Postal Service Struggles To Keep Up With Rapid Growth

By Jaimee Green

In the midst of a rapid population explosion it isn't just the private sector businesses and community members who are struggling to adjust to a constantly changing Sidney. The U.S. Postal Service is experiencing major growing pains of its own as it struggles to keep up with a constantly expanding residential landscape with more growth on the way.

"In the future we plan to adjust our routes to allow them to better fit our needs for delivery. It will be a continual process but the difficulty is that we have protocol to follow and that process can be lengthy. Despite what we may want to do, we can't just adjust as needed," said Brandi Lien, postmaster.

With four city mail carriers, the average route consists of some 800 addresses. Mail carriers, who work an average of six days a week, currently are logging some 50 and 60 hours a week in an effort to get the mail delivered.

To make the challenges of having new residents popping up on a daily basis more challenging, all of the carriers have been employed as transitional employees for less than six months. With an all new crew of carrier employees, they are trying to learn the basics of their new career while adjusting to a landscape in constant flux.

Richland County Planner Marcy Hamburg said there are a number of subdivisions proposed and conditionally approved that will potentially add more addresses to the routes.

Currently, Sunrise Village is a proposed subdivision located in the northeast corner of town and includes a 182 lot subdivision with 100 residential homes and six buildings each consisting of 160 apartments.

Another proposed subdivision includes North View, with 31 multifamily lots located between the justice center and County Road 350. The Mayo Subdivision also includes 31 multifamily and single residential homes in the northwest area of the city near the golf course. A separate, five lot commercial subdivision has also been proposed.

A minor subdivision request includes one to five lots while a major subdivision request involves six or more lots.

"The applications have doubled from the previous year. Before, the applications were split between certificates of surveys and minor subdivisions. Now, we have had more major subdivision application requests," said Hamburg.

Troy Green, a postal employee with 15 years of experience, has been on loan to the Sidney office for about six months from Wolf Point helping to train new carriers. "A few years ago, you had routes that were the same for years and years but now people are creating new residences in basements and parking campers in driveways and it has made it extremely difficult to accurately deliver the mail. All of our neighborhood collection boxes are full and we are waiting for concrete so more can be installed," Green said.

Mail clerks are also making some adjustments. For Rachael Leininger, 27, an employee of just over a year, working up the mail to prepare it for dispatch has been a constantly increasing effort as more mail is arriving on the dock each morning and leaving with the nightly dispatch.

Five years ago, the box addressed section was comprised of some 580 addresses. Today, there are 1,150 with only some 350 empty boxes left. On average, up to 10 people per week are coming in and opening new boxes whereas it used to be an infrequent occurrence that happened several times a month. Once those boxes are filled, a waiting list will start for people who want to use a post office box number for an address rather than receive street delivery.

For customers who have grown accustomed to waiting in long lines to mail packages and purchase stamps, the newly installed Automated Postal Center is allowing more patrons to do their own mailing. The APC is located in the lobby and available 24 hours a day to better accommodate people unable to get to the post office during normal business hours.

For new residents, the postal service requests that Change of Address forms are filled out if they were not completed in their former place of residence. If mail is delivered that does not belong to you, it is best to leave the mail in your mailbox with a note stating the mail is not yours. When mailing packages it is also helpful to use the delivery confirmation service to better track when your package was received.

If you live outside of town you need the county to verify you have the correct address. Once you notify the postal service, they will activate that delivery point and you will begin receiving mail.

"People don't realize how difficult it is to learn thousands of addresses. One of the problems we find is that people who have lived here for a long time assume we know where it should go and don't address their mail correctly. Another challenge is the fact that many people don't know what their address is supposed to be. Being just one digit off can really make a huge difference in whether or not the mail gets delivered correctly," Lien said.

Some of the delivery confusion stems from the towns use of streets and avenues and directions such as NE, NW, SE and SW. Mail that comes misaddressed with these inaccuracies is difficult to deliver accurately.

This year's record breaking milder temperatures have made it easier for carriers to make deliveries without having to deal with the elements and deep snow. "The weather has been fantastic for us. It has been really helpful with giving the new people more time to learn their craft and get accustomed to the physical demands of the job without snow like we had last year and the freezing temperatures," Lien stated.

Alicia Dahl and her sons Parker, 19, and Connor, 17, have transformed the former T&C Diner, Fairview, into the very comfortable and welcoming Downtown Bistro. Come in dressed in field clothes, business clothes or shorts and flip flops. Relax on a sofa or chair, savor a great cup of coffee and take advantage of free WI-FI, or enjoy a delicious breakfast or lunch and fresh homemade baked goods.

Alicia states her top three priorities as providing good service and fresh, delicious food in a clean environment. All three Dahls are trained baristas. Every pot of coffee features freshly ground beans and a new, expensive water filtration system helps ensure that customers receive a great cup of coffee every time.

"I'm very picky about coffee beans," Alicia said. They are currently testing several varieties to see which one they prefer.

Breakfast is served from 6-10:30 a.m. and lunch from 10:30 a.m. until closing. Choose from breakfast sandwiches, burritos, and weekly specials. Lunch offerings include panini, sub sandwiches and soups.

They will be adding more side dishes soon, such as pasta salad, BBQ beans, spinach artichoke dip and bruschetta. Salads, Italian sodas and frappuccinos will be added this spring.

Alicia is always looking for the best meats, breads and cheeses. Meats are sliced fresh every morning, all sauces and soups are homemade and there are no preservatives or additives in her food.

Alicia stressed that the venture has truly been a group effort. "Without family and friends, we couldn't have, and can't do it," she said. She also praised Richland Federal Credit Union and loan officer Nancy Verschot for all their assistance with her business loan. Richland Economic Development also provided funds through their revolving loan fund. "They were both wonderful to work with," Alicia stated.

Downtown Bistro is open Monday-Friday, 6 a.m.-2 p.m.

"We want to do a good job, and those are the hours we feel we can handle right now. At some point, we would like to add Saturday and evening hours as well," Alicia explained. The space is available to rent for private functions and business meetings, and Dahls would cater evening events. They are also looking forward to some open mic nights and other special events. Watch for their grand opening soon. Downtown Bistro can be reached at 406-742-5060. Call-in orders are welcome.

Parker, Alicia and Connor Dahl welcome you to the Downtown Bistro in Fairview.

USDA Announces 2012 Pulse Crop Loan Rates By Region

On March 9, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) announced regional pulse crop loan rates for the 2012 crop. Pulse crops include dry peas, lentils, small chickpeas and large chickpeas. Regional loan rates are established for dry peas, lentils and large chickpeas, but not for small chickpeas. Due to limited market price information from which to establish a 2012 regional loan rate for large chickpeas, the statutory loan rate will again be applicable in all states and counties. The West region includes Alaska, Arizona, California, Hawaii, Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah and Washington. The East region includes North Dakota and all other states. Regional dry pea and lentil loan rates reflect mar-

Missouri-Yellowstone Confluence Easter Egg Hunt To Be Held March 31

Missouri-Yellowstone Confluence Interpretive Center, in cooperation with the Trenton Fire Department, will hold an Easter Egg Hunt on Saturday, March 31, beginning at 1 p.m. This special community event will offer children not only the chance to chase down those elusive Easter Eggs at the confluence, but also allow them to enjoy the educational opportunities provided by the Confluence Center's exhibits. The eggs will be hidden in three locations, with the children divided into three age groups.

The Trenton Fire Department has been hosting this event to local children for more than 15 years. This marks the fourth year the Confluence Center and Trenton Fire Department have joined forces to offer the children the best Easter Egg Hunt experience possible.

The event is free and open to the public. Free refreshments will also be available. In the event of inclement weather, please call 701-572-9034 for an alternate date for the egg hunt. Participants are encouraged to come early and register for door prizes.

Located one-half mile east of Fort Buford, the Missouri-Yellowstone Confluence Interpretive Center tells the story of the confluence of these two mighty rivers, as well as provides the same magnificent view that Lewis and Clark Expedition members enjoyed when they visited in 1805 and 1806.

The Confluence Center is open year-round. Its winter hours are in effect, and are 9 a.m.-4 p.m., Wednesdays-Saturdays, and 1-5 p.m. Sundays. It is closed on New Year's Day, Easter, Thanksgiving and Christmas. Admissions to the Center's exhibits are $2.50/adult, $1.25/child, ages 6-15, and children 5 and under are admitted free.

Free admission to all sites administered by the State Historical Society of North Dakota (SHSND) is one of the many benefits for members of the SHSND Foundation. Others include a 15% discount on museum store purchases, and the quarterly publications North Dakota History and Plains Talk. To become a member, call the Foundation at 701-222-1966 or visit the Foundation's website at www.statehistoricalfoundation.com <http://www.statehistoricalfoundation.com>.

Leadership Montana To Hold Session In Sidney

By Lois Kerr

From Thursday through Saturday, March 24-26, Sidney will host a three-day learning session for this year's Leadership Montana class. Leadership Montana, a state-wide intensive nine-month program, attracts participants from all walks of life and from all points in Montana. These participants join together to learn leadership skills that each individual can use in his or her respective community to help improve and strengthen that locality. The group visits different Montana towns throughout the nine-month period in order to study individual centers and learn the problems and challenges facing these communities. This month, the 41 participants will visit Sidney to learn about our town and to study local issues and challenges. Class members will meet with local leaders to discuss the problems the community faces and to experience first-hand the obstacles found here as well as notice the positive aspects of the Sidney area.

"2012 is the first time Leadership Montana has been to Sidney since 2006," says Richland Economic Development (RED) Executive Director Leslie Messer, herself a 2008 graduate from the Leadership Montana program. "In 2005, I had the opportunity to facilitate and help showcase Sidney to the 2006 class, and I will help again this year with the 2012 class."

She continues, "There are 41 participants this year and very few of them are familiar with Sidney. This gives us a great opportunity to highlight our area, educate the class, discuss the challenges we as a community face, and promote leadership skills."

Messer explains that the Leadership Montana program, initiated in 2005, serves as a non-profit affiliate of the Montana Chamber Association, sponsored by organizations and businesses across Montana. "This is a new program, begun in 2005, and designed as a state-wide leadership training," Messer comments. "Each year, the program accepts 40 participants from diverse cultural backgrounds and from all career paths who agree to dedicate nine months of their time to travel across this big beautiful state to learn about diverse communities and to understand the unique issues and challenges these communities face. The program focuses on issues state-wide, and once a month, the class spends three days visiting selected communities to observe, learn, and discuss what they find."

The Leadership Montana class teaches participants to appreciate the diverse backgrounds of each class member, to learn the power of cooperation and collaboration, to develop and practice negotiation skills, and to help lead and guide communities as they grow and diversify.

Leadership Montana has produced some outstanding graduates who have gone back to their local communities and effected positive change.

Anyone interested in applying for the 2012 Leadership Montana program can visit the web site at leadershipmt.org for further information.

"This program does require commitment in both time and money," Messer advises. "The program runs from September-April."

Sidney will be one of the last communities this year's class will visit. Participants will graduate from the program in May.
