City of Sidney Gives Tour of New Waste Water Facility

By Jaymi Loobey

Last Thursday, Public Works Director Jeff Hintz and Mayor Rick Norby took a few curious Sidney residents two miles east of town to view the sewage treatment lagoons. A few years ago the DEQ or Department of Environmental Quality visited Sidney and informed officials that Sidney needed to get its sewage system in compliance with federal regulations. At the time, the oil boom was in full swing and the population was well over the 6,000 persons it is today and was expected to grow even more.

The project consists of four separate phases. Phase two was completed back in February and they hope to be completely finished with all four within two years. The 1st phase started in 2015 building new infiltration cells for the treated water to go through its last round of filtration before reentering the environment. Phase 2 was building four 18 feet deep sewage treatment lagoons. These were lined with a PCV liner so water won't seep into the ground. The city just bid out for Phase 3. That is to build a new wastewater headworks building and lift station. Phase 4 will be the reclamation of the previous No. 1 pond to possibly be used for the treatment of stormwater sometime in the future. This phase will also include the installation of a center pivot for treated stormwater to be used to water fields rented out to a farmer instead of placing it in infiltration ponds as the last step. The city of Sidney doesn't currently treat its stormwater but Jeff predicts we will have to treat our stormwater sooner or later.

According to www.cityofsidneymt.com, Sidney was incorporated in 1911. Jeff said it did not get its first water treatment ponds until 1960. The ponds were unlined and sewage was brought to the ponds and left there to evaporate or be filtered by the ground. What is now factory lake used to be the city's sewage treatment pond. Now the sewage is treated a little differently. Three lift stations in town raise the sewage so that it can be gravity fed as before to the treatment plant. A fourth lift station at the plant raises it one more time before it enters the ponds. While spending the approximately forty-five days in each pond the water is subjected to naturally occurring bacteria that dissolve the solids. Occasionally enzymes are added to get rid of unknown substances the bacteria cannot handle but the bacteria is natural. The water is aerated by air heated from 120 to 140 degrees Fahrenheit for the health of the bacteria. It also keeps the water from icing up in the dead of winter. The water then enters a building and goes through one of three sets of ultraviolet light treatments. This kills any remaining bacteria in the water before it is sent to the infiltration ponds to evaporate or seep into the ground. Jeff assured the people the water is safe when it comes through the system. He said, "The water that's actually going to the river by the time it gets to the river is actually cleaner than what's already in the river."

The city of Sidney borrowed money from the state revolving fund to pay for this. They do not have the final numbers yet but it will be about $20 million dollars to fully fund this project. The recent increase in rates for sewer many Sidney residents have noticed is to offset the cost. The new system is designed to support a population of 10,000 residents and is a state requirement. It is very expensive but much more cost effective than other systems because of its simplicity. Mayor Rick Norby said, "There is no money wasted by Sidney. We're pretty tight shoestrings here."

Heated air is bubbled through the phase 2 treatment cells to keep the bacteria healthy. (Photos by Jaymie Loobey)

J.D. and Ally Nelson, along with 16 other curious Sidney residents, attended last Thursday's tour of Sidney's Sewage Treatment Lagoons.

Public Works Director, Jeff Hintz, explained how the water was treated outside in the ponds as well as inside for UV treatment.

Harvest Fest Open House September 22

The Long X Arts Foundation and McKenzie County Healthcare System's Horizon Assisted Living Facility invite the public to the Harvest Fest Open House to celebrate harvest and the memories associated with it.

The event will run from 1:30 to 4:30 pm at Horizon Assisted Living Facility and will feature wagon rides, a wood working craft, live music by area band Lonesome Willy and desserts. Apple pie BINGO will be at 2:00 pm and guests and residents will have the chance to pet and interact with live farm animals throughout the afternoon.

The event is supported by the Long X Arts Foundation's Art for Life grant that focuses on art programming and community and youth engagement for our elders.

"This is just one of the many ways the Arts Foundation is working to engage our elders with art and folk activities that engage their memories and invite them to tell stories and connect with guests," said Jessie Scofield, McKenzie County Tourism Arts and Event Director. "In addition to these special activities, the 2nd grade classes have begun visiting and doing projects with the Good Shepherd Home residents each week, which is really special for the students and residents involved."

Harvest Fest is FREE for all ages. Bring your family and join the fun!

Wagon rides from parking in the East Clinic Parking Lot. For more information on the Long X Arts Foundation and programming, visit www.longxarts.com.

Welcome to Watford

Watford City area businesses and organizations held a Welcome to Watford Celebration at the Rough Rider Center on Sept. 14. The event, organized by McKenzie County Economic Development, was an opportunity for new residents to see what is available in the community. Richland County Reports First Confirmed Human West Nile Virus Case for 2018

Richland County's first human case of West Nile Virus (WNV) has been reported for 2018 on September 10th after exposure to mosquitoes locally. The adult case was hospitalized and is now home recovering. State and local health officials are encouraging Montanans take steps to avoid mosquito bites and prevent infection with West Nile virus.

WNV case tracking began in Montana in 2003. The highest number of cases reported in Richland County was 7 confirmed cases in 2007.

As of September 7th, there have been 25 confirmed human cases of WNV reported for the 2018 season in Montana. The first human case Montana for 2018 was confirmed on August 10 from Cascade County.

On August 29th, the Montana Department of Public Health and Human Services reported the first human death this year in Montana from West Nile Virus in an elderly Yellowstone County individual. This is the first WNV associated death in the state since 2016.

WNV season usually begins in July and ends in October in Montana. Only certain mosquitoes carry West Nile Virus and it is spread to people through bites. There is no vaccine to prevent WNV so the most effective way to prevent infection is to minimize the risk of mosquito bites by following the 4D's.

The 4Ds of West Nile Virus prevention are:
DEET: Use insect repellent containing DEET or picaridin. A solution with 25 percent to 35 percent DEET is best but children ages 2-12 should use repellent with no more than 10 percent DEET.

Drain: Empty standing water around your house to prevent mosquitoes breeding.

Dawn/Dusk: Mosquitoes are most active during dawn and dusk so stay inside during these times or take precautions to prevent bites.

Dress: Protect yourself from bites by wearing long-sleeved shirts and pants while outside. About four out of five people infected with WNV have no symptoms.

About one in five infected people will experience mild symptoms that may include headache and muscle aches, joint pain, vomiting, diarrhea or a rash. Those cases usually require no treatment. Less than 1 in 100 people who become infected develop serious infections in or around the brain, also known as neuroinvasive disease. Life-threatening symptoms include headache, rash, high fever, stiff neck, mental confusion, and other symptoms. Individuals who develop any of these symptoms should see their healthcare provider immediately.

For more information about WNV, visit the Montana Department of Public Health and Human Services website at: <https://dphhs.mt.gov>. Local health care providers are reminded to report suspected and confirmed cases to the Richland County Health Department at 433-2207.

Paving Begins Along Sidney To Fairview Roadway

Paving is scheduled to begin the week of Sept. 17, and, weather permitting, will continue through mid-October on Highway 200 between Sidney and Fairview.

Construction crews will begin paving along Highway 200 the week of Sept. 17 as part of the ongoing Sidney to Fairview Roadway Improvement Project. Paving is the last phase of the project to be completed this fall before work ceases for the winter months.

Work will begin on the north end of the roadway and will progress south towards Sidney. Weather permitting, work should be completed by mid-October.

Previous project activity focused on road widening to accommodate the installation of center-left turn lanes and passing lanes along Highway 200. Two miles of n/s passing lanes were installed between County Road 127 and County Road 130.

Drivers should expect reduced speeds of 35 mph in work zones with flaggers and pilot cars to direct traffic.

Travelers are encouraged to allow additional travel time to accommodate delays of up to 15 minutes and are reminded to watch for work crews and equipment.

Updated detour and delay information can be found at: <http://www.mdt.mt.gov/travinfo/construction.shtml>.

OBITUARIES

Keith Alan Riedel, 48 Fairview, MT

Keith Alan Riedel

A celebration of life for Keith Alan Riedel, 48, of Fairview will be held at Zion Lutheran Church in Fairview, September 22, 2018 at 2 p.m. Keith left this earth to be with his heavenly Father and his earthly father September 6, 2018. He passed away at the Billings Clinic Hospital with his family at his side following a lengthy and courageous battle with cancer.

Keith was born November 9, 1969 in Sidney, MT to Victor & Lillian (Propp) Riedel. His birth was a great pride and joy to all of his family, especially his Dad since he finally got his son. The joy was very short-lived, though, as Victor passed away when Keith was 2.

Keith attended elementary school at East Fairview, ND and graduated from Fairview High School in 1988. He then attended college at Wahpeton State School of Science in Wahpeton, ND for two years.

He moved to Billings, MT and worked at various job for 10 years. He then returned to Fairview and went to work for Sidney Sugars doing various jobs during the campaign season and worked summers as a hired hand for Scott Buxbaum on Scott's farm. He later became a full-time employee at the factory. Keith then began employment with Musket, an oil transloading business, at their Dore, ND facility. This was a job that Keith was very proud of as he was the operator of the shuttle that moved all the rail cars. Due to health issues, his most recent employment was at Sidney Health Center as a dishwasher in the cafeteria. Richard St. Germain was not only his boss but also became a very special friend to Keith, whom he was very fond of, and Richard was a wonderful confidant for Keith with all the problems that come with health/cancer issues. His co-workers also became very special people to him as he considered them his 'other' family. Keith commented quite often that his changing of jobs was the reason for him acquiring so many friendships that meant the world to him.

His childhood/teenage years proved him to be a lover of nature. He loved going backpacking in the mountains, camping and fishing. This love for nature later turned into him acquiring a huge collection of eagles. While shopping, if he saw an eagle, it was evident that it would be added to his collection. Keith was also in 4-H in the horsemanship division.

Keith was a man of few words but when he did talk you can bet someone was going to be picked on with a witty remark. He was a jokester to the end and always had a smile and a twinkle in his eye.

Keith is survived by his Mom, Lillian; his sisters Vicki (Chuck) Thompson and Cheryl (Jim Karst); nieces Alicia Dietrich-Dahl, Angie (Casey) Dietrich; his grand-nephews Parker (Aneska) Dahl and Connor Dahl; and grand-niece Taylor Dietrich; uncle Harold (Betty) Propp of Billings and aunts Dorothy (Propp) Valnes and Bernice Riedel both of Fairview.

Keith was preceded in death by his Dad, Victor, grandparents Walter & Mary Riedel and Paul & Mary Propp, numerous aunts and uncles, cousins and friends. Burial of his remains will be set at a later date.

William Richard "Bill" Lewis, 86, Hay Draw, ND

William Richard Lewis

William Richard Lewis, 86, of Hay Draw, ND, was born to David and Elsie (Leutscher) Lewis on June 27, 1932 in Fairview, MT at the Brodhead House. He grew up on the Lewis farm at Sioux Pass, MT. He married Donna Joan McRae on November 30, 1957. They met when Bill came out to the McRae ranch to visit her brothers, and she says, "He just kept coming back!" One time he even rode his horse from Sioux Pass across the river and through 21 gates to the ranch in Hay Draw to see her. He must have been pretty determined.

They lived together at Sioux Pass where Richard and Brian were born, then moved to Hogeland, MT where Jim and Jay were born (in Havre). Then they moved to East Fairview (Dore) and worked for Herman Johnson. In the spring of 1969, they moved to the McRae ranch in Hay Draw, ND, where Donna was born and raised. They had no phones until 1971 and there was no running water in the house until Christmas of 1979. The boys learned to drive by hauling water to the house. In spring of 1980, Bill and Donna bought the McRae ranch from Donna's mother, Ellen. Bill and Donna's son Jim and his family still live on and operate the family ranch. Their four boys each married and gave them several grandchildren to love, spoil, and help raise into fine young people. You could always find Bill with a grandchild (or great grandchild) perched on his lap, either at the kitchen table feeding them maple nut ice cream or in his recliner while tickling their backs and watching Gunsmoke. Almost every grandchild has a photo sitting in bed and drinking coffee with Grampa Bill. He never gave a straight "yes" or "no" answer because he was the type of man who didn't want to cause an inconvenience for anyone else. We heard a lot of might bes, could bes, I suppose, that'll be alrights, and maybes when we asked questions. One of Bill's favorite things was to go to town and stop at a restaurant for coffee or lunch and give the waitresses a bad time. Any little kid he met always got a high five or handshake. Neighbor Slade Fitzgerald said, "My dad always said, 'I swear, that man could play a barbed-wire fence.'" Bill could play about any stringed instrument you handed him by ear. The Fitzgerald kids used to call him "Mr. Fix It" because he could fix just about anything he tinkered with. He was always willing to drop whatever he was doing to go help a friend or neighbor get an old tractor or vehicle going.

Bill was a member of the National Cattlemen's Association, the North Dakota Stockmen's Association, and McKenzie County Grazing Association. He held the title of Deputy Sheriff for the Squaw Gap Community Hall during special events for several years.

Bill passed away peacefully on the morning of September 15 with family by his side at Sidney Extended Care where he had resided since January 2018.

"The twinkle in his eye is now a twinkle in the night sky." (Joy Patten)

Bill is survived by his wife Donna of Hay Draw, ND; children Richard of Goddard, KS, Brian (Geni) of Sidney, MT, James (Penni) of Hay Draw, ND, and Jay (Sarah) of Rawson, ND; Grandchildren Zachary (Kelsey) Lewis, Tallas (Stephanie) Lewis, Joshua (Bonnie) Lewis, Whitney (Tyrel) Stern, Neil (Heather) Olivier, Nicole (Kevin) Booze, Kami (Caleb) Williams, Kim Lee (Kyle Strand), Kelly (Tiaan) Burger, David Lewis, Shawn (Brittany) Brown, Brandy Nevers, Tara Nevers, Kimberly Korn, Laci Lewis, Tia Lewis, Cedar Lewis, Chisum Lewis, Ian Lewis, Colten Lewis, and Reese Lewis; Special Family members Connie Erickson and Linda Buckley; and numerous nieces and nephews. They also have 26 great grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by his parents, David and Elsie; siblings, Jane, Tom, Madeline, Carmen, and Shirley; and daughter-in-law, Janet.

Real Estate Market Remains Strong in Sidney and Watford City

By Stephanie Ler

In both Sidney and Watford City, families are settling down and companies are settling in, making the real estate market strong in both areas.

In Sidney, the housing market appears to be stabilizing following the most recent Bakken oil boom. According to Justin Jones, broker and owner of Nick Jones Real Estate, “we’re seeing that people are again moving to the area and setting down roots.” In the summer of 2017, there were over 100 homes for sale in the Sidney area, Jones explained. “I would say that the market is somewhat improving from the last couple of years. In general, asking prices are holding steady. The climb in housing prices we saw in 2010-2014 has definitely leveled off. We’re roughly at 70 homes for sale,” he said.

The local economy plays a big role in the housing market. “We’re seeing a lot of buyers coming back in to the market with people feeling more confident in their jobs, and jobs opening up. We’re definitely seeing more people looking to become first time home buyers. They’re looking to get out of a rental and into home ownership,” Jones explained. Compared to the height of the oil boom several years ago, there are fewer families living apart, and more families establishing roots in the area by purchasing a home.

Another change Jones noted was an increase in commercial real estate activity. “In 2015 and 2016 we had a handful of commercial inquiries to lease or buy,” Jones said. “That appears to be changing. Our market is starting to see a few commercial properties selling. We’re getting inquiries. Companies are again calling and scheduling showings and asking the right kind of questions,” he said.

The stabilization of housing prices is certainly a benefit for the buyer, and Jones advises sellers to take note. “There’s a lot of competition for buyers. The good news is that there are qualified buyers in the market. It is important for sellers to price their homes competitively.”

Nick Jones Real Estate in Sidney has five experienced real estate professionals available, and sells agricultural, commercial and residential properties in Eastern Montana and Western North Dakota. The office can be contacted at 406-433-4445.

Watford City

Watford City has undoubtedly experienced expansive growth over the past decade, and the real estate market is no different. Over the past decade, Watford City had developed community plans focusing on telecommunications and recreational infrastructure, has made significant improvements in the retail arena and the look of downtown Watford City, and made quality of life an important focus. Coupled with heavy oil exploration and production activities, these recent improvements have attracted many energy companies, financial and service companies, and families to move into the area.

According to Pam Suelzle, real estate agent for Watford City Real Estate Group, “There has been huge growth already, and it’s presently growing. Our economy is quite strong. People are earning good wages and it’s matching what our housing market is.” Suelzle said there is a high demand for both residential and commercial and industrial properties. “There’s a low supply for both housing and commercial and industrial, so there isn’t a large selection to choose from,” she said. Suelzle said many companies are opting to lease a property, or lease-to-own, “just to make sure the economy is going to stay stable.” Associate Broker Rhonda DeHaan agreed, explaining that “companies were pretty excited about getting into a long-term lease. A lot of those are coming up on the second year, and they’re still excited about the increased growth in Watford City.” DeHaan is hopeful many of these will commit to purchasing.

As far as residential purchases go, explosive growth saturated the housing market for a while, DeHaan said, though “quite a bit of that inventory has been purchased.” “We have a low supply and a high demand,” Suelzle said, though “higher wages in the area are matching what is needed to support a mortgage.” Suelzle finds that many families are surprised they can pre-qualify for the homes they are interested in purchasing. “We’ve got a lot of qualified buyers who are looking to become homeowners,” she said.

Currently, the market is strong for sellers. “The market has amped up for the sellers within the last 6 months. It’s a little stronger for a sell now than it was 6 months ago,” Suelzle said.

In the near future, DeHaan is excited at the prospect of more new construction. “I’m hoping the increase in jobs and oil activity and gas production, we will see more permanent residents. We’ve seen more confidence in the builders. We’re starting to see a little more activity in subdivision lot sales,” she said.

There is no doubt that Watford City will grow over the next several years, and local agents will be prepped to assist both buyers and sellers of commercial, residential and industrial properties in the area. The Watford City Real Estate Group can be reached at 701-842-4500.

When Is The Best Time To Plant?

By Andy Kuester
Like it or not, the changing of foliage, the coolness of the nights and the dampness of the air as I write this, are all signs that fall is upon us.
People often ask us “when is the best time to plant?” They often are asking because they desire to succeed in getting whatever they are planting, to grow. It often sounds like a sales pitch this time of year when we respond, Now. “Oh sure, you just want to sell product” they might think. But the reality remains that now is simply the best time to plant anything that is a year after year plant.
We often get confused in this region because we really do have a grain growing, farming mentality. We plant in the spring, and harvest in the fall, so why is fall the best time to plant?

There are many reasons why, and I'll seek to explain them in this article.
Firstly, the warm days of summer are behind us. Heat is stressful to all living things and just as much to plants as to anything else. Most plants do not do well when temperatures reach the upper 80s or 100-degree mark. Plants are happier and healthier when temps are in the 70s. By waiting to plant until the middle of August or early September we can be assured that most of the warm days of the year are over. That does not mean that we won't end up with a warm day here or there but the stresses of heat on a plant are not nearly so likely.

Secondly, when planting in areas that are more remote, water requirements are less intense when temperatures are not quite so warm. If you desire to plant but do not have an easy way of watering the space, fall is a great time. The lower temps often mean fewer water requirements. Watering still should be somewhat consistent the first at least three years of a plant's life in a space. To offer some clarity

I generally refer to a young plant like an infant child. They need to eat a little bit, and fairly often. Young plants are much the same way. Until they grow up and their roots can find their own water, even the most drought tolerant of plants cannot go completely without water. In our region, we simply cannot rely on rain to do the watering for us.
A water regiment for young trees, shrubs, and perennials should change based upon the weather. During the warm summer months of late June through early August watering should often be at least every other day, if not every day. The volume of the container the plant was growing in is a good rule to follow with regard to the amount of water needed.
When cooler temps arrive in the fall we can get by with watering less frequently. Often our interval or number of days can increase in the fall, making it easier to keep a plant watered and thus a good time to plant. In the fall we can often water a couple of times a week at the same volume as we did in the warmer summer months.
When temps get colder yet, in late September and early October we often think about rolling our hoses up and putting things away for the winter. We should really resist that temptation.

Our fall seasons in Eastern MT and Western ND are routinely very dry. We often get very little rain and very little snow. Since this is the case, the investment of water that we have made through the season can often disappear before winter actually sets in. This can be dangerous for a young plant. Dry soil does not protect against cold temperatures as well as wet soil does. Also when spring returns, the dry soil warms up more quickly than wet soil causing plants to wake up too early and be subject to dangerous cold spring temps.
Late fall watering then should be at least weekly to ensure that the soil around the plant stays moist until the ground becomes hard. This can often be as late as mid-November.
Lastly, with regard to the fall being the best time to plant. The cooler temperatures often result in lower soil temperatures as well. Soil temperatures in the 40s promote strong root development. Plants were designed this way as a manner of preparing for winter. Instead of putting on leaves and branches they focus instead on developing their root systems for winter. By planting in the fall you have an already warm soil, instead of planting in the spring when the soil is still far too cold.

We have a preoccupation with “the Best” in our society. That being said the “optimum” window for planting in our climate is the 30-day window from August 15th to September 15th. You can plant up until the ground freezes but that planting window offers the prime amount of time to develop a root system for winter.
As always we are here to help you with all your plant needs. If you ever need assistance please don't hesitate to contact us. Remember, we're open all year long! Come and visit us if you're ever passing through.

Space and Comfort Highlight McNutt Home

The open floor plan of McNutt’s home is spacious and welcoming.

Walt McNutt’s haven is the garage with Case IH red cabinets.

By Dianne Swanson
Karen and Walt McNutt’s new home in northwest Sidney is spacious, warm and inviting. As an older couple, they worked with general contractor M&S Builders to design a home that would accommodate their lifestyle and plan for whatever the future may bring. There are no stairs except to the basement, and the entire main floor is handicapped accessible.

The craftsmanship of Mitch Shirk and his team of Sherman DeTienne and Kyle Williams is evident everywhere in the home, from the fabulous tile work in the bathrooms to the excellent drywall throughout. All the sub contractors and suppliers are also local including: Franz Construction, Corland Construction LLC, Creative Solutions, Prairie Electric, Skyline Plumbing, Frontier Heating, Lander Painting, Sidney Paint and Glass, Larry Hanzek, Top Gun Floorz, Big Sky Siding and Windows, CM Built Doors, Builders First Source, ElectricLand, Chads Furniture, PATH, The Rug Emporium, Johnson Hardware & Furniture and Custom Fencing & Welding. McNutt’s truly appreciate the skill and professionalism of everyone who worked on their new home.

The stunning front door opens on a fabulous foyer, then a large, homey living room featuring comfortable furniture and one of Walt’s favorite features, a large screen TV which was downstairs in their old house. A large east facing window bathes the room in natural light while a gorgeous stained glass fixture decorates a ceiling fan. China cabinets filled with beautiful antique dishes and glassware complete the décor, and a warm area rug ties the room together.

The open concept then

10 Ways To Beef Up Your Tailgating Game

Three-ingredient nacho beef dip

(BPT) - The leaves are turning, the temperature is dropping and tailgaters are coming out in droves to support their favorite team - but more importantly, show off their grilling skills with beef as the star of the show. Tailgaters young and old converge in the wee hours of the morning outside stadiums across the country to share in the revelry of game day. Pre-game hours are spent in parking lots playing bean bag toss, connecting with friends, and setting up and eating a spread of food.

For many, tailgating is more than a once-in-a-while leisure activity, it's a lifestyle. Seasoned tailgaters go all out with decorations like team flags and banners, comfy seating and even themed meals (surf and turf anyone?). Special care is put into every detail to provide an exceptional tailgate experience.

Here are 10 beef-friendly tailgating tips for those ready to take their tailgating from the amateur to the professional level.

1. Prep as much as possible at home. Do the majority of the meal prep in the comfort of your kitchen: skewer beef kebabs, form burger patties, chop onions, cut buns. This will help you save time and reduce the amount of items you need to pack for the day.
2. Check your cooking equipment. Make sure your grill or camp stove is clean and ready to use. Keep a backup propane tank and stick lighters on hand to ensure cooking goes off without a hitch.
3. Bring a meat thermometer. This is the best way to check for doneness on steaks and burgers as well as checking the proper temperature when reheating food later in the day for those post-game snacks (heat to 165° F).
4. Don't cross-contaminate raw and cooked foods. Have two sets of tools like cutting boards, tongs and knives if you are working with raw meat since you won't be able to wash them while tailgating.
5. Embrace the cast iron skillet. Great for cooking burgers, steaks and one-pan meals. Try a beef stir fry. Cut and marinate the meat and veggies at home, toss them in the skillet and enjoy!
6. Cook in advance when you can. Appetizers, main dishes and sides can be cooked ahead of time and re-heated on the grill. Spice things up with an easy three-ingredient nacho beef dip that can be prepared ahead of time, warmed in a skillet on the grill and served with chips.
7. Your grill is just a fancy stovetop. You can cook chili and stew in a stock pot on the grates for a hearty meal to warm up fans on the coldest of game days.
8. Your grill is also an outdoor oven. Surprise your guests with a small roast, beef casserole or even a platter of nachos.
9. Make sure to pack and store everything safely. Raw beef should be at the bottom of the cooler (or in another cooler all together), packed separately from other items. Use ice packs instead of ice to make sure food doesn't get waterlogged.
10. Serve food in creative and easy-to-hold ways since tailgating usually involves eating while standing and sitting in a camping chair. Skip the bowls and use chip bags as a vessel for chili or beef tacos. Skewer steak chunks, veggies and even meatballs on short bamboo sticks for fun food-on-stick meals.

Incorporate these tips and tricks to beef up your tailgating experience. Find even more tailgating tips and recipes at BeefItsWhatsForDinner.com, funded by farmers and ranchers.
