double the auto and truck parts invencarry. "The addition of square footage allows us to stock far more inventory and hopefully, when a customer walks in the store we can say, "Yes, we have it." We'll have a vast supply of heavy-duty truck parts, auto parts, tools and equipment," he stated.

Heavy-duty truck parts are an important addition for this area which sports multiple construction and trucking businesses. "Whether you have a Peterbilt or a Kenworth, we should have what you need," Christensen said.

The current NAPA employees have been retained with Jennifer Anderson as years experience while the rest of the staff has over 5 years combined experience. Christensen has spent most of his adult life in the parts business and is looking forward to seeing some of the people and faces he has dealt with over the past 25 plus years. They are all anxious to get into the new facility and continue assisting customers with all their heavy-duty truck parts, auto parts, tools and equipment needs. Stop by 809 E. Haunted House, Fall Fest, And Trail of Treats to Take Place End Of October In Watford City

By Anna Dragseth

This year there are many ways families can have Halloween fun during the month of October in Watford City. There will be a Haunted House, Fall Fest, and Trail of Treats on Main Street for everyone to

The Rough Rider Center in Watford City will be hosting two Halloween events, a Fall Festival, and the Haunted House. The Haunted House will take place in the hockey arena of the Rough Rider Center on Thursday, October 24, from 7 to 9 p.m. and Friday, October 25, from 8 to 10 p.m. There is an $8 admission fee per person - a portion of the proceeds will be used to buy winter gear for elementary students in need.

The Rough Rider Center and the Long X Arts Foundation will host the Fall Festival. This event will start at 11 a.m. on Saturday, October 26. There is an admission fee of $5 per person; ages two and under are free. At the event, there will be a straw bale maze, carnival games, a cake pop walk, photo booths, pumpkin painting, face painting, and concessions set up at the Rough Rider Center.

The Watford City Area Chamber of Commerce is hosting the annual Trail of Treats. The event will take place on Watford City's main street on Thursday, October 31, at 3 p.m. Everyone is welcome to participate!

Christmas Promotions Coming Up in Sidney

The Christmas Cash campaign and Big Bucks promotion will be available again for shoppers in Sidney this holiday season. "We're excited that we have the opportunity to offer these programs again this holiday season," Bill Vander Weele, executive director of the Sidney Area Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture, said. "Our local businesses provide many great reasons to do your holiday shopping in Sidney. These two promotions are icing on the cake."

Christmas Cash promotes "Shop Sidney First", by rewarding local shoppers with one red ticket for every $20 spent at a participating Chamber business. Chamber staff will host a live drawing of the red tickets for up to $3,000 in Chamber Bucks on December 7, from 1-3 p.m. Attend in person, listen to Power 95 radio, or watch on the Sidney Chamber Facebook page to follow the live drawing.

Big Bucks holiday loans will be available at Richland Federal Credit Union, Yellowstone Bank and Stockman Bank for a fee of only $15. Qualified applicants receive an interest-free loan for nine months for up to $1,000. Participants can spend Big Bucks through December 24.

Both promotions begin on November 1.

The Sidney Christmas Stroll and Parade of Lights, presented by ONEOK, should be bigger than ever when Richland County kicks off the holiday season on Friday, Nov. 29.

The Small Town Christmas Celebration will begin with the Boys and Girls Club holding "Breakfast with Santa" from 8-10 a.m. at the new Boys & Girls Club located across from Central Elementary School. The morning will also feature cookie decorating with Santa at Reese and Ray's IGA.

There will be plenty to do that afternoon as a chili cookout is scheduled from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Sidney's former fire hall located next to City Hall. The Polar Plunge, featuring local law enforcement officials, will start at 1 p.m. behind City Hall. Profits from the Polar Plunge benefit Special Olympics. The event features people jumping into a dunking booth despite the cold temperatures that later November can bring to Richland County.

A free family-friendly movie will start at 2 p.m. at Centre Theatre. An addition to this year's event will be a petting zoo held at Restorx, located at 203 S. Central Avenue. The petting zoo will begin at 3 p.m. People will want to make sure to view all the beautiful entries in the Boys and Girls Club's annual Parade of Trees fundraiser. Trees will be available for viewing during the afternoon prior to the 3 p.m. auction, which benefits the club

Prior to the Parade of Lights, there will be entertainment on display on a stage near the corner of Central Avenue and Second Street S.E., near Restorx and Sidney Eye Care Clinic.

The annual Parade of Lights, one of the highlights of the year in Sidney, will start through Central Avenue at 6:30 p.m. Floats, featuring great lighting displays, are presented by businesses, organizations and non-profit groups. Register your float for the parade by calling the Chamber at 433-1916.

The Sidney Rockettes, consisting of talented dancers from the Cutting Edge Dance Studio, will be a featured and greatly entertaining part of the parade. After the parade, Santa will visit with children at Reese and Ray's IGA.

Red Rock Auto of Watford City Holds Ribbon Cutting

Members of the Watford City Chamber helped celebrate the Grand Opening of Red Rock Auto by cutting the ribbon on Friday, October 11. Lunch and door prizes were given out throughout the day as patrons ventured out to see the new dealership in town. Did You Know?

If found and treated early, over 95% of women diagnosed with breast cancer will survive.

At Sidney Health Center, your breast health is our priority. In fact, our mammography team offers the latest in breast cancer screening, 3D mammography - the most exciting advancement in breast cancer detection in more than 30 years. A 3D mammogram consists of multiple breast images taken in just seconds to produce a 3D image. Our radiologists, Dr. Jennifer Adams and Dr. Leszek Jaszczak look through the tissue one millimeter at a time seeing detail inside the breast in a way never before possible.

We recommend yearly mammograms starting at age 40 and continuing for as long as a woman is in good health. Even though mammograms are the best method we have for early detection, not all cancers are found with mammograms. If you feel a lump or have any other reasons for concern, you should tell your physician or health care provider.

During the month of October, our mammography staff will be offering evening mammograms on October 11, 18, and 25. If you are 40 years or older, you can schedule a mammogram screening without a referral notice by calling the outpatient coordinator at 406-488-2195.

Governor Bullock Signs Order To Protect MT Sugar Beet Farmers

MONTANA – Governor Steve Bullock yesterday evening signed an executive order allowing increased weight limitations on transportation vehicles in order to protect sugar beet farmers in Montana.

"Montana's farmers and workers got dealt a bad hand during this harvesting season with early winter storms," Governor Bullock said. "As our producers work hard around the clock, we need to make sure we have their backs in order to get beets on trucks and ensure that Montana ag remains a backbone of our economy."

The agricultural industry, in the middle of sugar beet harvest season, has experienced early winter storm conditions that are affecting current harvesting operations.

The executive order allows a temporary increase in gross vehicle weight tolerance for sugar beet farm vehicles from 20% for each axle to 30% during this harvest season, effective through November 30, 2019.

Montana producers face potential losses if their crops remain un-harvested due to unfavorable weather conditions. The executive order will allow these producers to move product in order to ensure a successful harvest.

New Recruits Needed For Richland County Ambulance Service

land County Ambulance Service is looking for compassionate, hard-working, dynamic individuals to become members of its life-saving service. An Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) training class will start in early November and will last for three months.

The course includes classroom participation and offers hands-on skills stations that work to develop teamwork skills and prepare students for real life emergency situations. "We set up stations where the trainees come in and assess the situation, treat and stabilize the simulated patient, and prepare them for transport to the hospital for additional care," said Danielle Bergeron, Co-Director of the Richland County Ambulance Service. "We try to be as hands on as possible." Students also participate in ride alongs and work an ER rotation.

EMTs are an essential part of the healthcare system and vital to patient care. The chances of patient survival in a medical emergency situation increases in direct correlation to the speed with which care is administered. Richland County is fortunate to have ambulance services spread throughout the county with ambulances located in Fairview, Lambert, Savage and two in Sidney, and to have more than forty dedicated volunteers from all four communities. More trained EMTs in a community results in faster response times in emergency situations.

"Our EMS system relies heavily on the continued support of Richland County communities to provide volunteers," stated Lana Watson, Co-Director of the Richland County Ambulance Service. "Due to the large call volume, we are seeking people with the desire to be in the midst of a fast-paced and rewarding opportunity that has a visible impact on our community."

The on-call schedule for Fairview, Lambert and Savage is accommodating to personal schedules. EMTs that are available when the call comes in are the ones who will respond. "This schedule is convenient for the EMTs, but we need a lot of volunteers in each community in order to make it work," stated Bergeron.

Leslie Messer of Savage took the EMT course last year. "One of my bucket list goals is to give back to my community." stated Messer. "I have always admired and respected Emergency Medical Techs, for their commitment to their communities. When the opportunity presented itself to take the EMT class in 2018, I jumped on it. The timing was finally right for me in my busy life." "Now, one year later, I can honestly say that becoming an EMT is, without a doubt, one of the most rewarding experiences I have ever done," continued Messer. "Being able to assist a person, possibly during the worst time of their lives, is so incredible. It's demanding, stressful, and heartbreaking at times, yet it fulfills my spirit to give back to our community.'

People of all ages and backgrounds are encouraged to sign up for the upcoming course. The current EMTs make themselves available to help mentor and answer questions that the trainees may have. Instructors offer additional skills and practice sessions when needed. "We really want everyone to succeed and are willing to help in any way we can. The better training that they receive, the stronger our service will be,"

Family Reunions

By Lois Stephens

I love my three siblings. After all, we grew up together, we knew what buttons to push if one of us wanted to start an argument, and we also knew the way to soothe those ruffled feelings. We banded together against perceived outside threats, we kept one another's secrets, we un-about one another.

Of course, we all matured and flew away with the four winds. All four of us moved to different states and another country to lead our adult lives, which meant we seldom reunited as a family. The oldest, my brother, now lives in New Hampshire. My older sister lives in Ohio, I live in Montana, and the youngest, a sister, lives in Washington State. The last time all four siblings were together in one place was fifteen years ago when our parents died.

My younger sister and I always got along well. After I left Canada, I moved to eastern Montana to live near her and for twenty years lived about a half mile from her house. Six years ago we both moved to our respective current locations, but we made it a point to stay in touch, visit back and forth several times a year, and to remain close as sisters. However, I hadn't seen my brother since my parents died, and I only visited with my older sister once in those fifteen years, and that was when she traveled to my home eight years ago to see me remarry.

derstood and, in most cases, empathized with their problems as we navigated ourselves through childhood. In short, we grew up in a typical fashion and learned to respect and care

The four of us started floating the idea of a family reunion about three years ago. Originally, we hoped to include the four of us plus the various children and grand-children who cared to attend, but when we all live so far apart, and with everyone having their own obligations and responsibilities, finding a time period that suited everyone proved nearly impossible.

I wrote a ghost booklet a few summers ago and sent a copy to each of my siblings. After reading about our haunted little town of Virginia City, my sister-in-law expressed a desire to spend a few nights in a haunted house. I replied to her, "Boy do I have the place for you."

That started the reunion process in earnest and we managed to agree on a week this past June to gather in Virginia City for a few days of fun and reacquaintance. I arranged to rent two places known for ghostly sightings, the Lightning Splitter house as well as a room in the Bonanza Inn, and the stage was set for a gathering.

Family reunions can get dicey, particularly when people meet for a week, rather than for three hours to share a turkey dinner, and then go home again. Four days can prove very long if any sort of friction exists among those in attendance, or family members harbor wildly disparate views on any given subject. My family is no different than other families, and our family has a member or two who have difficulty relating to other's points of view or understanding other's pet peeves and idiosyncrasies.

In my family, my brother is organized, a good money manager, and so right-wing conservative I expect he will soon resemble Hitler in looks. My older sister, on the other hand, is totally disorganized, a poor money manager, and so left-wing liberal that I suspect her shorts are pink. My younger sister and I are moderates; we see various points of view but do not approve of extremism on either side of the political spectrum. We also are good money managers, and have similar views on religion and education.

So, with such a widely differing outlook among the four of us, I felt a little trepidation about this gathering. Talking politics, religion, or education could prove disastrous, so among ourselves we agreed on a few ground rules. First and foremost, politics would not be part of the agenda. Second, we would not discuss money or finances, and third, we would skirt carefully around other hot topics like education, guns, and religion.

The scheduled dates for the reunion arrived. My brother, organized and ready, had made his flight reservations and car rental six months in advance. My older sister as usual dithered for months about whether she would fly out or drive, and a month before our reunion she finally made plane reservations but neglected to reserve a vehicle in advance. My younger sister of course drove from Washington.

My older sister arrived at the Bozeman airport first. I was working in Virginia City at the café when I received her first text bemoaning the fact that she had to rent an expensive vehicle because she hadn't reserved anything in advance. Her second text complained that the vehicle was too big and guzzled gas. Her third text said she was returning the vehicle to the rental agency and would wait for my brother's flight to arrive so she could hitch a ride with him instead.

My younger sister and her husband arrived first, followed in a few hours by followed in a few hours by my brother, his wife, and my older sister. So, we were ready to start a week together.

We wisely had agreed that we would spend mornings together and that people would entertain themselves during the afternoons, and we would reunite in the evenings for dinner and visiting afterwards. It worked well. We had plenty of time to visit, but had valuable breathing room as well. My brother, his wife, and my older sister visited Yellowstone one day, we all traveled to Bannack, we had an old-time photo taken, and everyone had plenty of opportunity to explore Virginia City and the surrounding area on their own. No one picked a fight; we were scrupulous in our efforts to keep hot button topics off the agenda, so the week passed well.

I think we all enjoyed ourselves, we appreciated the opportunity to reconnect and recall fond memories as well as embarrassing moments, but I'm not sure the four of us will ever get together in the same place again. We all have some age on us, travel gets more difficult each year, everyone has obligations, and our bodies sometimes refuse to cooperate, so possibly this reunion will be the last one. I'm grateful we made the effort to reunite, I am pleased to have the wild west photo of the four of us hanging on my wall that shows all of us happy and healthy, and I have fond memories of our week together in Virginia City.

Rosendale Task Force Speaks To Seniors About Protection From Fraudulent Activity

By Michele Seadeek

"One in four Montanans is the victim of a scam," says Montana Deputy Securities Commissioner Lynne Egan as she speaks to a large group of seniors and community members at the local Fairview Senior Center Wednesday, September 9. Along with Lynne Egan, Office of the Commissioner of Securities and Insurance state auditor, Matthew Rosedale and his team spoke to the group about senior financial protection and prevention from becoming a victim. Given the large increase in fraudulent activity in recent years, the newly formed task force's main goal is to reduce crime within the state's more vulnerable populations. According to Egan, "seniors account for 20% of Montana's population and hold approximately 70% of the state's assets." Rosendale says that because of those assets seniors have, "become a large target to scammers." The main presentation, "Protecting Yourself from Financial Exploitation," given by Egan provided information about the nine top scams that seniors face and examples of scammers who were from Montana and how they each affected their victims financially. According to The Montana Commissioner of Securities and Insurance Office, these top scams include Pyramid Schemes, Ponzi Schemes, Fake or unsuitable investments, Churning and Unauthorized Trading, Annuity dumping and repurchasing. The task force encourages all individuals to get a prospectus and research the person and/or company asking for money with the Montana Securities and Insurance Office prior to giving money

The task force was developed with eight Montana departments that will work together to increase consumer awareness and reduce the number of fraud victims in Montana. Rosendale's staff reports that ultimately the state wishes to have four districts that will help support the task force's goals.

Safety tips from the Montana Commissioner of Securities and Insurance Office: 1. If you don't know the number of the caller, don't answer. 2. Don't send money or give out personal information like SSN, date of birth, bank account or credit card information over the phone, email or any social media. Scammers often claim an emergency hoping you will take quick action without checking out the situation. 3. Engage a trusted family member if you are unsure about financial matters. Some scammers pretend to be loved ones needing immediate help. Call other family first. 4. Contact local authorities. 5. Contact any of the state departments listed below to find out more or to report fraudulent activity.

The state task force includes: the Montana Office of Consumer Protection: 406-444-4500, Montana Commissioner of Securities and Insurance Office: 406-444-2040, Montana Adult Protection Services: 844-277-9300, Montana Attorney General, Montana Division of Banking, Montana Legal Service Developer and the US Attorney Office in Montana. "If you have concerns about possible fraudulent activity or have been a victim, please contact any one of these state offices," says Egan. Fairview, ND residents are also encouraged to contact Lynne's office to get the best contact for North Dakota offices. To learn more visit csi.mt.gov. Additional state department contact magnets will be available at the Fairview Senior Center as well as Fairview city hall.

Watford City Competes at FFA District Leadership In Stanley

By Laney Hartel, Chapter Reporter

Each year in October, Watford City FFA members along with contestants from nine other chapters compete in Stanley during the District Leadership Conference. We were represented well with 23 of our students who attended, along with chapter advisors Mr. Wisness and Miss Gunderson. We took 5th place as a chapter with all of our points added up, behind Ray, Berthold, Powers Lake and Stanley.

The most competitive event at districts is always Parliamentary Procedure, where students exhibit their knowledge by doing the opening and closing ceremonies and demonstrating 10 laws of parli pro. Competing were our chapter officers, who earned a silver as a team. As individuals, vice president Cassidy Belcourt, secretary Isabell Boekelman, reporter Laney Hartel, and sentinel Connor Cross earned silver.

President Kell Helmuth, and treasurer Shayla Rolla were

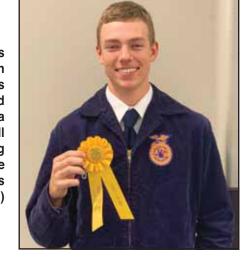

Our quiz team earned silver with Shayla Rolla and Kristen Clark earning gold, and Jenna Mandler and Neil Dahl earning bronze. The freshman quiz team also did well and earned silver. Receiving gold as an individual were Brendalvn Clark and Savanna Olson, silver was awarded to Tyler Leiseth, Koen Helmuth, Josiah Rojas, Tanner Edwards and Clay Ceynar. With bronze were Landen Caldwell, Jason Hogue, Carson Voll and Javier Reyes. Clay Ceynar also won bronze in the creed-speak-

Kristen Clark demonstrated how to make ice cram and Alex Highley gave a prepared speech, both students were awarded a bronze. Savanna Olson competed in employment skills by doing a mock job interview and won silver. Ian Lewis competed in extemporaneous speaking and received gold as well as winning second place overall which qualifies him for state!

For 20 years our FFA chapter has been able to sponsor the Greenhand Parliamentary Procedure contest. This year Watford sent two Greenhand teams, which consisted of our new members, to complete in the contest and both teams earned silver. For individual awards, Jason Hogue, vice president: Javier Reyes, secretary and Tanner Edwards, reporter each won a bronze. Individuals were Koen Helmuth, secretary; Savanna Olson, president; Clay Ceynar, secretary and Josiah Rojas, student advisor. Individual golds were awarded to Carson Voll, president; Landen Caldwell, reporter; Tyler Leiseth, treasurer and Brendalyn Clark, vice president.

District Leadership is always a great opportunity for our members to learn and develop necessary leadership skills. Good job to everyone who competed.

Ian Lewis competed in extemporaneous speaking and received a gold as well as winning second place overall. (Photos submitted)

Richey/Lambert Celebrate Homecoming

"The Long Goodbye – Part 2"

By Jerry "Dr Dirt" Kessler

Many of you may not remember who "Dr Dirt" was. I am an Internal Medicine physician who has worked in this area since 1986. I took a sabbatical from medicine for several years. I have been back in medicine for over six years, doing what I was always meant to do. During my sabbatical I ran a small landscaping business with my three sons. I did a variety of other things as well. I wrote a weekly newspaper column for "The Roundup" for five years that was entitled "Dr Dirt." After reading the obituary on the legendary Russ Wells and attending his memorial service, I have been reminiscing about those years. Russ and his son, Jody, were kind enough to let me write that column. They even paid me for that, even though I would have done the job for free. Don't tell them that, though, because the paper might want me to start contributing articles again. It is interesting that even now many of my older patients remind me of those stories I wrote. Some people ask me for advice about trees and other related matters. Other people fondly remember that the column was more about things other than landscaping. The column started out to be about landscaping, though. Despite the title of that newspaper column, I was not an expert on landscaping - even though both my dad and son have been in the business. I occasionally gave useful advice, for example: You should keep your lawnmower blade sharp, and there is nothing like good manure. But this is just common sense. The column was more about the "tall tales and short essays" that I dreamed up. I was fortunate that The Roundup let me write about anything I wanted. My columns were a little bit about landscaping, but more often about other topics: recent events, interesting people, my dog, medical subjects, reflections on life, pop psychology, philosophy, and even spirituality.

I wrote an article in 2007 entitled "The Long Goodbye." The article described, with some scientific detail, why we were rapidly losing our American Elm trees to Dutch Elm disease. My wife (Shelley) and I have lived in Sidney since December 1985. We remember those elm trees. Those stately trees lined the houses on 4th Street SE. They formed a lovely canopy. Their shade kept us cool in the heat of the summer, and they also protected us from strong winds and blizzards. We remember how it was. Dutch Elm Disease took all our elm trees. There are almost no elm trees left on our street or the rest of the community. Back then several people tried to slow down the spread of this disease, but we were all unsuccessful. The people up and down our street have removed almost all these elm trees and have tried to adapt as well as possible. But the memory of the Elm trees lives on. We removed over 10 elm trees from our lot alone. We then had to grind those stumps out and then try to put in other trees or grass. But the elm trees did not go gracefully. In the years to follow the roots from their huge stumps have decayed and produced a virtual sea of mushrooms. We have had to grind and re-grind out their huge roots, fill in these huge holes with better dirt, and encourage grass seed to grow in their place. This is, in some ways, a metaphor of how life itself can be. It is good that we are reminded of people and events in our lives. I have fond memories of my "Dr Dirt" writing days. I also remember many other events and people from my past life: of friends I never hear from anymore, my childhood, of my medical training, and the many patients I have taken care of over the years even. . . If I meet you on the street, there is a good chance that I will remember your medical problems, but I will not necessarily remember your name. I apologize in advance if not leave me. I am thankful for what they did for me. I recall the words of Walt Whitman, regarded as the greatest American poet of all time, in his classic work "Leaves of Grass." He wrote that the remains of his own human life would literally and figuratively nourish the lives of new life: including new leaves of grass, people, and other living things. All biologic things will die, but biologic and spiritual life goes on. Although the loss of anything dear to us can be devastating, we must all live on. My wife and I have tried to replace our gorgeous elm trees, which are impossible, but we have done this to the best of our ability. We have even had to deal with the less memorable aspects of this loss - the decay and the mushrooms of their stumps. We are trying to replace the burden of this loss with a reasonably healthy lawn. It is a work in process.

This is the circle of life. The death of a loved one hurts terribly, but memories of them (both good and bad) live on. I was, for example, terribly sad when my parents died. I think of them every day. They are still with me, and they motivate me to do my best. These are the seasons of our lives. And now, as summer gives way to winter, we are reminded of this never-ending cycle. We all get older, and eventually die. Others will take our place. Hopefully we will be missed. But winter always gives way to spring, and the new life that follows. And that's how it always has been. And that's how it always will be.

that happens. And people with even the best memories will not remember all the people they have known who have passed on - even people with legacies like what Russ Wells had. My memories of Russ Wells, and the other people at The Roundup newspaper, will

Women's Health Screening Set For Oct. 25

October is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month and an opportune time to increase awareness about the disease through social media, fundraising, screening events and by wearing pink at local sporting events. Statistics indicate that about one in eight U.S. women will develop breast cancer over the course of their lifetime.

Besides skin cancer, breast cancer is the most commonly diagnosed cancer among American women. In 2019, estimates predict about 30% of newly diagnosed cancers in women will be breast cancers. Early detection is the key to treating and surviving breast cancer.

Although guidelines may vary depending on an individual's risk and family history, clinical breast exams and mammography are always important especially as we age.

"At Sidney Health Center, we recommend yearly mammograms for women starting at age 40 and continuing for as long as they are in good health," states Dr. Jennifer Adams, Radiologist. "Even though mammograms are the best method for early detection, not all cancers are found this way. Additional testing such as ultrasound or magnetic resonance imaging may be needed for further evaluation."

This October, Sidney Health Center and the Richland County Health Department are teaming up to host a free Women's Health Screening for women ages 40 and older on Friday, October 25 from 2-4 p.m. at the Sidney Health Center Clinic, located at 214 14th Avenue Southwest in Sidney. Participants will fill out a quick health form and navigate through a series of quick assessments including a blood pressure check, clinical breast exam, and complimentary IFIT take-home kit (fecal immunochemical test).

Additional information will include smoking cessation, genetic testing, MyChart registration and an opportunity to schedule follow-up appointments for mammograms, pelvic exams, colonoscopies, and routine physicals as needed. All participants will receive a complimentary gift card to local establishments. No appointment is necessary. Please direct any questions to the Sidney Health Center outpatient coordinator by calling 406-488-2195.

Author Janet Stevens Visits West Side And Central Elementary Schools

MSU's Annual Celebrate Agriculture Weekend Set For November 1 And 2

From MSU News Service

BOZEMAN – The Montana State University College of Agriculture and Montana Agricultural Experiment Station will host the 20th annual Celebrate Agriculture weekend Nov. 1 and 2 on the MSU campus. The event will include an agricultural economics conference, an ice cream social and a celebratory Saturday morning event preceding the weekend's home football game against Southern Utah.

The Celebrate Agriculture event is held each fall in honor of alumni, students and Montana's agricultural community to celebrate the legacy of the university and the state in the field of agriculture. It is one of the College of Agriculture's largest events of the year.

"Celebrate Agriculture weekend is a chance for us to recognize the rich history of Montana's largest industry and to look toward the future of our college and the state," said Vice President of Agriculture Sreekala Bajwa. "The people of this state are the foundation for all that we do at MSU, and we can't wait to welcome community members, alumni, students and families to our campus to help celebrate."

The first event of the weekend will be a career social for students in the Animal Bioscience Building on Thursday, October 31, from 4 to 5:30 p.m. There, current students can meet with employers representing a variety of agricultural career opportunities, learn more about different post-graduation paths and network with employers.

The agenda for Friday, November 1 will begin with the 13th annual Agricultural Economics Outlook Conference from 8:30 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. in the Strand Union Building's Procrastinator Theater. The conference, hosted by the Department of Agricultural Economics and Economics and MSU Extension, will include talks on the Montana agricultural year in review, trade impacts on agricultural price trends, crop insurance, the effects of oil booms on agriculture and the fate of land formerly in the Conservation Reserve Program.

The M.L. Wilson Lecture, titled "What is Yield Risk and How Do We Measure It?" will be delivered by Barry Goodwin, professor and department head in North Carolina State University's Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics. Registration cost for the conference is $20 and lunch will be provided. More information and a complete agenda can be found online at http://www.ampc.montana.edu/fallconference/.

Following the conference, the MSU Collegiate Stockgrowers will host a reception from 4 to 6 p.m. in the atrium of the Animal Bioscience Building. The Agricultural Education Club will host an ice cream social for Department of Agricultural and Technology Education alumni in Linfield Hall Room 231 from 4 to 5 p.m.

Saturday, November 2, will kick off with a Celebration of Agriculture event from 9 to 10:30 a.m. in the Strand Union Building Ballrooms. That event will include coffee, light refreshments and remarks from MSU President Waded Cruzado and Buzz Mattelin, the recipient of the annual Outstanding Agricultural Leadership Award.

The award is given to a member of the Montana agricultural community who embodies service, engagement and impact in their communities. Mattelin, a third-generation barley, durum wheat and sugar beet grower from northeast Montana, was selected by a committee that included a faculty member from the College of Agriculture, a past MAES advisory council chair, the college's development officer and student advisory council president.

"Buzz has long advocated for barley," wrote MSU barley breeder Jamie Sherman in a nomination letter for Mattelin. "His advocacy has helped to ensure the success of MSU's barley breeding program. Therefore, the newest barley release has been named "Buzz" in his honor."

The American Malting Barley Association and National Barley Improvement Committee also submitted supporting documents for Mattelin's nomination.

"Buzz is not only an outstanding in-state leader, but is recognized nationally as such, and has brought further enhancement and recognition to Montana agriculture and research through his years of contice." wrete Michael Davis

CO-OP MONTH FUN FACTS

- Minnesota was the first state to declare an official Co-op Month proclamation in 1948.
- Co-op Month has been a nationally recognized celebration since 1964, when U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman, a former Minnesota governor, proclaimed October Co-op Month.
- The first national theme in 1964 was "Cooperatives: USDA Helps Build a Better America."
- The U.S. Government sponsored Co-op Month from 1964-70.
- Since 1971, cooperatives, statewide associations, and the National Cooperative Business Association have fueled their own events and promotions.
