Easter Egg Hunt Featured at Missouri-Yellowstone Confluence Interpretive Center

The Missouri-Yellowstone Confluence Interpretive Center, in cooperation with the Trenton Fire Department, will hold an Easter Egg Hunt on Saturday, April 5, beginning at 1 p.m., weather permitting. This special community event will offer children not only the chance to chase down those elusive Easter Eggs at the confluence, but also allow them to enjoy the educational opportunities provided by the Confluence Center's exhibits. The eggs will be hidden in three locations, with the children divided into three age groups. The Trenton Fire Department has been hosting this event to local children for more than 15 years. This marks the fourth year the Confluence Center and Trenton Fire Department have joined forces to offer the children the best Easter Egg Hunt experience possible. The event is free and open to the public. In the event of inclement weather, please call 701.572.9034 for an alternate date for the egg hunt. Participants are encouraged to come early and register for door prizes. The Missouri-Yellowstone Confluence Interpretive Center is located one-half mile east of Fort Buford, near Williston. The Confluence Center is open year-round. Its winter hours are in effect, and are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Wednesdays through Saturdays, and 1 to 5 p.m. Sundays. It is closed on New Year's Day, Easter, Thanksgiving and Christmas. Admission to the Center's exhibits is $2.50 per adult, $1.25 per child, ages 6-15, and children 5 and under are admitted free.

SCAM ALERT

Submitted by Anastasia Burton

The Office of Consumer Protection at the Montana Department of Justice wants to alert you to a fast-moving phone scam called the largest of its kind targeting taxpayers across the country. Victims have reported threats of license suspension, arrest and deportation.

What makes this timely scam so tricky? The scammers impersonate Internal Revenue Service (IRS) agents and demand payment for taxes owed, and often:

know the last four digits of the victim's Social Security number;

make caller ID appear as if the IRS is calling;
send follow-up bogus IRS emails to support their scam; and call a second time claiming to be the police or Department of Motor Vehicles, and caller ID again supports their claim.

The IRS usually contacts people by mail, not by phone, about unpaid taxes. The IRS won't ask for payment using a pre-paid debit card or wire transfer, nor will they involve law enforcement or immigration agencies.

WHAT TO DO:

If you or a family member receives one of these calls, your best bet is to hang up. But if you do get into a conversation, don't give anyone money or credit card information over the phone and don't trust callers who use threats or insults to bully you.

NEXT STEPS:

Report the incident to the Treasury Inspector General for Tax Administration at 1-800-366-4484.

File a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission at www.ftc.gov. Add "IRS Telephone Scam" to the comments in your complaint.

If you owe or think you owe federal taxes, call the IRS directly at 1-800-829-1040 to verify information.

Call us at the Montana Department of Justice's Office of Consumer Protection at (800) 481-6896 or (406) 444-4500, or visit us at <https://doj.mt.gov/consumer/for-consumers/> of memory and interfere with brain development – which can have permanent affects. -- www.parentslead.org

OBITUARIES

W. Lois (Smith) Lonnquist, 79, Helena, MT

W. Lois (Smith) Lonnquist passed away on March 27, 2014 in Helena, Montana. She was born to Leonard and Stella (Fisher) Smith in Spokane, Washington, May 30, 1935, and lived most of her life in eastern and western Montana, and the Midwest.

She earned a BA in English at UW-LaCrosse. Her career in media spanned free-lance writing, radio, television, and newspaper, including 13 years at the Helena Independent Record. She is the author of Fifty Cents an Hour, a history of the builders and boomtowns of the Fort Peck Dam described in "LIFE 75 Years: The Very Best of LIFE" as "authoritative".

Lois devoted her life to her beloved family and her writing. She shared her musical talents by playing for hundreds of dances and events as a teenager; and programs, dances, shows, and radio and TV programs with her husband Del and later with their children in the Lonnquist Family Band. Following the publication of Fifty Cents an Hour, she wrote a musical presentation based on the book which she and Del performed throughout Montana. She was an active member of the Lutheran church, her childrens' schools, and the communities where she lived.

She was preceded in death by her parents; sister Lucille (Smith) Massick; son-in-law Bruce Darelus; four sisters-in-law (Violet, Ethel, Margaret, and Jerry) and five brothers-in-law (Norman, Evald, and Harold Lonnquist, Don Tanner, and George Massick).

Survivors include her husband Del; son Allen (Pam) Lonnquist; daughters Linda Darelus, Diana (Ildio) Sacramento, Janis (Mike) Klebig, Joni (Gary) Rodgers; and son Roger (Janice) Lonnquist; 19 grandchildren; and 14 great-grandchildren; a brother Stanley Smith; two brothers-in-law, Dean Lonnquist and Vernon Petersen; three sisters-in-law Vivian, Florence, Beverly; and numerous nieces, nephews, aunts, uncles, and cousins.

Cremation has taken place. A private memorial service will be held at a later date. In lieu of flowers, the family suggests donations to the Valley County Pioneer Museum, 816 Hwy 12, Glasgow, MT 59230 or the Montana State Historical Society, PO Box 201201 Helena, MT 59620-1201. Please visit www.aswfuneralhome.com to offer the family a condolence or to share a memory of Lois.

Danny "AC" Beery, age 69, Richey, MT

Danny "AC" Beery, age 69, was born on January 15, 1945 in Bedford, Iowa. Two years later he and his family moved to the family farm west of Richey. Danny died in the house he was raised in just 67 years later on March 22, 2014.

Funeral services were held at 1 pm, March 26, 2014 at the Methodist Church in Richey with Pastor White, a long time friend, officiating.

Interment was held at the farm west of Richey. It was Danny's desire to be buried on the farm he loved.

Danny was educated in Richey and graduated with the Class of 1963. Following high school, he attended college in Dickinson, North Dakota, then he shortly returned to the farm he treasured.

At an early age, Danny met Clarice Knudson and married his high school sweetheart. They were married on June 16, 1965. Together they raised two sons, Rondel and Jess.

Danny's days began with a cup of coffee outside on his swing, and his long days ended on that same swing with a Miller Lite.

Danny will be known for his conservative ways, his work ethic, his sense of humor, his love for life, his farm, and the passion he had for his boys and grandkids. Life on the farm never came easy. Hail in the 70s and drought in the 80s taught him to be a very conservative man. During hard times, Danny did whatever it took to make a living, and he never complained. He spent five years in the oil field until he had a life changing accident.

Danny taught his boys how to farm; they asked for his advice, they treasured it, but because of the inherited Beery stubbornness, they occasionally used very little of it. Being in the same field at the same time with his entire family meant the world to him. He was a welder, a mechanic, a carpenter, and an engineer. If he could build it, he wouldn't buy it. His welding left him with no fingerprints, his mechanical ways left him with knots on his head, his carpentering left him with no fingernails, and his engineering left him with a completely wrecked semi at the bottom of the dam. Even with a few small failures, he led a very prosperous life. He was a good farmer, a very talented man, and one hell of a good father.

Danny loved every chance he got to have his family together. Any company he ever had, when leaving, he gave them a "be good" or "see you later" and then waited at the end of the sidewalk until they were out of sight.

He had a love for animals. The deer and pheasants in his yard, baby calves, his twenty cats, and his best friend, Toes, his dog, were among just a few.

Danny will be missed terribly by the family he dearly loved. Danny was proceeded in death by his parents, Harold (Peck) AC Beery and Frances Irene Beery.

Danny is survived by his wife, Clarice Beery of Richey; two sons, Rondel (Lanette) Beery of Richey, MT and Jess (Angie) Beery of Circle, MT; five grandchildren, Danielle (Seth) Servais, David Beery, Brett Beery, Bryce Beery, and Alysia Beery; Siblings Sharon (Norm) Wilson of Blackhawk, SD, Dick (Phyllis) Beery of Circle, MT and Tom (JoAnn) Beery of Hazen, ND; and numerous nieces and nephews.

Remembrances and condolences may be shared with the family at www.silvernalesilhafuneralhome.com.

MONTANA FSA: Foreign Persons Must Report U.S. Agricultural Land Holdings

Submitted by Jennifer Cole

USDA Montana Farm Service Agency (FSA) State Executive Director Bruce Nelson reminds foreign persons with an interest in agricultural lands in the United States that they are required to report their holdings and any transactions to the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture.

"Any foreign person who acquires, transfers or holds any interest, other than a security interest, including leaseholds of 10 years or more, in agricultural land in the United States is required by law to report the transaction no later than 90 calendar days after the date of the transaction," Nelson said.

Foreign investors must file FSA-153 "Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act Report" (AFIDA) reports with the FSA county office that maintains reports for the county where the land is located. The FSA-153 Form is available at a FSA county office or can be downloaded online at: <http://forms.sc.egov.usda.gov/efcommon/efileServices/efForms/FSA153.PDF>.

"Failure to file a report, filing a late report or filing an inaccurate report can result in a penalty with fines up to 25 percent of the fair market value of the agricultural land," Nelson said.

For AFIDA purposes, agricultural land is defined as any land used for farming, ranching, orchards, vineyards, or timber production, if the tracts total 10 acres or more.

Disclosure reports are also required when there are changes in land use. For example, reports are required when land use changes from nonagricultural to agricultural or from agricultural to nonagricultural. Foreign investors must also file a report when there is a change in the status of ownership such as the owner changes from foreign to non-foreign, from non-foreign to foreign or from foreign to foreign.

Data gained from these disclosures is used to prepare an annual report to the President and Congress concerning the effect of such holdings upon family farms and rural communities in the United States. For more information regarding AFIDA and FSA programs, contact your local FSA office at or visit the USDA Web site at <http://www.usda.gov>.

Sidney High School Drama
Club Presents - David and Lisa

By James Reach

The play tells the strange, appealing and utterly fascinating story of two mentally challenged young adolescents: David(John Elmore), the only son of wealthy parents who is tortured by his mania against being touched, and Lisa(Sarah Turek), the waif with a split personality. One of her selves will speak only in childish rhymes and insists on being spoken to in the same manner. The play follows their exhilarating progress and heart-rending defeats during one term at Berkeley School where they have come under the sympathetic guidance of psychiatrist Alan Swinford (Camden Berka) and his staff. Laughter, heart break and suspense distinguish this authentic and well told story. The play is directed by Christy Pierce. Performances are Friday, April 4 at 7pm & Sunday, April 6 at 2pm. at Sidney Middle School Auditorium, 415 South Central Ave, Sidney, MT. Tickets are $5.

A Steak in Ag: A Monthly
Report by R-CALF USA

March 2014

R-CALF USA may be defined as a non-profit producer organization, but our work benefits anyone who eats meat and those who live in an economy that includes agriculture. We're more than a producer organization, we're your organization! We won Country-of-Origin Labeling (COOL) in the D.C. Circuit Court of Appeals! In this lawsuit, NCBA and its meatpacker friends are fighting to get rid of COOL. R-CALF USA along with others are interveners in the case to help protect COOL. During the oral arguments, a number of issues only raised by R-CALF USA and its partners were discussed.

On March 28, we learned that we won the COOL case in appeals! This means COOL labels will remain and we encourage everyone to buy Made in the U.S.A. products. As consumers, we're voting with every dollar we spend.

We're still working to keep FMD out of the U.S. R-CALF USA and 54 other organizations asked a bipartisan group of Senators for help in stopping USDA-APHIS (Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service) from going forward with plans to import fresh and chilled beef from 14 states in Brazil. Brazil has been plagued with the most contagious disease known to cattle - foot-and-mouth-disease (FMD).

We're asking Congress to require APHIS to suspend consideration of its Brazilian rule until after the agency updates a report to Congress to explain how it intends to prevent the introduction of FMD when it relaxes our borders for imports from countries where the disease is known to exist.

Our request was sent to Senator Barrasso (R-Wyo.), Senator Johnson (D-S.D.), Senator Enzi (R-Wyo.), Senator Tester (D-Mont.), and Senator Heitkamp (D-N.D.).

A new book, The Meat Racket, exposes the corruption and under-handed dealings of meat packers. The author, Christopher Leonard, is the former national agribusiness reporter for the Associated Press. When asked how the phenomenal control of meatpackers affects consumers, Leonard's response in part was, "I think consumers are put at a disadvantage when just three companies make more than 50 percent of all the nation's chicken. That means the two biggest poultry firms, Tyson Foods and JBS, have enough market power to singlehandedly cut production and keep prices higher than they would be."

The Meat Racket retails for $28, however R-CALF USA is able to offer a slight discount. To order: Send $25 to R-CALF USA Box 30715, Billings, MT 59107 with The Meat Racket in the memo line or call 406-252-2516 and order with a credit card.

R-CALF USA's Checkoff Committee is busy researching many aspects of the Beef Checkoff Program including the Cattlemen's Beef Board (CBB) and state beef councils. It is awaiting decisions on two complaints: one alleging it was improper for the U.S. Meat Export Federation, which receives checkoff funds, to lobby against COOL and the other alleging it was improper to allow checkoff funds to be used to promote and advertise beef as "North American" beef when the checkoff program refuses to promote "USA" beef. We'll keep you updated on their findings!

R-CALF USA is solely funded by donations and member dues. Please consider becoming a member. For more info or to join go to www.r-calfusa.com, 406-252-2516.

Oil Spill Near Fairview

By Dianne Swanson
Oil and water don't mix. The full extent of the March 11 oil spill at Private Frazier Well site north of Fairview remains to be seen. The Zavanna LLC well site is on land owned by Cayko Farms. Although the North Dakota Oil and Gas Commission says they sent out warnings of ice jams and potential flooding four days in advance, David Hodges, senior vice president of operations for Zavanna says the company received notification by voice mail at approximately 8 a.m. on March 11. Workers were in the area, monitoring conditions until 5 p.m. when everything appeared normal. At 11 p.m. that evening a truck driver notified Zavanna of flooding near the location. Zavanna personnel, including the production superintendent, pumpers and field personnel began shutting in the well but flood waters breached the 12' dike area. One tipped tank leaked approximately 33 barrels of oil. Another tank, or tanks, may be compromised. Further containment efforts began the afternoon of March 13 after notification from the NDIC that an aerial photograph showed a release on the Private Frazier. A containment boom was placed around the tank that was tipped over. Hodges said that sometime between the morning and afternoon of the 13th is when the release occurred, providing further reasoning that it was the middle tank that leaked and not the outside one which had tipped over. With 15 wells in the Lewis and Clark field, Zavanna focused on securing all their wells on both the east and west sides of the river. Hodges said that Zavanna knows exactly how much oil was on the site, but he could not speculate on how much oil leaked. The company is in the process of pumping approximately 85,000 barrels of contaminated water from the site and hauling it to an approved disposal site. Once that water is removed, Zavanna will be able to determine the full extent of the damage. Adjacent land owners Paul and Joan Eldridge didn't discover the spill until March 26, almost two weeks after the flood. Paul noticed some oil on ice chunks piled against his fence. Further investigation revealed a stripe of oil a few inches wide and approximately 6' up on the trees in their pasture, plus globs of oil scattered on the ground. They had not been notified of the spill. Initial conversations with Zavanna representatives did not go well. Angry and frustrated, Paul called the National Oil Spill Hotline which is connected with the North Dakota Oil and Gas commission, the EPA, ND Game & Fish, the Health department and several other entities. By the end of the day, Eldridges had received calls from all those entities and had an appointment with Game & Fish for the next morning. Hodges explained the non-notification by stating that their concern, first and foremost, was containment and cleanup. With data coming in that was not necessarily accurate, Zavanna didn't understand where the oil had gone at first. They had notified Terry and Vickie Cayko of the spill, unaware that Eldridges owned the property just 550' away.

Paul Eldridge is 6' tall, showing the height of most of the oil lines in his pasture.

"I hate to say it, but we were focused on the waterways. After Paul called, we realized we hadn't contacted all the right people," Hodges said.

Kent Luttschwager, wildlife resource supervisor, ND Game & Fish Department, surveyed the damages Thursday morning with Paul. They met up with Zavanna personnel at the well site and gave them a tour as well.

Luttschwager said the oil spill involved a rupture or tipped tank on private property. The question is where the plume went. Aerial photos initially showed it headed west, then northwest. Impacts occurred mostly on Game & Fish land, plus a bit of BLM land on Big Oxbow Island, plus adjacent private property. Until the phone call, Game & Fish was unaware of damage to the Eldridge property. Now, they are looking at a possible northeast direction for the plume and checking the Ochs Point Wildlife Management Area as well since that joins the Eldridge land. "With flood conditions, it's difficult to get around. We'll continue to survey the area," Luttschwager said. "Our concern now is where it (the plume) went. Especially with ice jams and flooding, it's not predictable."

Game & Fish is not against development and extracting of minerals according to Luttschwager. Their concern is that there has to be vision and planning in place that allows the extraction of resources in a safe and prudent manner. "There are real concerns about lasting damage and the long term affect on sensitive species such as the pallid sturgeon," he said. "The downstream intakes, whether residential, agricultural or commercial may be affected. It may not be a big concern if the spill is small, but if it continues to happen, everyone downstream has to be concerned."

Game & Fish concerns with the spill are first, the cleanup of private and public property. Second, the river bottom of the Yellowstone River, the last unregulated great river in the U.S. Luttschwager said he hopes the spill will launch a discussion of future techniques and protection measures by all involved to prevent another spill. Short term planning involves the traditional June rise which has the potential for more flooding. Long term plans need to be developed for the life of the oil wells.

Garner Environmental from Texas has been hired by Zavanna to do the cleanup. Forty-five people have been working, with another 20 added last Saturday. The crew uses boats to reach the Big Oxbow Wildlife Management site. Shovels and pitchforks are used to remove oil soaked debris, which is then placed in heavy duty garbage bags and shipped back to the confluence for disposal at an approved site. Hodges estimates that the Game & Fish and BLM land will be cleaned within the next few days, with the Eldridge property taking approximately 7 more days.

Hodges said Zavanna will work with all the different agencies to make sure the right things are done with the cleanup. "We fully support the interagency comprehensive approach," Hodges said. "We want to get this done as quickly and thoroughly as possible. We are committed to cleaning this up."

Hodges added that Zavanna is always working to avoid environmental impacts from their operations. On this site, he says they are not going to cut corners. "If we caused it, we will take care of it."

In an unusual move, representatives from Zavanna, Game & Fish, ND Oil and Gas commission and others are scheduled to meet with Eldridges to discuss the impacts of the oil spill and the best solutions to the problem.

When all is said and done, they all want the same thing. Eldridges want satisfaction for the spill, Zavanna wants to get it cleaned up and get back to work producing oil, and the Game & Fish wants oil development done responsibly.

Flood waters swirled around this pile of brush, leaving oil everywhere.

Above: Two weeks after the flood, huge ice chunks still sit at the boat ramp of the confluence.

Below: With raging flood waters, the oil lines are hit and miss. It marked this piece of tin, but left the adjoining one unscathed.

Anglers, Hunters Cautioned of Ground Conditions

Anglers and hunters are reminded to be wary of ground conditions when traveling to and from a favorite fishery or hunting location.

Greg Power, fisheries chief for the North Dakota Game and Fish Department, said with fishing good statewide, many anglers are taking advantage of late-season ice and early-season shore fishing.

"However, travel can be difficult this time of year with the soft conditions," Power said. "We urge anglers to use common sense when conditions are likely to cause problems with township roads and access points."

Wildlife chief Randy Kreil said spring snow goose and turkey hunters are encouraged to maintain positive landowner/hunter relations. "We ask hunters to be cognizant of these conditions," Kreil said. "Driving on soft, muddy roads and trails is strongly discouraged."

Hunters are advised to seek permission before attempting any off-road travel on private land.

Deer Meetings Generate High Interest

North Dakota's 2014 deer seasons will look pretty much the same as in previous years.

Through a series of public meetings and an open comment period that ran through March 17, however, deer hunters have provided a lot of input for the State Game and Fish Department to consider for 2015 and beyond.

"We told people at the meetings that it was very unlikely any major changes would take place this year," said Game and Fish wildlife chief Randy Kreil. "Aside from some possible adjustments to the total number of deer gun season licenses, we won't be recommending any changes in season structure or the number of licenses any one deer hunter can have."

Game and Fish wildlife managers will analyze the hundreds of written and verbal comments received, before deciding whether to pursue changes for 2015.

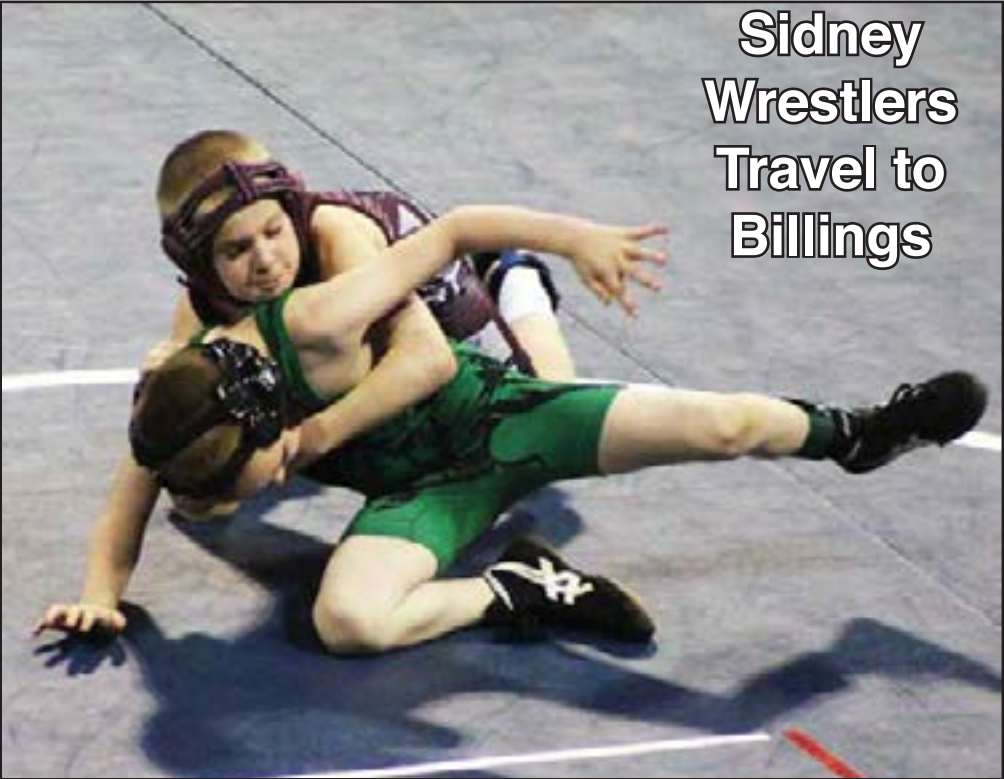

More than 800 people attended the eight deer meetings held around the state the last two weeks in February. Several hundred additional hunters either watched the final meeting broadcast online, or viewed a recorded version. Game and Fish received about 400 written online comments and many other direct emails and phone calls.

"We expected high interest in this process and the response we got was even above that," Kreil said. "North Dakota hunters are passionate about our deer hunting tradition. Our long-term hope is that habitat trends will allow us to rebuild the deer population from where it is now to a level that is satisfactory to the deer hunting public. Most people seem willing to make some type of short-term licensing-related changes to help us do that. Because of the great response we've had, we have a lot of ideas to evaluate, some of which are new or variations of the current system."

Game and Fish set up the meetings and public comment process to explore some ideas for changes in deer license allocation the agency has received in recent years, in response to a declining deer population and fewer available licenses. In 2008 Game and Fish allocated nearly 150,000 licenses and in 2013 the total fell to 59,500.

While even at 150,000 licenses not every hunter could get a preferred license in a preferred unit, Kreil said the number of hunters who applied for a gun season license and didn't get one has increased significantly over the past years.

As with all issues, Game and Fish is open to continuing public input. The general department email address is ndgf@nd.gov; and phone is 701-328-6300.

Report Bald Eagle Nests

The State Game and Fish Department is asking for help in locating bald eagle nests in North Dakota.

Game and Fish Department conservation biologist Sandra Johnson said the department is looking for locations of nests with eagles present, not individual eagle sightings. "Eagles are actively incubating eggs in March and April," Johnson said. "It is easy to distinguish an eagle nest because of its enormous size."

Historically, Johnson said eagle nests were found along the Missouri River. Now, they have been observed in more than half of the counties in the state, mostly near streams and mid- to large-sized lakes. However, they are also found in unique areas such as shelterbelts surrounded by cropland or pasture.

Johnson estimates the state has around 120 active bald eagle nests, possibly more.

Nest observations should be reported to Johnson at 701-328-6382, or by email at ndgf@nd.gov.

Observers are asked to not disturb the nest, and to stay away at a safe distance. "It is important not to approach the nest as foot traffic may disturb the bird, likely causing the eagle to leave her eggs unattended," Johnson said.

MRS Walleye Tagging Study Continues

Year one of a multi-year walleye tagging study on the Missouri River and Lake Oahe is complete, and returns are providing biologists with valuable information.

Scott Gangl, North Dakota Game and Fish Department fisheries management section leader, said more than 9,100 fish were tagged in 2013, the first year of the four-year study, and nearly 1,400 tag numbers were turned in by anglers.

The study area extends from the Garrison Dam in central North Dakota downstream to Oahe Dam in South Dakota, and involves a major collaboration of biologists and researchers from North Dakota Game and Fish, South Dakota Game, Fish and Parks, and South Dakota State University.

The study is designed to assess walleye movements, mortality and what proportion of the walleye population is harvested annually by anglers.

Gangl said the first year of the study revealed some interesting movement patterns. For example, fish tagged in North Dakota moved greater distances than those tagged farther downstream. In North Dakota, fish tagged in both Oahe and the Garrison Reach of the Missouri River traveled an average of 40 river miles. Fish tagged in Lake Oahe's upper and middle zones within South Dakota moved an average of 10-15 river miles, and those tagged in the lower zone moved only about 5 miles. North Dakota fish moved both upstream and downstream after tagging.

Gangl said most of the returns were from May, June and July, and when the bite slowed in August, so did the returns.

The goal of the four-year study is to tag 10,000 walleye in the study area in the Dakotas per year, Gangl said, with up to 4,000 tagged and released annually in the Missouri River and upper Lake Oahe in North Dakota.

The study targets adult walleye, each fitted with a metal jaw tag stamped with a unique number to identify the fish, and a phone number to report the tag. Anglers can either keep or release the fish. Anglers practicing catch-and-release can write the tag number down and report it, leaving the tag on the fish when released.

Anglers can report tags by calling the phone number found on tags, which, anglers should note, is a South Dakota phone number. Tag information can also be reported on the Game and Fish Department's website, gf.nd.gov, tag reporting page or by calling 701-328-6300.

Anglers should record the date and location of the catch, whether the fish was kept or released, tag number and length and weight (if the fish was measured). Anglers who report tagged fish can keep the tag, and will receive a letter providing some history on the fish.

Gangl said a small portion of the tags offer a reward to anglers to encourage them to turn them in. These tags are clearly marked "Reward."

Reward tags must be physically turned in to Game and Fish offices in Riverdale or Bismarck, or to a Game, Fish and Parks office in South Dakota.
