Peace Officers Honored in Sidney

Members of the Sidney Police Department and Richland County Sheriff's Office assemble to show their respect for the individuals and their families who have lost their lives in the line of duty.

Left: Sheriff John Dynneson addresses the crowd. The bouquet of flowers contains two red ones symbolizing the lives lost in Richland County.

Local law enforcement gathered on Wednesday, May 15, to remember their fallen members and salute those who serve. Following the honor guard posting of the colors and formation by the Sidney Police officers, the Richland County Sheriff's Officers and support staff, Captain Mark Kraft explained the origins of the memorial event and gave some statistics.

In 1962, President John F. Kennedy signed a proclamation designating May 15 as Peace Officers Memorial Day and the week in which that date falls as Police Week.

Nationwide, 21,500 law enforcement officers have died from various causes since 1791 when record keeping began, with 40 so far this year. In Montana, 129 officers have been lost.

Richland County Sheriff John Dynneson recognized the two officers who ended their watch in the line of duty in Richland County: Sheriff's Deputy George Eikhoff who was killed in an automobile accident in 1962 while transporting someone to the hospital; and Fairview Police Chief Orville Sharbono who was killed while serving a warrant. He said the purpose of the service was to show utmost respect to those individuals and their families.

The bell was tolled seven times, the first six for those who have responded, served, protected, sacrificed and suffered. The seventh signaled the loss of life.

"Taps" and "Amazing Grace" by bagpipers concluded the moving ceremony.

J.W. Mechanical Opens In Sidney

By Bill Vander Weele, Sidney Chamber

With more than 21 years of experience, owner Kip Sizemore of J.W. Mechanical is excited to bring his heating and cooling services to the MonDak area.

Sizemore recently decided to move his business from Helena to Sidney. He opened for business on May 20.

"We're basing our business out of Sidney," Sizemore said. "Someone told me there's a real need for this service in the area."

JW Mechanical offers residential furnace and air conditioning installation and service, commercial preventative maintenance and new unit installations along with commercial refrigeration services. He and his one employee will perform all the work.

"Between the two of us, it's about 35 years of experience," Sizemore said.

You can receive 24-hour service by calling Sizemore at 406-439-4141.

"It's important when people don't have their heat or when the air conditioning breaks down on hot, summer nights," Sizemore said of the need for 24-hour service.

He notes that he will serve the entire region including Glendive, Richey, Circle, Williston, New Town and Dickinson.

"Our goal is to have everything back running within 24 hours," Sizemore said. "We carry an extensive amount of parts from many manufacturers."

Life Light Christian Music Festival, June 8, Watford City

Family Force 5 playing at last year's Life Light Festival with riders from Zero Gravity and Stunt Dudes doing tricks for the crowd (submitted photo).

By Jaymi Loobey

On June 8, 2019, Switchfoot will be performing with a few others in Watford City. For the second year in a row, several western North Dakota churches have come together to bring a Life Light Christian Music Festival to Watford City, North Dakota.

Just a couple years ago, Kelby Timmons decided he wanted to share the gospel with the people of western North Dakota. He also noticed a need for good, clean family-friendly events that were geared toward the entire family, not just the kids. Last year he gathered a team of like-minded individuals from the different churches in the area and they came across Life Light. His team contacted the organization via their website. www.lifelight.org and set about doing what needed to be done to get the festival to Watford City.

According to their website, Life Light Communications, Inc. is a 501(c)(3) non-profit Evangelistic Organization based out of Sioux Falls, South Dakota. Life Light exists to bring people together across denominational lines, to reach out to local communities and beyond with the message of hope and the love of Jesus Christ. Life Light facilitates numerous concerts, mission trips, and other events by partnering with local churches, businesses, and other ministries. Alan and Vicki Greene, founders of Life Light, believe that everything should be done with excellence for the Lord. The founding principle of Life Light is to offer all festivals and events free of admission so that all may come, and all may freely hear the Gospel message of Jesus Christ. Alan and Vicki felt a calling to "take the church outside the walls" while on a mission trip to Mexico in 1998. At first, they just had the music festivals in Sioux Falls, then last year they started taking their festivals on the road, touring cities in the Dakotas, Minnesota, and Iowa.

This year's Life Light Festival in Watford City is at the McKenzie County Fairgrounds East of town from 1 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Switchfoot, Sanctus Real, DJ Peacock, White Ribbon Day, Cade Thompson, and Bread of Stone will be performing. There will be BMX and FMX riders performing, a kids area open from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. with a bouncy house, rock painting, and a puppet show by Treagillusions. Burrito Bros, Corner Kitchen, Pizza Pie in the Sky and Mississippi BBQ will have food booths.

Thanks to the donations of local churches, businesses, and individuals this year's event will meet Life Light's founding principle and be free to all. More general and contact information on this event can be found on the Life Light Festival Watford City Facebook page.

"Kestrel Web" by Matt Doyle

Matt Doyle grew up in Central Pennsylvania in a small valley along the Appalachian Mountains. At a very young age, he started to show interest in art. Within a few years, he was introduced to the great outdoors by his dad and both his Grandpaps. They took him fishing and hunting often. Matt learned to respect the wildlife and found pure joy in the outdoors. As his passion for the great outdoors grew stronger, Matt's passion for art was growing at the same time. By the time he was in middle school, he had already made up his mind he wanted to be a wildlife artist.

In 2005, Matt started attending Pennsylvania College of Art and Design. There, he learned many aspects of the art industry. In 2007, he was introduced to oil painting. Matt soon fell in love with this process and began pursuing oil painting more. After graduating with a Bachelor's in Fine Arts in 2009, his journey began. The very next year, Matt made a trip to Montana for the first time to be in a friend's wedding. This was a turning point in his life. Along with the breathtaking landscapes of Montana, he also formed a friendship with Janna, the bride's sister. In 2013, they got married and moved to Minot, North Dakota. Matt worked at Hobby Lobby as a framer for a few years. This job was a perfect stepping stone for his art career. In August of 2016, Matt and Janna moved to Williston, North Dakota where they could be closer to her family. At that point, they decided it was time to take the leap and go full-time. In the summers, they travel from Western Montana to Wyoming and through North Dakota doing outdoor summer shows. When Matt isn't in his studio painting, you'll find him fishing, hunting, or just being outdoors.

A man in a park ranger uniform and hat stands in front of a white building with a red roof and a blue tower. The building has a balcony and stairs. There are some rebar structures in the foreground.

The Three Buttes 4-H Club made Hershey kiss flowers for a May-Day project to give away to locals around Lambert. Although the original design was by Lacey, many more flower designs were created by the 4-H members. When the members deliver the flowers it's likely they won't stick around to give a hello: they'll leave the flower, knock, then race back to the car before they're discovered. Happy May-day! Maybe you received one of these flowers if so, happy May-Day again! (Photo submitted by Julia Hier)

North Dakota Public Service Commission Discusses New McKenzie County Pipeline

By Jordan Hall

The North Dakota Public Service Commission held a public hearing to discuss a possible new pipeline. The meeting was held on May 17 at the Little Missouri Grille and Suites, and was attended by approximately ten people including three of the North Dakota Public Service Commissioners, some private company representatives, local officials, and at least one legislator. There were about ten people present, not counting Public Service Commission staff and attorneys.

The public meeting was held to receive input on a proposed 10.2 mile pipeline designed to transport natural gas liquids. The proposed pipeline would begin at the Targa Badlands Little Missouri Gas Processing Plant and would end at a facility planned by ONEOK, called the Demicks Lake Pipeline.

The planned Pipeline would be approximately a 12-inch steel pipe which could move up to 20 thousand barrels per day, and could transport ethane, propane, butane, isobutane mix, and gasoline.

The purpose of the hearing was to provide an opportunity to comment by the public, as a part of the consideration of Public Service Commissioners in their role of providing oversight over such project locations.

The Roundup spoke to Pat Fahn, who serves in the North Dakota Public Service Commission Office, who was able to answer questions on behalf of the Public Service Commissioners, Brian Kroshus, Julie Fedorchak, and Randy Christmann in their absence, who at the time of publication were unavailable for further comment.

According to Fahn, who serves as the Director of the Public Utilities Division for the Public Service Commission, the pipeline is an uncontroversial addition to pipeline infrastructure in McKenzie County. He explained the plans for the pipeline.

Fahn explained, "NGO means 'natural gas liquids.' The commission is required to hold a hearing in the county where the project is taking place."

The meeting, which lasted about two and a half hours, discussed the 'ins and outs' of the pipeline, but there was nothing unique or controversial about this pipeline project, according to the Fahn. Fahn also explained the location of the pipeline doesn't traverse any controversial property.

Fahn said, "The pipeline will not traverse any rivers or public occupied land. There are one or two residents, that used to be man-camps, that are near the pipeline, but probably shouldn't present any kind of problem." Fahn was clear to emphasize that the North Dakota Public Service Commission doesn't approve pipeline projects, but only approves the location for pipeline projects. Other agencies, like the McKenzie County commissioners, would have to give necessary permits if the pipelines cross public properties or roads. The pipeline does propose to cross beneath Highway 25 south of Watford City.

The North Dakota Public Service Commission does plan on releasing their decision to the public soon, according to Fahn.

Anna Hill Snags First Paddlefish

Opening day of the Montana paddle fishing season was a great one for Bloomfield resident Anna Hill. She caught her first ever paddlefish, estimated at about 40 pounds, within 20 minutes of fishing at the Sidney Bridge. Last year, she fished all season and came up empty handed, even though her companions all managed to snag one.

It was also her 8th anniversary on May 15 and she was excited to spend it with her husband, fishing. "It's a great anniversary present!" she said of the paddlefish.

Fishing Regulations Scoping Survey Available Online

By MT FWP

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks invites anglers and other interested parties to participate in a survey regarding changes to the 2020 fishing regulations. The survey is available at <http://fwp.mt.gov/fish/publicComments/regsScoping.html>.

The survey is part of a public scoping process to review fishing regulations and identify potential issues with fisheries. This review happens every four years.

Public input is vital to crafting fishing regulations, said Eric Roberts, FWP fisheries management bureau chief. We evaluate how a regulation may impact a fishery biologically, angling opportunities for the public and the regulations social acceptability.

This initial scoping process runs through June 21, 2019. FWP staff will then formulate tentative proposals to present to the Montana Fish & Wildlife Commission in August. Additional public comment on tentative proposals will be collected this fall and the final regulations will be considered at the October commission meeting.

Some of the ideas now being considered by FWP include:

- Changing the largemouth and smallmouth bass limits on some waterbodies in the Western Fishing District;
- Allowing single-point lures only on the Middle, North and South Forks of the Flathead River;
- Implementing a hoot owl restriction on the Ennis Dam to Mouth stretch of the Madison River that would prohibit fishing between 2 p.m. and midnight from July 1 through Aug. 31;
- Establishing no limit or mandatory harvest of northern pike and standardizing the daily walleye limit on the Missouri River from Holter Dam to Black Eagle Dam;
- Requiring ice fishing shelters to be removed from the ice by at least March 1 in the Eastern Fishing District;
- Allowing bow and arrow harvest of Chinook salmon from Oct. 1 through Nov. 30 on Fort Peck Reservoir.

Anglers and others are invited to participate by reviewing these and other FWP ideas - and by contributing additional ideas of their own. Comments can be submitted online or at public meetings that will soon be scheduled in each FWP region.

Comments can also be sent by mail to Montana FWP Fisheries Division, P.O. Box 200701, Helena, MT 59620-0701 or via email atfwppregs20@mt.gov.

Keep Your Distance From Young Or Injured Wildlife

Each spring, Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks receives several calls from people who have picked up deer fawns or other wildlife.

FWP advises against this practice for several reasons. The agency does not accept, hold or rehabilitate deer and elk because the animals rarely survive the stress of captivity, and because of concerns with the spread of disease. So FWP's likely response would be to tell people to leave the animals alone or return them to where they were found.

While people mean well, they may not understand that their intervention could possibly kill the animal or cause injury to it or to themselves. Good intentions can lead to dire consequences.

Every spring, FWP receives calls from good-intentioned people who pick up great horned owls that have bailed out of the nest before they can fly. This is a natural part of their life cycle. The adult owls monitor these young, providing them with food until they can fly — usually just a couple of days. People can help best by not touching the owls and by keeping pets restrained.

In a high-profile case in Yellowstone National Park last summer, a bison calf was picked up and transported by tourists who believed it had been abandoned. The calf ultimately had to be euthanized because it couldn't be reunited with the herd and continued to approach people and vehicles.

If You Care, Leave Them There

To prevent outcomes like this, FWP emphasizes that all wildlife species and their young should be left in the wild. If you see a young animal alone or injured, whether a goose or a grizzly, keep your distance. It is illegal to possess and care for a live animal taken from the wild.

Animals often thrive without human intervention, and their odds of surviving in the wild are much greater if they are left alone. Once young animals are picked up by people, they usually can't be rehabilitated. People handling wildlife also may injure themselves or the animal, or habituate it to humans, potentially causing problems if the animal is released back into the wild.

Understanding Nature

It's natural for deer, elk and other animals to leave their young alone for extended periods of time. What appears to be an orphaned animal may not be, but chances are the mother will not return while humans are present. Fawns are seldom orphaned, but if they are, another doe may add them to the group. In 8 to 10 days, a fawn will have the appropriate gut flora and can survive on its own by nibbling grass. Young fawns have no body odor, which lessens their appeal to predators. Their spots also help to camouflage them while their mothers stash them to feed.

If you take dogs into the field, be sure to keep your dog under control, especially in the spring when newborn wildlife is most vulnerable. Pet owners can be cited, and dogs that harass or kill wildlife may, by law, have to be destroyed.

World “No Tobacco” Day

The focus of World No Tobacco Day, May 31, 2019, is on the negative impact tobacco has on people’s lung health, from cancer to chronic respiratory disease. I think most everyone realizes by now that smoking and second hand smoke is unhealthy for everyone, but what about electronic cigarettes? E-cigarettes come in many flavors that contain a chemical called diacetyl. When this chemical is heated and inhaled it causes a scarring of the tiny air sacs in the lungs resulting in the thickening and narrowing of the airways. This causes coughing, wheezing and shortness of breathe. This is often called “popcorn lung.”

According to the Campaign for Tobacco – Free Kids, Juul e-cigarettes have skyrocketed in popularity among youth across the United States since being introduced in 2015, leading to what public health officials have call a youth e-cigarette “epidemic”. In 2018, e-cigarette use among high school students rose by 78 percent, and more than 3.6 million middle and high school students used e-cigarettes – an alarming increase of 1.5 million students in one year.

Several factors have contributed to Juul’s rising popularity with teens

- Juul e-cigarettes are sleek, high tech and easy to hide. They look like USB flash drives and can be charged in the USB port of a computer. They don’t look anything like a traditional tobacco product. A Juul is also small enough to fit in a closed hand.

- Juul comes in flavors that appeal to youth, including mango, fruit, creme, mint, menthol and cucumber. Research shows that flavors play a key role in youth use of tobacco products, including e-cigarettes.

- Juul appears to deliver nicotine more effectively and at higher doses than other e-cigarettes, increasing users’ risk of addiction. The manufacturer has claimed that each Juul “pod” (cartridge of nicotine liquid) contains as much nicotine as a pack of cigarettes. However, research has found that many young Juul users don’t know the product always contains nicotine, and many teens call use of the product “juuling,” indicating they may not realize it is an e-cigarette or tobacco product.

- Juul and other e-cigarettes are addicting a new generation of kids and threaten the decades-long progress our nation has made in reducing youth tobacco use.

- A 2016 Surgeon General’s report concluded that youth use of nicotine in any form, including e-cigarettes, is unsafe, causes addiction and can harm the developing adolescent brain.

Nearly 50% of Montana high school students have tried e-cigarettes and 23% are current users. This World No Tobacco Day, and every day year round, let’s educate ourselves and our youth about the dangers of electronic cigarettes, vaping and JUULing.

For more information please contact Jacklyn Damm, Tobacco Prevention Specialist, at the Richland County Health Department, 406-433-2207, jdamm@richland.org.
