Katie Paulson And Dori Sparby, McKenzie County Recorder Candidates

Dori Sparby

Katie Paulson

By Jordan Hall

McKenzie County has two options on the November ballot for County Recorder. Katie Paulson and Dori Sparby are both competing for the office, and The Roundup was able to speak with both candidates about their bid for McKenzie County Recorder.

The Recorder's Office is capable of keeping all permanent land records in the county and indexing them so they can be researched by others. It also is responsible for recording marriage licenses, and it also keeps the discharge papers of those who've served in the military.

Dori Sparby told The Roundup, "I have lived in McKenzie County for a little over seven years. I own Saddle Up Western Wear. I'm married with three beautiful daughters and a great son-in-law. Before moving to McKenzie County, I grew up in Iowa and then lived in Northern Minnesota."

Sparby explained her previous experience, noting, "I worked for McKenzie County at the Recorder's Office from May of 2011 through July of 2014 during the height of the oil boom. I've also worked as a paralegal for seven or eight years. I do feel like I have a firm grasp on the job."

Sparby asserts that the current county clerk is paid too much, and there might be financial waste in other departments as well. She said, "I truly feel that we need to start making our department heads be a little more accountable. Right now our recorder, in my opinion, makes way too much money at shy of just 125 thousand dollars. I've not found a county recorder anywhere in the state that makes more than her. I would not take a salary that high."

Sparby also claimed that the Tax Director's Office, which is currently managed by her opponent, Katie Paulson, should be separated from the Recorder's Office.

"When I left in 2014, they put the Tax Director's Office in with Recorder's Office and they should be separate for the purpose of accountability. That should be fixed as well. I think we need to start looking at what's best for our county and not the pocketbook of those in charge."

Katie Paulson, who was appointed Tax Director by the McKenzie County commissioners in 2013, highlighted her experience and training, as well as her positive work relationship with the current Recorder's Office.

Paulson said, "I have lived in Watford City for 13 years and have worked in the McKenzie County Recorder's Office for thirteen years. I'm married with three kids. I care deeply about my work in McKenzie County and the people who need access to our land records because it has become a passion of mine."

"For me," Paulson continued, "it comes down to the people. I'm very well trained for the work we do, but my favorite part of the job is when somebody comes in for help and we get to serve those people. It's a very rewarding feeling."

Paulson explained that the salary of the recorder is set by the commissioners and the current recorder's salary reflects decades of service and compounded longevity bonuses that the incoming recorder would not receive.

Paulson said, "You want someone who has the experience and training to continue serving our public with the best service possible. I believe I am that person. I've been trained by the current recorder who has served for over 30 years. She has trained me well in that office to take over."

Bilateral Amputee and Hodge Trophy Winner Nick Ackerman to Speak At Sidney Wrestling Club Casino Night

By Jaymi Loobey

Friday night, October 26, 840 Sidney Wrestling Club supporters are in for a real treat. At 6 p.m. the Wrestling Club's Annual Casino Night fundraiser begins at the Sidney Elks Lodge. They will enjoy delicious parmesan chicken and chicken fried steak, music, prizes, bingo, poker, and other fun things as one would expect but this year the special guest is inspirational speaker, bilateral amputee, and Hodge Trophy Winner Nick Ackerman.

According to Bob Dotson in a 2011 segment of Today's American Story Nick Ackerman, an Iowa native, had to have both of his legs amputated below the knee when he contracted meningitis at 18 months. That did not stop him from competing in various sports such as football and wrestling. He continued to wrestle while attending college at Simpson College in Indianola, Iowa where he made it to the 2001 NCWA Championships and beat a wrestler who had been undefeated. He was given the Hodge Trophy that year for being the outstanding wrestler of the year. He shared the honor with repeat winner, Cael Sanderson. He had wanted to become a park ranger but chose another path in the end. Nick ended up taking classes to learn how to make prosthetics like the ones he had worn most of his life. According to their website, www.apo-inc.com, Nick now works for American Prosthetics & Orthotics. Nick Ackerman, CP, LP, is APO's Director of Prosthetics. An ABC-certified prosthetist, he is C-Leg® and RHEO KNEE® certified and sees patients in the Des Moines office. Nick, who has been an APO patient since childhood, joined the staff in 2001. He is a graduate of Simpson College, Indianola, Iowa, as well as the prosthetics program at Northwestern University. In addition to seeing patients, Nick is responsible for educating staff on new developments in prosthetics, establishing company-wide prosthetics practices and protocols, supervising prosthetic residents, and developing curriculum for training.

Lisa said that since they were going to honor and acknowledge Coach Guy Melby for his induction into the AAU Hall of Fame last summer, they wanted to do something special. Shane had heard Nick speak at an AAU Convention in Des Moines, Iowa last year and had struck up a friendship with him. Nick was coming to Montana to hunt this year and they asked him to stop by and share with the Poker Night attendees. Lisa Gorder, one of the many organizers of the Sidney Wrestling Club's Casino Night, told me she believes that anyone who comes to listen will benefit from listening to Nick. Her husband and fellow organizer, Shane Gorder said, "Any community member facing a challenge would benefit from listening to Nick speak."

Tickets are $40 and include dinner for two and a chance to win the progressive raffle and they will not need to be present to win. Tickets for those who just want dinner are $10 at the door. The tickets for the entire event are being sold in the Elks Lodge at 123 3rd St SW in Sidney, Montana and by individual local wrestling club members. Those not up for dinner can come later in the evening for the games, prizes, and opportunities for fun throughout the night. Over $4,000 in cash and prizes are up for grabs and include Denver Broncos tickets, a fishing trip to Lake Traverse in South Dakota and much more. Lisa told me, "Tickets are limited and they sell out every year so if you want to come, hurry to get your tickets soon."

The Promiseland Project kicked off its nationwide America's Front Porch event in Watford City on October 14. The event held three discussion panels focusing on education, workforce development and small businesses. The event also included performances by Tigerlily and MamaDear. Above, local business owners on the "Front Porch" stage speak about what it takes to run a successful business in Watford City. Golden Roundup

Streaking in Wallace

By Lois Stephens

Every year, my sister and I plan a get-away together. We choose a destination, set a date for our adventure, and off we go. When we lived a mile apart, our sister trips took us in any direction we wanted. Now that we live nine hours apart, we investigate locations approximately equidistant between our respective residences. This way neither one of us has a long travel time to reach our chosen vacation spot.

This year, we decided to meet in Wallace, Idaho, midway between my home in Virginia City and my sister’s home near Dayton, Washington. Wallace resembles Virginia City in that Wallace is an old mining town with plenty of interesting history. It offers a lot of attractions that we figured would keep two older ladies interested. So, the last week in September, my sister and I met in Wallace for a few days of visiting, hiking, perusing the town and area attractions, and enjoying good food and good wine.

We hiked the Pulaski Tunnel Trail, we walked on some of the 72-mile-long Coeur d’Alene bicycle and hiking path, we investigated museums, browsed in several of the shops, and we took a mine tour. We trudged up the many flights of steps to nowhere that allow pedestrians to climb the hillside from one street to the next, and we meandered all around Wallace. Good grief, after all the comments I made about the tourists we encountered this summer in Virginia City, here I was, a tourist myself, complete with camera, wandering the streets of an unfamiliar town.

Wallace allowed prostitution well into the 1980s, so of course we had to visit the Oasis Bordello museum. The upstairs of this building, where the girls plied their trade, remains unchanged from the night in 1988 when the girls packed their bags and left town, forewarned that the FBI intended to raid their establishment. The main floor of the museum has a lot of interesting little gems to view as well as offering unique and hilarious gift items. Naturally I had to again play tourist and purchase some humorous gifts for a few select people. I figured my offerings would bring a smile to the recipients’ faces, if not outright laughter.

As much as we enjoyed all the touring and hiking, the initial attraction that caught both my and my sister’s attention way back months ago when we first discussed meeting places, and which became an object of mutual interest and discussion, was the Silver Streak Zip Line. Before we ever left home for our little trip together, both of us talked about the possibility of trying the zip line. My sister admitted to me that trying a zip line happened to be one of the items on her bucket list. What better time than the present to cross something off one’s bucket list?

So, on our last afternoon in Wallace, we bought a zip line package. With several options to choose from, and without any idea how we would like this little adventure, we both purchased the (appropriately enough) bucket list package which gave us two chance to zoom down that little cable. For an additional charge, we could elect to add the Big Daddy run as well, but we opted not to take that. People in Wallace had mentioned the Big Daddy run to us and explained that a zip liner could see out across the entire valley when riding that line. Unfortunately, “too soon old, too late smart” won the day so neither of us had the sense to add that Big Daddy choice to our package.

Our guides got us harnessed, gave us gloves and hard hats, and off we went to the zip line course. We arrived at our first cable line, the guides gave us our instructions, checked our harnesses, and it was time to fly.

My sister went first. I watched her rocket along the wire and reach the other side safely. I sat in my harness staring at the thick cable heading downwards across the gorge and my legs felt bolted to the platform. All I had to do was lift both feet, and I would be plummeting along a cable stretched what looked like a very long distance across a very deep canyon. I took a deep breath, wondered why I thought I had wanted to do this in the first place, raised both feet off the platform, and I was off like the proverbial bat out of the nether regions.

The first ten yards, I thought “Oh crap, what have I done??” but almost immediately, the fear drained away, replaced by exhilaration and euphoria. I reached the end of the run feeling exultant and eager to tackle the next ride.

The second run consisted of two cables strung side by side, several yards apart, so two people could ride the wires together. Our guide told us people would use this particular stretch to race each other to the end of the line. My sister and I weren’t interested in racing, we just wanted to soar again. At the count of three, we leaned back into our harnesses, slipped off the platform with a mighty YEEHAAAAAAAAA issuing from both our throats as we streaked across the canyon.

It ended too soon. Both of us loved the zip line, but I came away with three regrets. The rides didn’t last long enough, I should have bought the Big Daddy option as well, and I have no pictures of us streaking in Wallace. That is the sort of picture I like to drop into Christmas cards. It seems to add a little bit of flavor to annual greetings.

We did have a great trip this year, one that still brings a smile to my face, particularly when I recall the zip line experience. I have no idea where we will go for next year’s sister trip, but if one of the options includes a nearby zip line, I have a sneaky hunch that is the destination we will choose.

If you could detect breast cancer
before it spreads, wouldn’t you?

A new perspective
can help you see differently.

Advanced Technology, Less Radiation

3D Mammography

Up to 30 percent of cancers go undetected by standard mammography. And 52-76 percent of cancers are missed in dense breast tissue, where tumors are more difficult to identify.

CHI St. Alexius Health’s most advanced technology changes that. Our approach to mammography helps us examine breast tissue layer by layer. While taking better pictures than before, our new wide-angle technology means up to 30 percent less radiation dose for our patients.

3rd Annual Comedy Café Features Vegas Headliner

The third annual Comedy Café starring Las Vegas headliner Jeff Civillico and comedian Bob Stromberg, is coming to Watford City on Friday, October 26 at 7 p.m. Central at the Watford City Performing Arts Center at Watford City High School.

Featured comedian, TV Host Personality and Philanthropist Jeff Civillico has been a Las Vegas Headliner with Caesars Entertainment for 7 years, having performed 1000+ shows at The LINQ, The Flamingo, and now at The Paris Hotel & Casino. Jeff's Vegas show at Paris Las Vegas is highly-acclaimed and was named the #1 place to "Kick it with Kids in Vegas" in 2015 by Las Vegas Magazine. Jeff was also named 2015's "Cultural Advocate/Entertainer of the Year" by Vegas Inc. Jeff has hosted national programs on ABC, NBC, ESPN, Travel Channel, Cooking Channel and more. In addition, Jeff is ridiculous. He holds a world record for bungee jumping of his unicycle off a cliff in New Zealand and goes "joggling" (juggling while jogging) for fun. Jeff will perform a family friendly show tailored to the community, bringing his unique blend of humor and entertainment, and a bit of Vegas to the Bakken.

Opening the show at 7 pm is Comedian and Speaker Bob Stromberg. Bob is "a genuinely funny man," according to London Times. Stromberg has been delighting audiences of all ages for over thirty years, traveling the world performing his very unique and perfect blend of standup, story and shtick. He's the co-author and original star of the megahit theatrical comedy, Triple Espresso (A Highly Caffeinated Comedy), which has been seen by over two million people from San Diego to the West End of London. The Chicago Sun Times calls Bob, "...a mesmerizing physical comedian."

Along with a good laugh, guests will also enjoy locally-made desserts by Hometown Homemade, coffee and hot apple cider provided by Door 204 as part of their café experience.

The Comedy Cafe is the primary funding source for the operations of Bakken Oil Rush Ministry, which began in 2013 with a mission to find ways to meet the needs of new incoming families in the community. The ministry started as a mobile thrift store, operating out of an enclosed trailer, where they gave away everything. It has now grown to occupy a building and a quonset and has expanded services to offer furniture and other goods at minimal pricing. All proceeds from the Comedy Café will work to fulfill that mission.

Jeff Civillico

"The support for this event and this cause has been amazing," said Jim Konsor, the founding pastor of the ministry. "Demands for household items and clothing have greatly increased over the last six months with the return of increased energy production in the area, so the support we receive at this event makes a huge difference in how we can help fill these needs."

According to Konsor the ministry has helped over four thousand families and individuals since the last Comedy Cafe.

"Last week, we gave away over two hundred coats during our annual coat giveaway, said Melanie Smith, who serves on the Comedy Café committee. "The Christmas Toy Event is right around the corner and we hope to provide toys and entertainment to over one hundred children."

Bakken Oil Rush is expanding its operations to accommodate the additional influx of young families with plans to renovate both the retail store and the sorting facility, including more space for large items such as appliances and furniture. These expansion projects are incomplete and in need of more funding.

To help expand outreach on this event, the Long X

Arts Foundation has teamed up with the Comedy Café as a sponsor and a host, offering this event as part of their Member Concert Series. Watford City Concert Series Members will also enjoy three additional concerts throughout the year.

"The Long X Arts Foundation is all about collaboration and support and using the arts to bring community together," said Jessie Scofield, Concert Series President. "We saw this as a perfect opportunity to lend a hand on a unique event for the whole family. Our goal is to fill every seat in that beautiful theater."

Tickets to the show are $25 per person with all proceeds going to further the work of the ministry. Tickets can be purchased in advance at iTickets.com and at area churches. Watford City Concert Series member tickets are accepted and memberships will be available for sale at the event. The arts foundation will donate a percentage of sales at the event back to the ministry.

The Comdey Café begins at 7 pm on Frinday, October 26. The Performing Arts Center is located at Watford City High School, 2313 Wolves Den Parkway, Watford City. For more information visit facebook.com/comedycafend. Find out more about the concert series and art foundation at longxarts.com.

To donate to the Bakken Oil Rush Ministry, contact Jim Konsor at 605-268-0058 or jameskonsor@gmail.com. Ministry store hours are Tuesdays and Wednesdays from 12-5:30 pm. They are located at 600 12th St. NE. Find out more at facebook.com/oilrushministry

The Watford City FFA Chapter, along with nine other chapters from northwest North Dakota, recently held its annual District Leadership Conference in Stanley. Watford City was well represented with 33 of its members attending along with advisors, Miss Hawbaker and Mr. Wisness. Watford City placed 4th in Chapter-of-the-day points, behind Ray, Stanley and Tioga. The Parliamentary Procedure team, consisting of our chapter officers received a Gold team award. Members were required to perform opening and closing ceremonies and demonstrate 10 abilities in parliamentary law. This is the most competitive event at the conference. Receiving Gold individual awards were vice president Cauy Hartel, reporter Isabell Boekelman and sentinel Jake Leppell. Receiving a Silver individual award were president Gracie Dahl, secretary Kell Helmuth and treasurer Shayla Rolla. The team did very well demonstrating their knowledge of Parliamentary law. The Chapter competed in all of the public speaking events. Ian Lewis earned second place in the Extemporaneous Public Speaking Event. In Demonstration, Alex is Davis received 3rd place in Demonstration. Alician Garcia placed 3rd in Memorized Public Speaking. Dede Tepse was our creed winner this year and earned silver. All of the speakers represented our chapter well and we even had Henry Florida entertain everyone in talent. The freshmen did an outstanding job as the Greenhand Quiz team won first place and earned gold. Individually, Ismael Carrillo, Karson Kling, Kanyon Tschetter, Izaak Boekelman, and Kristen Clark all earned gold, while Tyler Erickson earned a silver. The Chapter Quiz team received a silver team award. In the individual results, Connor Cross received Gold, while Isabell Boekelman, Shayla Rolla, Laney Hartel, and Gabriella Kaufman each received a Silver award. The Watford City FFA Chapter was again the sponsoring chapter in Greenhand Parliamentary Procedure. In this event, 23 teams consisting of first-year members demonstrated opening ceremonies, a main motion, amendment, point of order, division and discussion. Watford City was well-represented as we had a gold, silver and bronze team. Receiving gold individually were Kiaran Olson, Dede Tepse, Madison Spacher, Neil Dahl, and Ismael Carrillo. Silver officers included Caleb Boothe, Dakota Wollan, Karsen Kling, Brandon Rorex, Tyler Erickson, Kristen Clark, Jenna Mandler, and Brenna Johnston. Receiving bronze were Alex Lundberg, Kanyon Tschetter, Izaak Boekelman, Braeden Farnsworth and Alician Garcia. Members attending the District Leadership Conference had a lot of fun. It was an excellent opportunity for them to develop their leadership skills.

2nd Annual MonDak Ag Research Summit Set for Nov. 14

By Kelly Stehr

The North Dakota State University Williston Research Extension Center (WREC), Montana State University Eastern Agricultural Research Center (EARC) and U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Northern Plains Agricultural Research Lab in Sidney are partnering once again to showcase agricultural research underway in eastern Montana and western North Dakota.

The 2nd annual MonDak Ag Research Summit will be held on Nov. 14 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Mountain Time at the Richland County Event Center in Sidney.

The summit was established last year and is a collaborative effort among the three research stations to encourage interaction between farmers and researchers. It features scientists from all three facilities reporting on current research projects of interest to farmers, ranchers and residents of the MonDak.

In addition to the research talks, the event allows for one-on-one and small group discussions with scientists, providing producers the opportunity to share their questions and research needs and ideas directly with the scientists. The summit is free and lunch is provided courtesy of the Northern Pulse Growers Association. Other sponsors for the event include the City of Williston, Sidney Sugars, Inc., Montana-Dakota Beet Growers Association, Agri-Industries, Dawson County Implement, Cargill and Tri-County Implement. More than 120 people participated in this event in 2017.

This year's program schedule is as follows and begins with a special guest speaker addressing emerging and persistent weed issues in this region.

Morning topics and speakers:

*Weed control of horseweed, narrowleaf hawksbeard, Kochia, Russian thistle and others – Guest Speaker Brian Jenks, NCREC, Minot, ND

*Rangeland and aquatic weed update – John Gaskin, USDA ARS

*Integrating biocontrol into your weed management plan – Natalie West, USDA ARS

*A fungus bait formulation for grasshopper, Mormon cricket control – Stefan Jaronski, USDA ARS

*The effect of tillage and rotation on rhizoctonia root and crown rot – Audrey Kalil, WREC

A morning poster session will also give attendees time to browse more than twenty additional research projects and speak with the scientists doing the work. After the poster session, the morning program will continue with the following presentations:

*Effect of tillage, irrigation, and nitrogen on sugarbeet yield and sugar content - Chengci Chen, EARC

*Tillage vs no-till effect on corn, soybean, barley and sugarbeet yield (Nesson) and water use efficiency under irrigated conditions - Bart Stevens, USDA ARS

*Economics and soil health of sustainable cropping systems – Don Tanaka, WREC

*Dryland pea production and water use affected by tillage, crop rotation, and cultural practice – Upendra Sainju, USDAARS

A free lunch sponsored by the Northern Pulse Growers Association will be served at the conclusion of the morning session. Brian Gion, Marketing Director of NPGA is our guest lunch speaker.

The afternoon program will feature small-group discussions where attendees can meet with scientists by subject area to discuss current industry topics. The discussion groups will run concurrently with another series of research talks of interest to area producers. Attendees will be able to move back and forth between the afternoon talks and discussion group tables as desired.

The afternoon talks include:

For those interested in horticulture, Kyla Splichal, WREC horticulture specialist, will present on high tunnel use and construction.

For those interested in cover crops, Brett Allen, USDA ARS will discuss cover crops as replacement for fallow in semi-arid durum cropping systems.

For those interested in variety selections, Yesuf Mohammed, EARC, will discuss pulse crop variety selection and performance, and Justin Jacobs, WREC will discuss spring wheat and durum irrigated varieties.

New to our discussion groups this year is the presence of an area producer at some of the small group tables who will discuss their experiences working with local scientists and what they've both learned in that partnership.

Everyone interested is encouraged to attend. Again, the summit is free, but preregistration is encouraged for determining a meal count. You can preregister online at <https://tinyurl.com/mondaksummit18> or contact Beth Redlin at 406-433-2020, or by email at beth.redlin@ars.usda.gov.

Note, too, that approvals for Montana pesticide applicator points and certified crop adviser continuing educator units are pending for this event.

PSC Candidate Randy Pinocci Visits Sidney

By Jordan Hall

Public Service Commission candidate, Randy Pinocci, recently visited Sidney in a campaign stop, soliciting votes and spreading his message of common sense regulation. Pinocci, who has previously served as a representative to the state legislature for House District 19, is a Sun River native and winner of the 2018 Republican primary for PSC District One. He is challenging Democrat Doug Kaecher on the November 6 ballot.

The Public Service Commission is a five-member board that is responsible for the regulation of energy, telecommunications, water and sewer, transportation (to include taxi service), and pipeline utilities. Pinocci spoke with The Roundup while he was in Sidney about his aspirations and goals for the Public Service Commission.

Regarding his trip to Sidney, which concluded a tour through the Highline that included Ft. Benton, Chinook, and Malta, Pinocci said, "I've come to encourage the team leaders in the area. The area of District One is bigger than some states. To manage a campaign in an area of 19 counties is overwhelming. You have to have a team leader to check into these things. Let's encourage people to talk about what's relevant in the race, to talk about what people are passionate about."

Nemont, a communications service provider in Northeast Montana, was meeting in Scobey and Pinocci felt it important to attend the meeting to discover the issues that people are talking about and for which they have concerns.

"I wanted to discuss the issues of the Public Service Commission regarding how we place our responsibilities over telecommunications with Nemont. That went very well, but then I wanted to come over to Sidney because of the invitation of Scott Staffanson, our team leader here."

Pinocci explained that a lot of people aren't aware of what the PSC does, even though they've seen his campaign signs.

Pinocci explained, "I would bet 99 percent of people don't know what the PSC does. People have seen our signs, but typically haven't seen the signs of my competitor unless they live in his hometown of Havre."

"When we talk about the Public Service Commission," Pinocci said, "people are amazed to find out we deal with railroad safety. One of the issues we're dealing with are people walking on the tracks with headphones and a train runs them over. We try to encourage safety and warn the public to stay off the tracks and help public awareness."

Pinocci continued, "The PSC also polices taxi cab services. When I was in the legislature, I helped with legislation to allow Uber to conduct business in Montana. Prior to this, Uber was illegal in Montana. The taxicab companies were furious with me because this would give them competition, but our job is to look and see how we can benefit Montana. Only one percent of Montana has taxi service, and if somebody can turn their car into a taxi and do it properly, we would have more service for a tremendous amount of Montana. Since Uber has become approved, there's been all kinds of stories about how it's made a difference, from people having heart attacks who've been able to make it to the hospital to those who were snowed in but were able to get out and get groceries."

"Our main job," Pinocci said, "is to make sure our utility companies don't just double the rates. They have a monopoly. Very rarely in Montana do you have two choices. So the Public Service Commission has to approve any rate increase to make sure companies don't take advantage of the people. We don't regulate cooperatives, which are managed by the federal government, but private utility companies."

When asked why he believed Eastern Montana voters should cast their ballot for him, Pinocci responded, "The Democrat Party's energy platform calls for every single coal-fired facility to be closed. If we did that, your rates would probably triple. I don't mind wind and solar, but I do mind people not being told the costs."

Pinocci continued, "I'm running against a Democrat and he's not going to say that he's for a less-dependable, more expensive energy infrastructure, but that's the truth."
